Volcano-itis cutting into jetfoil loads

By AL FORREST

Victoria's jetfoil service is being hampered by a serious new ailment called volcano anxiety.

"Seattle people tell us they are afraid to leave their children alone for fear the volcano will erupt again," says Flying Princess Transportation Co. president Pat Crofton.

"They don't want to come to Victoria while their children are in school. They want to be close to home when the volcano erupts again."

Crofton said this fear, accompanied by a misguided notion Victoria may have a volcanic ash problem, has been cutting into passenger traffic on the new service.

"We have been averaging less than 100 passengers per trip," he said. "We are counting on an average of about 185."

It can carry a maximum of 250.

Now that the jetfoil service is well into June, which should be a good month, it will be difficult to meet the six-month target unless passenger totals pick up soon. Some slack weeks are expected in the autumn portion of the schedule.

Crofton said there appears little that Victoria can do about family anxieties. When schools get out and children can travel with their parents, thatproblem might ease.

The provincial government is taking steps to deal with the second problem — the ash rumors.

Tourism Minister Pat Jordan is going to Seattle and Portland this week to participate in as many talks shows as can be arranged.

"This is a delicate mission," says John Plul, her assistant deputy minister.

"We can't just go down there and say 'we're the lucky ones who escaped the ash.'

"We have to be discreet and just bring this information into the conversation as casually as we can. It's not the sort of thing you can advertize in a formal way."

In addition, the ministry is spreading the word to automobile clubs and travel agents in California that Victoria is free of ash and the route to B.C. is safe.

The rumors are troublesome and have to be dealt with, he said.

Victoria transportation consultant Ken Stratford said the rumors have been heard as far away as San Diego.

He received a phone call from the Chamber of Commerce there wanting to know how bad the ash is in Victoria.

Stratford said the caller assumed there was ash in the streets here.

"I reassured him there was no problem in Victoria — but this points out the need to get the message out."

At some point, Stratford said, the volcano may become a major tourist attraction — people may pay large sums to take copter rides over it — but right now it is creating serious problems for the tourist industry.

Meanwhile, the jetfoil continues to ply between Victoria and Seattle less than half full.

Crofton doesn't put the blame on other factors like the schedule but he concedes the cool weather isn't helping.

The first jetfoil trip leaves Seattle at 6 a.m., he says, meaning people have to get up at 5 in the morning to catch it, but the loads on the early morning run are just as large (or just as small) as the one at midday.

"People just aren't travelling at this time. It seems to be mainly a concern about the volcano."

Mexico quake razes village

MEXICALI (AP) — A powerful earthquake destroyed 50 homes in a rural farm community, killed at least two persons and cause rumblings in an old volcano long believed extinct, Mexican police said today.

The quake, which also was felt in Southern California and southern Arizona, measured between 6.2 and 6.7 on the Richter scale and struck at 8:28 p.m. Sunday, lasting almost a full minute, officials said.

The epicentre was 80 kilometres southeast of this Mexico border city.

Police said a girl was killed when the roof of her home collapsed in the farming area known as Oaxaca, about 40 kilometres south of the border. A man also died there when a railway bridge fell on his car.

By early today, at least 60 people had been treated for injuries by the Mexican Red Cross in Mexicali.

Details on the rumblings at the volcano, Sierro Prieto, were sketchy, but the mountain is in the Mexicali area and is the site of an experimental geothermal power plant.

Officials said it would be several days before they knew the extent of damage or injuries throughout the Mexicali Valley, into which the Colorado River flows.

The rolling motion of the earth lasted between 60 and 90 seconds near the epicentre. Buildings swayed and water splashed out of swimming pools in the Los Angeles and San Diego areas.

Lesser quake jiggles Victoria

If you felt a little shaky Sunday afternoon it had nothing to do with Saturday night celebrating — or the Mount St. Helens volcano.

A minor earthquake centred on Port Townsend, Wash., was felt in Victoria at 3:40 p.m.

There were no reports of damage.

Local seismologists said there was nothing unusual about the quake, which registered about 3.5 on the Richter scale.

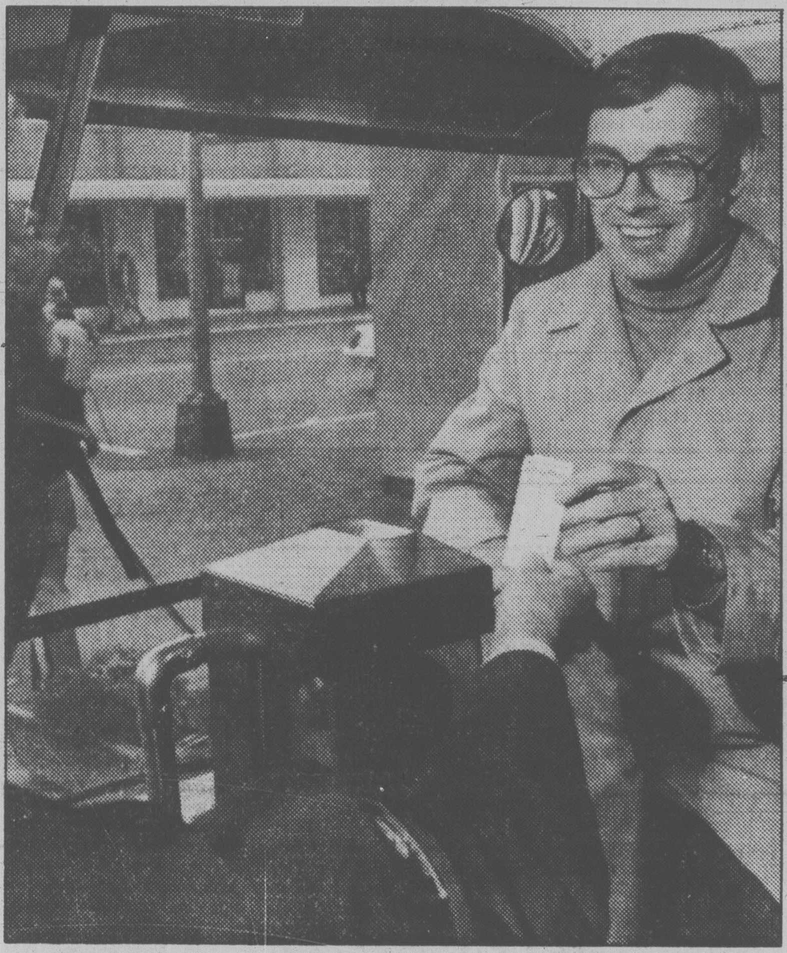
Quakes are frequent at Port Townsend, which is on the Olympic Peninsula, east of Port Angeles.

There was a minor tremble registering about one on the Richter scale one hour before the quake and another tremble registering one shortly after midnight this morning.

Only the jolt at 3:40 p.m. Sunday was strong enough to be felt in Victoria.

The University of Washington Geophysics Department also monitored the tremor and said it measured about 3.9. Other sources put it about 3.6. Variable readings are common because the soundings are taken from different directions.

The epicentre was 21 kilometres southwest of Port Townsend and 45 kilometres beneath the surface, UW officials said.



ONE OF FIRST to buy new daily bus pass this morning was Bill O'Brien, chief transit planner for the Capital Regional District which recently approved the scheme. For $1.25 bus rider is permitted unlimited use of the system. Monthly commuter bus passes are next priority of the CRD and the Urban Transit Authority. Daily bus passes for students cost 60 cents while senior citizens and children between five and 11 years of age can get passes for 35 cents. The CRD took over public transit on April 1 and will finance any deficit through a surcharge on electricity bills. (Alex Barta photo)

Retail clerks picket major depot

The distribution centre supplies groceries for all the company's B.C. food stores.

Woodward's spokesman Bill Brown said today it is anybody's guess how long the Victoria food store will remain open with its main supply centre choked off.

The 60 employees at the Richmond food centre, members of the Canadian Allied Manufacturers Wholesale and Retail Union, refused to cross the picket line, closing the operation.

There are about 50 members of the retail clerks union working in the wholesale section of the Furniture Fair and they too honored the picket line. However, business continues in the retail section.

Talks open with PM optimistic

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau began talks with the 10 premiers today, saying he expected they would be able to agree on the basic principles of federalism and set a timetable for constitutional change.

As the premiers filed into Trudeau's 24 Sussex Drive home, the prime minister said he hopes officials from both the federal and provincial governments will meet in the next few weeks to begin more in-depth study of constitutional issues for a possible conference this fall.

Trudeau tried to sound optimistic about the possibility of ending the 53-year stalemate which has thwarted 12 other attempts to renew the 113-year-old constitution.

"You heard them (the premiers) during the referendum, saying how anxious they were to renew federalism," Trudeau told reporters on his front lawn.

"I don't think any of them will go back on that pledge."

The premiers were more tight-lipped as they strolled into Trudeau's home, restricting their remarks to light banter.

Inside the mansion, the 11 leaders sat in a circle,

Gold price still throbbing

LONDON (AP) — Gold broke the $600 barrier again and soared to $623.75 U.S. an ounce in Europe today as the U.S. dollar came under heavy selling pressure.

After closing at just under $600 in London on Friday, the metal was fixed at $623.75 U.S. an ounce today — about $719.50 Canadian.

That was down slightly from the morning fixing price of $724 Canadian.

Salmon war talks off to fiery start

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Angry fishermen urged federal fisheries officers to lift an eight-week emergency ban on commercial fishing for chinook salmon in the Fraser River Sunday while talks designed to bring about a new West Coast salmon fishing agreement with the U.S. began today in Vancouver.

About 100 fishermen gathered at a public meeting Sunday sponsored by the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union to protest the closure.

The fishermen asked that they be allowed to fish by gillnet one day a week, or that sports and other forms of commercial fishing not affected by the closure be restricted.

They also alleged American interference, saying pressure was put on federal fisheries to impose the restriction on Canadian fishermen.

The fishery was closed May 29 to preserve dwindling chinook stock.

The protest marked the kick-off of negotiations today which could end the annual fish wars on the West Coast between the U.S. and Canada.

A Vancouver newspaper says the United States is amenable to three vital principles Canadian negotiators say must form the basis of a new agreement.

The morning Province says the main Canadian proposal is that each country's harvest must equal its own production.

Top-level Canadian negotiators say they will formally present two other proposals:

— stabilization of interception which would set catch levels on salmon spawned in one country and caught by fishermen in the other. Based on past years' catches, it is designed to settle areas of traditional dispute, and;

— maximizing salmon, in which both countries would enlarge their salmon stocks for the benefit of both.

Meanwhile, it was reported today the Aluminum Co. of Canada will be charged under the federal Fisheries Act if it does not double the amount of water flowing over the Kemano I dam in northeastern B.C.

The amount of water now flowing over the dam is only half what is needed to sustain fish stocks in the area, especially the Nechako River, district fisheries spokesman Wayne Shinners said Sunday.

Burton's present wife, Susan Hunt, was reported to have demanded that the picture — part of O'Keefe Centre's souvenir 20th anniversary program — be removed.

Burton starred in Camelot when it originally opened at the O'Keefe in the 1960s and was married to Miss Taylor then.

Gardener's new friend: the pill!

By IKE FLORES

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — Birth control pills for plants?

When Bob Kundtz said he wanted some for a horticultural experiment, both his doctor and druggist were taken aback.

But Kundtz, known as the "wizard" at Florida's Cypress Gardens, wanted the pills, not to prevent conception but to get his plants to reproduce.

Soaked in a solution of one birth control pill to one quart of water, the plants soon sprout new offshoots complete with root systems. The offshoots are then separated and repotted as new plants.

"I first heard of it in Australia about three years ago," said Kundtz, vice-president of the famous flower-and-water-ski attraction in central Florida.

"I couldn't get a variegated pineapple to put out new growth quick enough. And this friend of mine said 'No problem, old chap. Do thus and so.'

"I thought he was pulling my leg, but I kept it in the back of my mind," Kundtz says. "It sort of bugged me.

"About a year later I couldn't get a pandanus (member of the lily family) to throw any keiki (new growth). So I went to the drugstore and asked for some birth control pills.

"There was a lot of whispering in the back of the store, and then I found out I needed a prescription for them. So I go over to my doctor. He said 'Bob, does your wife know?' "

But Kundtz persisted through all the ribbing, got his pills and tried them out.

"It really does work," he said. "Little plants come out thicker than hairs on a dog's back."

Kundtz said a gynecologist friend of his believes it's the estrogen growth hormone in the pills that causes new plant growth quickly.

So far, he knows the pills work on the lily family, bromeliads and ferns.

Now, Kundtz is trying to find out whether he can get other plants to do the same. He is treating tomatoes and pepper plants in his home garden and intends to try the pills on shrubs.

"It's really too early to tell, but the peppers seem to be branching. I'm going to keep playing around with it and see what else I can do."

He's also interested in seeing whether the birth control pill solution would increase root systems in trees and stimulate flowering, which in fruit trees would mean more fruit or berries.

He said a home gardener can probably get results as well as anyone.

Only the 11 leaders were supposed to be attending the closed-door meeting although Justice Minister Jean Chretien — Trudeau's minister in charge of constitutional change — was to join discussions if the premiers agreed.

Six of the 10 premiers met Sunday night and agreed they would press for a constitutional change package they hammered out at an August, 1978, meeting in Regina. Trudeau was not a participant at that meeting.

The so-called Regina consensus argues for a transfer of many federal powers to the provinces and says the 10 premiers must agree unanimously before there is change.

Trudeau said he does not expect any problem with the Regina consensus. He said he believes a list of demands produced at Regina was narrowed considerably.

The initial list, he said, "had everything but the kitchen sink."

Trudeau said he hopes the premiers will be able to agree unanimously on constitutional changes following today's preliminary talks.

"But I don't think unanimity is required for every change."

However, with significant change in the redistribution of federal and provincial powers, unanimous consent is necessary, Trudeau said.

The prime minister said he was not going to ask the premiers today about bringing the constitution from Westminster. Nor was he planning to discuss his desire to entrench a charter of human rights in the constitution.

He planned to let the premiers air their thoughts and then plan a timetable for meetings where agreements on changes could occur.

"We're going to talk about the things the premier's want to talk about."

The prime minister said he is not concerned about aggressive-sounding statements of some premiers at a Sunday night meeting.

The six premiers who attended the Sunday night meeting emerged from the session indicating that they believe the federal government, rather than the provinces, has to undergo the biggest change of attitude.

Two close calls for Air Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada ran into double trouble this weekend as a wing fire forced passengers to evacuate a plane in Los Angeles and a Toronto flight lost power in three of its four engines.

Air Canada says 131 passengers and eight crew members were evacuated safely from a Lockheed TriStar jetliner whose left wing engine caught fire as it was leaving the passenger terminal at Los Angeles International Airport Sunday night.

Real Lesperance, a spokesman for the airline in Montreal, said today that three persons were slightly injured in the evacuation.

Most of the passengers and crew evacuated the aircraft by sliding down emergency chutes.

Meanwhile, in Toronto, a major air tragedy was averted Saturday after an Air Canada 747 jumbo jet with 403 people aboard lost power in three of its four engines while preparing to land at Toronto International Airport.

Flight 136 from Vancouver had descended from 10,668 metres (35,000 feet) to 2,743 metres when the pilot discovered only one engine was operating. The plane dropped to 1,219 metres during the 1½ minutes it took the pilot and crew to restart the three flamed-out engines, Air Canada spokesman Brock Stewart said.

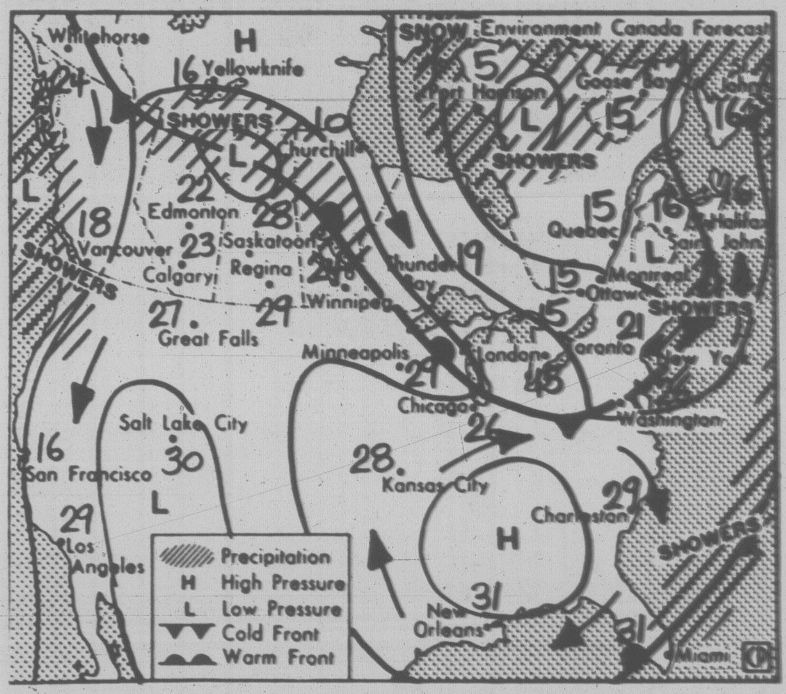

Map valid until noon Tuesday

A nearly stationary low pressure area west of Vancouver Island early today remained the key to the weather over B.C. as it has since the beginning of the month. Showers were occurring over the north coast and Queen Charlottes while most interior locations were clear. Bands of moisture will continue to circulate around the low providing a few showers to the coast while showers and thundershowers are forecast to break out over interior regions. No significant improvement is likely Tuesday.

B.C. to aid in saving rail line

KELOWNA (CP) — Premier Bill Bennett says the provincial government will help the Kettle Valley Railway Heritage Society save a section of the 70-year-old railway that helped open up the Okanagan Valley.

The government will assist the society in its negotiations with CP Rail, which owns the line but has not used it since 1973, and will buy property along the railway right-of-way, Bennett said Saturday.

The premier said the government will arrange a meeting between the society and the railway and will start negotiations with the railway to purchase 984 acres of land in Myra Canyon, near Kelowna.

CP Rail had planned to start taking up the tracks in the next few weeks and use the rail to refurbish Prairie branch lines.

No charges laid after RCMP raid

OTTAWA (CP) — After a nine-month investigation, the RCMP has decided not to lay charges against journalist Jo Ann Gosselin or any public servants who leaked defence department documents to her for a series of stories last year.

RCMP Insp. Yves Campagna, who headed the investigation into an alleged breach of trust by a public servant, said in a telephone interview today "the file is concluded and that's it, over and out."

The investigation became controversial last November when a bureaucrat in the defence department, acting on his own under guides that had never been approved by the cabinet, authorized an RCMP raid on Ms. Gosselin's home.

S.A. students rebel again

Confidence in his judges: chief justice

VANCOUVER (CP) — Judges are under chronic stress from their jobs and should be subjected to intelligent, compassionate and constructive scrutiny by the public, says Chief Justice Allan McEachern of the B.C. Supreme Court.

McEachern says that isolated incidents of errant personal behavior by judges should not be allowed to undermine public confidence in the system of justice.

The 54-year-old judge, who has refused to comment directly on a vice scandal involving his predecessor, former chief justice John Farris, whom he replaced in January, 1979, said he has full confidence in the 31 members of his court.

Tradition dictates that judges not respond to criticism, even though the judiciary is particularly vulnerable because of its vital role in society, he said in a recent interview.

"It is up to others, such as members of the legal profession, the media and the elected representatives, to give the public the proper view of how we perform and how we function," he said.

WINNERS EVERYWHERE and why not? There was an array of great entries at the annual junior pet show at Beaver Lake Saturday staged by the Victoria Branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The event was open to pets belonging to all school-age children and there were categories and awards for every type of pet, including dogs with the longest and shortest ears, the smallest rabbit and the best-behaved horse. The pooch with the shortest ears turned out to be Taffy (left), entered by owner Steven Strobbe of 4019 Burton. Smaller animals had to have suitable containers and for Gomer (right), a guinea pig owned by Alisa Gordaneer, home for the day happened to be an old beer case. If you don't have a pet and would like to enter next year's show, there are plenty of homeless animals at the SPCA branch shelter at 3150 Napier Lane (telephone 388-6627).

Wilkinson to open new centre

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wilkinson Co. Ltd. of Vancouver has announced it will open a distribution centre in Kamloops, B.C.

The Vancouver-based steel and metals distributor also will open a 130,000-square-foot steel service centre on 10 acres in Bramalea, Ont., later this month, a company spokesman said.

The Kamloops plant will provide immediate supply of metals to the Interior, while delivery from Vancouver can take up to five days.

Wilkinson now has seven service centres in its cross-Canada chain.

Low on water

KITIMAT (CP) — A brush fire Saturday in a logged-out area outside this north-coastal town left its water supply critically low, officials said.

The fire in brush and slash covered about 60 acres before 30 firefighters brought it under control about two hours after it began. Cause of the fire was not known.

B.C. man wins

VANCOUVER (CP) — For the first time in its history, the Young Men's Christian Association has chosen a B.C. man as its national chairman.

Rowley Hastings, 45, will hold the post for at least one year.

Hastings, who has been active in the association since he was a child, is past president of the Vancouver association.

The honorable thing

The directors of the Pan-Pacific Society did the honorable thing last week by pulling out of any further involvement in the operation of the planned conference and trade centre.

The business community had, through the society, done a fine job of undertaking the preliminary work and research to get the centre project off the ground. They had worked successfully with former cabinet minister Sam Bawlf and current minister Hugh Curtis to find a site, albeit a controversial one, and to establish the principles of civic and provincial financial support.

The Pan-Pacific Society would not, however, have been a suitable group to undertake the actual operation of the conference and trade centre.

As Ald. Bill McElroy pointed out a few days before the directors quit, the public had lost confidence in the Pan-Pacific group. There were concerns that the society had operated behind closed doors more than it should have in the planning of a public project. The misjudgment of society president Arne Lane in his short-term, part-ownership of an adjacent parcel of land had not helped the society's public image.

But even if Pan-Pacific's conduct had been exemplary during its early days, it would not have been the right body to take on the management of the centre. The centre is a public project, spending large amounts of taxpayers' money every year, and the body controlling it should be publicly accountable.

This does not necessarily mean that politicians themselves should undertake the management of the facility. Indeed, city council and the Provincial Capital Commission both probably have better things to do with their time than deal with the day-to-day policies of marketing, maintenance, and staffing.

The principle of accountability does mean, however, that the persons on the management board should be appointed by, and responsible to, elected officials. Since the province, through the Capital Commission, and the city are going to share equally in the operating losses of the centre, it would seem reasonable that each should appoint half the directors.

PCC and city officials should get together as soon as possible to set up such a structure. In their appointments, both groups should utilize the wealth of talent and expertise available in the city. Indeed, some of the Pan-Pacific directors might make excellent board members, provided they were accountable to the PCC or the city, rather than just to a limited-membership society.

At the same time, the two groups should begin working now on the details of the financial agreement covering the centre's losses. The current principle is that the province and the city will split equally the centre's losses, with the city contributing a maximum of $200,000 in 1978 dollars.

Just where the province's share will come from has not been made clear, however. A few days before opting out, Pan-Pacific was saying it appeared the PCC was not to receive direct government funding for its share but was to produce it out of other revenue, such as Crystal Gardens profits. Now, however, it seems possible that the Crystal Gardens will not make enough to support the centre. This point needs to be clarified as quickly as possible.

With no third party involved, the PCC and city council should reach agreement on these issues speedily so that the convention centre can be operational as soon as possible.

Eyes on the puck

Art and Sport witnessed two milestones last week.

Gordie Howe, veteran of 32 years of professional hockey, snapped the change room locker door shut on ol' number nine. The hero of many a child and armchair fan, his career spanned five decades and included 800 goals in regular season NHL play.

Howe played in more than 2,000 games and was credited with more than 2,000 points in goals and assists.

In the world of art, a work by 19th century English painter Joseph Mallord William Turner set a record price for an oil painting. The $6.4 million paid for Turner's 'Juliet and Her Nurse' by an Argentine millionaire was the most ever raised at an auction for a single painting.

The bidding for the painting opened at 11:01 a.m. at $500,000 and finished six minutes and four seconds later.

Howe averaged a point a game for 32 years. The South American millionaire averaged $18,000 a second for six minutes.

Who said hockey was the fastest game in the world?

Two winds on the Charlottes

Like the unrelenting wind that pounds the north Pacific waters onto the west coast of the Queen Charlotte Islands, the Islands Protection Society keeps on.

A tightly-knit and well organized group that was formed in 1974, it has taken on industry and bureaucracy on behalf of fish, fowl, animal and landscape which make up the ecosystem of Canada's most westerly and perhaps most unusual land mass.

Made up of individuals from all spectrums of Queen Charlotte society, including biologists, fishermen, natives, foresters and even a B.C. Hydro manager, the group has had some triumphs. The B.C. Supreme Court decision implying that the forests minister must treat all interested parties fairly resulted in better access to information on logging statistics.

Crushing defeats

They have also had crushing defeats. Forests Minister Tom Waterland's decision not to hold public hearings into the renewal of a tree farm licences on South Moresby Island has been the single biggest blow to the wilderness park proposal. Undaunted, they keep on.

Unlike some of the noisier, publicity-minded environmental organizations, the group had earned a certain amount of respect, even among the forest companies, for credible research and determination.

Two recent developments, both indirectly related to their primary goal of having millions of acres of South Moresby Island set aside from loggers' chainsaws, are a measure of the group's tenacity and dedication. (Much of the proposed park lies inside Rayonier Canada's Tree Farm Licence 24, an area over which the company now has tenure for another quarter century.)

First of all, the society is back in court with its support of a fisherman who has charged a logging company and senior federal fisheries and provincial forest service officials with violating the federal Fisheries Act after landslides last year ended up in Riley Creek, a salmon-spawning river.

Secondly, it has published its fourth annual magazine — a glossy soft cover stocked with articles, color photos and opinion pieces that examine many aspects of the Islands' unique environment. All Alone Stone at $6.95 costs a lot, but so do court cases, and there is a chance there will be a few more environment-related court cases.

Conservation groups in B.C. have been well aware for years that the Fisheries Act is the strongest piece of environmental legislation on the books. Although its application is limited to tidal waters over which Ottawa has jurisdiction, it has broad application along the B.C. coast.

Not content with the compromise of resource management, as supposedly practised by fisheries and forestry officials, conservationists have given up trying to persuade fisheries to take a hard line. The Fraser River Coalition earlier this year became the first private group to use the law to attempt a private prosecution of a company allegedly polluting the Fraser.

The Islands Protection Society and fisherman Thomas Apsey are now using the act to attempt to bring about what they feel is the logical conclusion to last summer's confrontation between fisheries and forestry officials at Riley Creek. Several loggers were arrested and the company was charged by fisheries officials for logging slopes that could potentially slide into the creek and harm salmon. The logging was sanctioned by the provincial forest service.

The arrests touched off a jurisdictional dispute between Ottawa and Victoria over resource control. Federal fisheries backed down. Logging continued and later in the year Riley Creek was hit with landslides.

By charging both federal and provincial officials, as well as the company, with violating the act, Islands Protection is hoping to establish that it is incumbent on both fisheries and forestry personnel to enforce the Fisheries Act. If they succeed, it could force serious re-examination of how the forest service analyzes. timber areas before cutting permits are issued, particularly in the steep slope regions which are becoming of increasing concern on the Charlottes.

Future prospects

If either Islands Protection or the Fraser Coalition can establish a precedent whereby an individual or society can successfully initiate court action for alleged Fisheries Act violations, it's likely that other suits will follow. For example, the Alcan proposal for the Kemano II hydro electric plant in west-central B.C. will supposedly affect salmon-bearing rivers including the Fraser. The Fisheries Act could stand as Kemano II opponents' last defence.

It will be months, maybe years before the courts settle any of these matters. And while Islands Protection members may lose a few more rounds, they, like the wind, won't go away. Initiation fees for this society are just too enduring. For people who have lived a spell on the Queen Charlottes, the beauty and the solitude becomes infectious, and worth preserving.

Fines not needed

If the government thinks that, by imposing fines instead of penalty points for traffic violations — especially speeding — it could dramatically reduce the number of motor vehicle accidents in B.C., they are probably seriously mistaken.

I am just as eager as anyone to reduce traffic accidents. But to accomplish that goal, I would rather pay slightly higher taxes to build better highways than fines to create a police state.

Consider the alternatives. Supposing the proposed draconian enforcement measures were to reduce traffic violations — and, according to the attorney-general's theory, traffic accidents — to near zero. What would Mr. Williams do with his bulging police forces then? Fire them? Support them at taxpayer expense? Doing what?

But if enlarged police forces ultimately failed to reduce traffic accidents, what would we have gained? What would be our attitude towards the law and its enforcers?

May I suggest that if the attorney-general is as concerned about reducing accidents as some of us taxpayers are, he should start investigating the causes of accidents. These are, most importantly, bad roads, dense traffic, and alcohol. No wonder low-speed city streets see far more accidents than high-speed highways. And no wonder B.C. has such a high accident rate, when it has no urban transit system worth mentioning, a high rate of alcohol consumption, and one of the most outdated and overcrowded highway systems in North America!

We don't need fines, Mr. Williams. We need informed and constructive statesmanship. — David F. Holm, 10 Price Road.

Fair assessments

I am surprised that so few of your readers appear concerned over the implications of basing property assessments on actual or market value. In effect, if someone, desperate for housing, buys a property in your area for a greatly inflated price, the chances are that it will result in an increase in your taxes.

The new system allows our local politicians to hide the true escalation of their tax demands by means of a steady, or even decreased, mill rate because of inflated assessments. In days of runaway inflation, such a system contains the seeds of financial disaster for homeowners. For an assessment system to be fair, it is only necessary to ensure like assessments for similar properties. The amount is unimportant, since it is only a base of calculation on which the mill rate will determine the tax payable. However, by giving our politicians two variables to play with, both assessed value and mill rate, we allow them to conceal fiscal irresponsibility.

I quote Mayor Watts of Oak Bay: "Council has been able to reduce the municipal rate by almost three mills. As a result of increased property value assessments, however, the actual municipal tax levy has increased by seven per cent. This figure remains considerably below the rate of inflation over the past year."

My taxes in Oak Bay have increased by 16.3 percent! In six years, they have increased by 87.5 percent, which hardly represents the rate of inflation for that period. We must return to fair, fixed assessments, and let the mill rate be the true indicator of how we are being taxed. To achieve this should not be beyond the competence of the B.C. Assessment Authority and those we elect to watch our interests. — T. de Faye, 3011 Foul Bay Road.

A better fate

I do not agree with your correspondent who thinks that efforts should be made to preserve the Princess Marguerite.

In the first place, such attempts are rarely successful; one has only to look at what has happened to the two "Marys." The beached, remodelled superstructure of the Princess Mary in Victoria bears small resemblance to the trim little steamer of that name which once plied these waters, and the gutted, ill-kept remains of the proud Queen Mary in Long Beach must surely sadden all who knew her in her prime. I suggest to your correspondent most sailors and ship-lovers would agree that the graveyard would have been preferable to this indignity.

And even if the Marguerite could be preserved as is, she is no longer the beautiful ship she was some 30 years ago. Age and alterations have taken a toll which no amount of gaudy paint can conceal.

Despite all this, perhaps a case could be made for preservation if the Marguerite were unique — the last of her kind. But she is not; CP still operates her twin sister. — J. Langley, Shawnigan Lake.

Welcome concern

The Ellensburg, Washington, High School Symphonic Choir was a recent visitor to Victoria, and participated in the Victoria Day celebrations.

We enjoyed our stay very much, and were treated very well by the staff in the housing division at the Unversity of Victoria, and by all with whom we had some contact. I assume that all of the people who have responsibilities dealing with visitors are used to being identified for their excellent work, but perhaps ours was just a bit unique as we were one of the groups from Eastern Washington who happened to be away from home during the mighty ash fall.

It became necessary, because of road closures into Eastern Washington, to stay in Victoria for a longer period of time than we had planned. I asked the University of Victoria housing and food service people about continuing our stay, and getting meals on "credit". Doris Bloomfield at the university was most sympathetic with our need and arranged to continue our rooms and arranged meals for the 47 of us. She also made it possible for us to have access to the gym and the swimming pool, which was a great assistance for 42 students.

In addition officials at the Greater Victoria Festival Society had started arrangements to house us in Victoria homes. Finally, Pete Stigings (who was band director at Claremont a few years back) had also heard of our plight, and he phoned to offer to billet us in the homes of his students in the Vancouver section of the Magee Secondary School. As you can see, there was an outpouring of sympathy and concern that was most heartily appreciated by all of us.

Finally, when it became apparent that we would have to find something to keep our minds off the unknown conditions in Ellensburg, and to what effect it had touched our relatives, I decided to look for some additional recreational activities. I called the Oak Bay Recreation Centre, and was referred to Linda Howard, who, upon hearing our situation, responded with courtesy passes for our students, so that they might roller skate and/or ice skate on that Tuesday night. As most of the students were running low on funds, it was a welcome response!

I believe it is important, in the days of so much controversy, to know that there are thousands of caring people in the world, and that we are blessed with meeting so many of them in the four days were were in Victoria. — Coyne G. Burnett, Choir Director, Ellensburg High School, Ellensburg, Washington.

Big reunion

Thank you for the part Victoria Times played in making the Oak Bay High School 1915-1980 Reunion the resounding success that it was. Your co-operation in publicizing the event over the past year generated great interest in the community and beyond, and your coverage of the weekend activites was excellent.

More than 4,000 former students, teachers, spouses and friends attended the three-day reunion, renewing friendships, meeting new friends and participating in a meaningful and memorable experience. It was the great number of former students and teachers brought together for this occasion which rekindled the warm feeling of belonging to the Oak Bay High family.

It might interest your readers to know that we publicized our reunion the length and breadth of Canada and contacted many former classmates and teachers through the letters to the editor column of daily and major weekly newspapers.

On behalf of the entire reunion committee we thank you for helping to make it happen. — Marjorie Payne, Chairman, Oak Bay High School Reunion Committee.

Prisoner freed

The Victoria group of Amnesty International has recently learned that one of their "adopted" prisoners of conscience has been released.

Rana Sayour, a Syrian student was arrested in his homeland in May, 1978. He was arrested on suspicion of membership in a Marxist organization and was detained without trial and sent to an unknown destination. His case was taken up by Amnesty International and given to the Victoria group for action.

Five members of A.I. have been writing letters on behalf of Rana Seyour since November, 1979. Each member has consistently written three letters a month. These letters went to the President of Syria, members of his government and Syrian representatives in Ottawa, and asked for the release of the prisoner.

Many, many letters are written by members of A.I. and nothing is heard, no answers are given, so it is a reason for rejoicing when even one prisoner is released. — Amnesty International, Victoria Group.

Victoria Landmarks

The beautiful grey stonework of the main entrance to the Legislative Buildings is andesite. This desirable building stone came from Mr. McDonald's 200-acre quarry on Haddington Island, Broughton Strait, off the northeast coast of Vancouver Island. The same material was used for the new library addition to the Legislative Buildings which was opened in 1915.

The stone was shipped to the McDonald and Wilson stoneworks at the corner of Montreal and Cross Streets, in Victoria, where a 60 ft. by 300 ft. building was equipped with one 20-ton crane, one five-ton crane, two gang saws, two surfacers, two compressors, several derricks and other items.

Ganite tools were found to be most serviceable for working the stone. Rotating discs were used to turn stone columns, and saws with six to 10 blades using a mixture of crushed steel and shot resulted in a cutting rate of eight inches per hour.

Stonecutters were paid $5 per eight-hour day and at peak production an average of 60 were employed. However, with the effects of the 1914-1918 war, operations practically ceased.

Important Victoria buildings displaying the Haddington Island stone are the Empress Hotel and the federal building housing the main post office. The stone was also used in several Vancouver banks and other buildings.

The Bloopies

Time for the annual Creative Advertising Copy Awards — the coveted "Bloopies," which are five and a half times cleaner than Annys or Grannys. Plus you don't have to go to the dinner.

- The Modern Spelling Association gold medul to Time Inc. for its full-page advertisement selling its cover about Interferon, the cancer drug: "Its current output of a few hundred milligrams a year is so miniscule . . . " The old-fashioned spelling is "minuscule," but trendy people are pronouncing it "mi-NIS-kyool," so what the hell. ("Hell," in this sense, is not begun with a majuscule letter.)

- The Highly Charged, Plugged-In Vogue Word Award to realtor Shannon & Luchs for its ad for a house in Bethesda, Md: "Exciting new contemporary in eclectric, beautifully wooded area." The combination of "eclectic" with "electric" is in the highest traditions, etc.

- The Raincoat-by-Any-Other-Name Prize to Barney's clothing store of New York, which called all men to a Burberry's "self-lined gentleman's walking coat," not only creating the first "self-lined gentleman" but introducing the first coat that walks right out of the store.

- The Bloodiest Blurb of the Year red sash to Cosmopolitan magazine for its teaser on a novel named Remains, beginning, "Decimated by the death of her adored and adoring husband . . . Joanna is bedeviled by terrifying events." Few heroines are reduced by one-tenth before the story begins.

- The Dime's-Worth-of-Difference pointy-headed statuette to ABC News for its headline in an ad picturing five presidential candidates: "What's the Difference Between Them?" The difference among them was never discovered.

- The Abel-Bodied Sweetness and Light, Triple-Tiered Sugar Cake to Triumph cigarettes for its proud copy line: "Triumph is raising cane with America's so-called 'low tars' and 'lights.' " Not since Cain slew his brother has this expression been given such a sugar coating. A marked triumph.

- The Simple Gold Watch for Candor in Advertising to the Chateau Jewelry Corporation for its ad for "The Octagon Piaget. Simplistically handsome."

- The Order of the Shrunken Headhunter to Booz Allen & Hamilton Inc. for its rejection of agreement of antecedents in a person-wanted ad: "The person we want probably spent their early career as a writer . . . " All the applicants wasted his time applying.

Runner-up in this category was the Xerox Corporation, which dramatized its recruitment needs with a help-wanted ad that began: "We seek a managing editor that can . . . "

- The Golden Shard for the Promulgation of Sentence Fragments to Lee A. Iacocca, chairman of the Chrysler Corporation (where he is called "The Iacocca"), for a manifesto which included such sentences as: "The alternative to a loan guarantee is not bankruptcy. For a very simple reason." And: "The loans will be repaid. With interest." Let's not hold. Our breath.

- The Ill-Tempered Clavichord Prize to Bloomingdale's for its neat creation of a new word: "Halston introduces the Well-Kempt Man." The previous opposite of "ill-kempt" was the archaic "kempt"; this new locution will appeal to both the gruntled and the couth.

- Finally, the Shoodastoodin Bed Award to Hill TV, of Rochester, N.Y., for the catchiest correction of the year: " CORRECTION : Due to a Typographical Error in Our Ad in Yesterday's Democrat & Chronicle and Times Union, Our Store Hours Were Stated Incorrectly and Should of Read . . . "

How come?

Ian Bell of London's Daily Telegraph has rapped my knuckles for using the phrase "how come" in a recent column. He is not alone: "The chastisements of my fourth-grade teacher for the use of that phrase," writes Judith Feldman of New York, "are still vivid in my memory. After all these years, am I to learn that 'how come' is an acceptable substitute for 'why' after all?"

The phrase's provenance was first treated by John Bartlett in his 1848 Dictionary of Americanisms: "How-come? Rapidly pronounced huc-cum, in Virginia. Doubtless an English phrase, brought over by the original settlers, and propagated even among the Negro slaves. The meaning is, How did what you tell me happen? How came it?"

How did "how come" come to be? Ted Bernstein, in The Careful Writer, cited a parallel use in Shakespeare's "How chance the roses there do fade so fast?" But he condemned "how come" as "out of place in good writing." Usagist Bergen Evans dismissed it as "used in speech but not in writing," and the Harper Dictionary of Contemporary Usage gives it a hard shove: "Acceptable as Informal idiom. It is not acceptable in Formal speech or writing."

I like "how come." It belongs in formal writing when it conveys a skepticism or challenge not necessarily found in the word "why." You can ask, "Why?" in all innocence, but you put a slight edge of distrust in your voice or writing when you ask, "How come?" The distinction is valid. I would use "how come" to connote doubt, but would not use it as a substitute for a neutral, nonskeptical, trustingly inquiring "why."

"Why" is nice; "how come" is nastier. As for you, Miss Feldman, how come you use "after all" twice in one sentence?

Contact sport

"Contact your travel agent," urges a foreign tourist board on television.

"I always thought if I were to do that, I would have to cover the agent with glue," responds A. Sock of New York in a recent letter. "Isn't that poor word 'contact' badly misused?"

Most of the people who fought the usage fight against the proliferation of "contact" have abandoned that rampart; they can be found fighting a rear-guard action on "hopefully," and will lose that one, too. (Let's all move over to "implement" and "impact on.")

"Contact" is rooted in the Latin tangere, to touch. Everyone accepts "get in touch with" — so what's the big fuss about "contact," which means the same thing? The brouhaha (from the Hebrew "Blessed be he who enters") was stirred by the sudden appearance of the verb "to contact" as an Americanism more than a generation ago and its avid adoption by businessmen. When a new usage, with impeccable etymology, slowly comes on stage, it is tolerated and finally welcomed, but when it comes on like "Gangbusters," it is properly ridiculed.

The legitimate arguments against "contact" were (1) its vogue use, which always merits chastisement, and (2) its vagueness — did it mean "telephone" or "meet with" or "write" or "have telepathic communication with"? (The argument was mainly with the verb; the noun "contact" — meaning a person of influence with whom the speaker is acquainted — was instantly seen as precise and useful.)

The vogue use has diminished; the people who said, "I'll contact you," just to strut in the verbal fashion, have now turned to "I'll be back to you." The verb "to contact" is still deliberately fuzzy, but no more so than "I'll be in touch with you," its lengthier counterpart. In much the same way that the fuzzy "indicated" is used instead of "said," the verb "contact" is a favorite of lawyers who want their clients to avoid perjury — its imprecision is its value. Similarly, television advertisers may not want their audience to feel constrained to respond in any specific way, and "contact your local travel agent" nicely encompasses "write, telephone or walk over to your nearest travel agent and grab him by the lapels."

Sorry, Mr. Sock. "Contact" has fought its way into standard usage. The word still lends itself to fads — "Contact!" was the shout to early aviators, and "contact sport" is tossed about today to describe touch dancing on the gridiron. These fade, but the simple expression rooted in the metaphor of individuals reaching out and feeling each other is with the language for good. Use it without shame, and stay in touch.

Africans versus Africans

JOHN PEER NUGENT

(A former Africa bureau chief for Newsweek magazine, Nugent is writing a novel on southern Africa. He wrote this for The Los Angeles Times)

If the United States ever seriously entertained getting in on the 19th century colonial grab in Africa, it was at a region once known as the Grain Belt of the continent's west coast.

It was there in 1816 that the American Colonization Society started shipping American black freedmen to promote a back-to-Africa movement for less-than-noble reasons. The place became known as Liberia, its capital Monrovia (after President James Monroe).

Liberia became Africa's first independent republic in 1847. Ironically, the major power most responsible for creating it didn't recognize it for 15 years. Washington feared the social implications of having black ambassadors in the capital.

Washington has much bigger worries now in a country that is a major U.S. suppplier of both rubber and iron ore, and that has long been America's closest ally on the African scene.

Last month's coup d'etat there turned into the kind of bloody horror story that the late Robert Ruark would have gleefully cobbled into a novel. The machine-gun, gangland-style execution of 13 Liberian cabinet members is causing repercussions far beyond the nation's borders. The senseless brutality of Samuel Kanyon Doe, the 28-year-old master sergeant who is now head of state (the youngest in Africa), has given the entire continent a bad name.

It's not just that the corporal who disemboweled the late president, William Tolbert Jr., has been made a brigadier-general for his skill with a bayonet. Nor is it that Doe now sports a $1,000 Omega watch lifted off Tolbert's wrist and conducts meetings with aides in the boudoir of the presidential palace while lounging on Tolbert's double bed, staring at the ceiling while figuring out who next should be tied to the seaside telephone poles for execution without trial for " . . . gross violation of human and constitutional rights . . . "

The butchery that accomplished the overthrow plays right into the hands of pro-apartheid South African whites. It couldn't be better; it reaffirms their conviction that black Africans are born-again barbarians. The South African government relishes the horror stories that are, sadly, too often the product of the black African rule.

The habits of the Amins and Bokassas make the headlines in Johannesberg, and are the subject of conversations during halftime at soccer games. The Afrikaaners would much prefer to note that a British woman was gang-raped in Monrovia during the turmoil than to mention that Zimbabwe gained independence recently with no rapes at all. What Doe did, and allowed to happen in the gore department, is just what Pretoria needs to keep its whites from believing that black-majority rule might someday work.

Doe seems oblivious to what he has done to Africa. He is mostly concerned with whipping around the capital in a Mercedes Benz convoy, showing his many admirers how smartly he wears the ceremonial sword of state and his beret at a rakish angle. Yet in one week he had executed both the chairman of the Organization of African Unity (Tolbert) as well as one of Africa's most respected diplomats (Foreign Minister Cecil Dennis).

London's conservative Daily Mail reported that "Tolbert had run Liberia the kind of way Capone ran Chicago. The new man Doe was still looking for a comparison. It could turn out to be Attila the Hun."

Indeed, Doe's timing couldn't have been worse for black Africa's — as well as much of the Western world's growing expectations for a positive image internationally after the topplings of such tyrants as Amin, Bokassa and Macias Nguema Biyogo, the return of civilian rule to Ghana and Nigeria, and the end of black-white hostilities in Zimbabwe.

His actions also again underlined the apprehension of many a multinational corporation, possessing the investment capital that can help Third World countries move beyond their subsistence economies, over going into countries where violence seems the only way to bring about a change in government. To such businesses, Africa's greatest problem no longer has much to do with the scars of colonialism. It's black versus black; it's tribalism.

On a continent where 800 languages are spoken and where there are double that figure in tribes, the events in Liberia showed that not a few African leaders have replaced the hatred of the white tribe with that of any opposition black tribe.

It is ironic how former slaves in Africa have decided to enslave their own people.

Angola struggles for identity

By DAVID LAMB

LUANDA, Angola — An American and a Soviet journalist were walking together through the garbage-strewn streets of downtown Luanda the other day.

When they passed beneath an effigy of President Jimmy Carter hanging above an abandoned store, the Russian paused, looked up and said with relish, "imperialist."

The American smiled and shrugged. The Russian seemed disappointed that he had not drawn a more emotional response and walked on in silence. But in this destitute and dispirited land, there is very little to get emotional about, and neither Moscow nor Washington can take much pride in what it has done or is doing here.

Once a prosperous Portuguese colony, Angola has gone into rapid economic decline under Soviet guidance. It chased out the colonialists only to find a new foreign master. And although some of its leaders may be dedicated Marxists, the great majority of the people have no ideology. They merely follow orders.

Much of Angola's meagre energies are devoted to politics, and the often-heard slogans and jargon seem irrelevant to the complex economic and social problems facing the country.

But if Angola maintains its close ties with the Soviet Union, it should not surprise Washington. At every turn, the United States has taken positions that have reconfirmed Angola's suspicions — and, in some cases, hatred — of the West. U.S. attitudes toward Angola have served only to push the west African country further into the Soviet sphere.

In 1962, Agostinho Neto, leader of the guerrilla movement that, 13 years later, came to power as a Marxist government, travelled to Washington to seek Western understanding and to diminish his Communist image. But no one paid much attention to him.

That same year, the United States voted for a UN resolution criticizing Portugal's colonial rule in Africa. But then, presumably because Washington wanted continued access to Lajes air Base in the Azores, Presidents John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon both strengthened U.S. support for Portugal and voted with the Portuguese on most issues involving colonialism.

In 1975, on the eve of independence, the United States was supporting two tribally based but pro-Western guerrilla groups battling Neto's Soviet-equipped and Cuban-led army.

The United States is one of the few Western governments not to have recognized Angola. The reason, it says, is the continued presence of 20,000 Cuban troops. But Angola is not much more dependent on them than Ethiopia is on the Cubans, Djibouti on the French or Zaire on the Belgians.

Although Western sympathies still lie largely with UNITA, an anti-government guerrilla group still fighting the Marxist regime, most Western diplomats here believe that the ruling party, MPLA, the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, has proved itself to be the legitimate representative of the Angolan people.

MPLA controls the country's mineral wealth. Its social services, however inadequate, extend throughout the country. Its power base is multi-racial and national, not tribal. Equally important, despite a bloody attempted coup in May 1978, the MPLA achieved something last September that few African governments have managed — a smooth transfer of power upon the death of a president.

Neto's death in Moscow of cancer did not usher in a new era in Angola. It only ensured the continuation of his policies and, in his final months, Neto had been moving toward negotiations with the UNITA guerrillas and had been seeking closer contact with the West.

The United States has been unwilling or unable to respond to those initiatives.

A stable and peaceful Angola will mean that the government can start concentrating on economic development. For that, it will have to look to the West. In the process, if it follows the course of other struggling African nations, it will become more pragmatic and less ideological. Eventually the slogans become fewer and the portraits of foreign leaders start coming down.

Only then will Angola be able to consider the implementation of a system that is truly African and free from outside manipulation.

WHY IS THE SHOCKS AND BRAKES SPECIAL GOOD VALUE?

If your shocks are damaged, the "roll" of your tires is thrown out of line. The end result is uneven and faster tire wear. And we know how expensive that can be.

Poor shocks can also increase your gas consumption, because of irregular and unnecessary body sway.

Brakes, too, will contribute to uneven tire wear, if they are worn or improperly adjusted. All wheels must brake at the same time to maintain even tire wear.

These are just a few examples of why we say the Shocks and Brakes Special is a good investment in assuring a proper life for your tires. See your participating Texaco retailer displaying the above pole sign, and ask for full details. Prices apply to most passenger cars.

today's markets

Toronto

The Toronto stock market was sharply higher in active mid-afternooon trading today.

Trading in shares of Bonanza Oil and Gas Ltd., which was halted at the opening, resumed at 1 p.m. and by 2 p.m. the stock was unchanged at $11¼.

Bonanza said it has reached an agreement in principle with Chilco Resources Ltd. to acquire all of that company's outstanding shares. Chilco shareholders would receive $3.40 a share or one Bonanza share in exchange for three and one-third Chilco shares.

Trading in shares of IU International Ltd., which was also halted at the opening, resumed at 12:45 p.m. and by 2 p.m. the stock was down ⅝ at $18⅛.

Turbo Resources A was off ⅞ to $25⅛, Mitel Corp. ⅞ to $24½.

Vancouver

Prices were up in heavy trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. Volume at 11 a.m. PDT was 2,782,032 shares.

Of the stocks that traded, 188 advanced, 102 declined and 166 remained unchanged.

B.C. Resources Investment Corp. led trading in the industrials, dropping .02 to $6.10 on 37,855 shares and Daon Development Corp. was unchanged at $7½ on 2,300. Keg Restaurants gained .10 to $2.85 on 1,400 and Balco Industries dropped ⅛ to $7⅜ on 1,150. Renn Industries was steady at $1.40 and Proflex Ltd. was unchanged at .24.

On the resource and development board, International Brenmac Development gained .10 to $1.83 on 107,000 shares and International Brenmac Warrants rose .05 to .55 on 65,100. Silver Standard advanced .09 to $1.79 on 44,150 and Northair Mines Ltd. gained .45 to $4.75 on 42,800. United Westland Warrants gained .02 to .87 and Lincoln Resources gained .87½ to $7.25.

New York

Stock prices were mixed today, as a rally that had pushed the market to a three-month high was halted.

A small St. Louis bank, Southwest Bank, cut its prime lending rate to 12 per cent from the 13 per cent charged by most banks, and there were predictions that interest rates in general will continue to fall.

With gold prices rising above $620 an ounce and the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meeting in Algiers to try to reach agreement on an oil price increase, both precious metals and oil stocks were strong.

Hecla Mining was up 3⅜ to $35⅝, ASA 1¾ to $47⅜ and Dome Mines 2 to $79¾. Among the oils, Standard of California was up ¼ to $74⅝, Atlantic Richfield ⅞ to $95¾ and Mobil 1¾ to $75½.

Gulf and Western, which last week announced plans to market a new battery system for electric cars, was the early volume leader on the NYSE. It was down ⅛ to $17⅝.

London

The Financial Times index was up 5.3 at 433.8.

Golds and industrials were higher while oils were mixed.

Canadian stocks were mixed.

Gold price heading for $750?

OTTAWA (CP) — Gold should hit $750 (U.S.) an ounce in the next 12 months, a currency and precious metals expert predicts.

However, Stephen Harvey, senior vice-president and general manager of Deak Canada Ltd., a company that specializes in trading foreign currencies and precious metals, told the Rotary Club of Ottawa the price of gold probably will not rise as rapidly as it did between September and January when it climbed to a record $850 (U.S.) an ounce.

Gold closed Monday at $560 (U.S.) an ounce on rumors of troubles in the Middle East and southern Africa.

Harvey said gold is the ideal hedge against inflation because it is durable, internationally accepted and easily marketed.

He criticized the government for taking the Canadian dollar off the gold standard, for printing too much money and for creating the large federal deficit — all of which have hurt the currency's value.

Japanese economy booming

TOKYO (Reuter) — The Japanese economy maintained its strong growth in fiscal 1979 despite hefty oil-price increases and accelerating domestic inflation, it was announced here.

The Economic Planning Agency said Japan's total gross national product, the market value of the country's goods and services, rose by 6.1 per cent in the financial year that ended last March after a 5.7-per-cent annual gain in fiscal 1978.

Japan, which has the second largest non-Communist economy after the United States, had a GNP of $550 billion in fiscal 1979 in real terms after allowing for inflation, now running at a rate of about eight per cent.

The 6.1-per-cent rise for the year — the highest among major industrial democracies — was marginally higher than an official government forecast of a six-per-cent gain, which was revised downwards from about 6.3 per cent last December after a spate of oil price increases.

Christian Science Monitor

The electronic mail system at Manufacturers Hanover Trust paid an extra dividend during a recent New York City subway strike when a few of the bank's key executives could not get to work.

From their homes, hotels or temporary offices, they used electronic machines that look something like typewriters and are called "portable word-processing terminals" to plug into the electronic mail transfer system used by the bank. As a result, their flow of information suffered very little from the strike.

Businessmen, faced with masses of paper work, rapidly are turning to electronic mail systems to reduce costs. With approximately half of the U.S. labor force engaged in services or moving information, potential productivity gains for the economy are huge.

An electronic mail system has three basic components: a central or "base" computer that serves as the "mailbox"; word processors, which either can be small and mobile like portable typewriters or large and stationary like those at airport reservation counters, and the telephone system.

The transfer of a message occurs when a user attaches a telephone receiver to the acoustic couplers on a word processor and then dials the telephone number of the base computer. The computer recognizes an individual code when the user types on the word processor.

The user then has access to the memory of the computer and can send messages to the main "mailbox." These messages may be picked up by anyone with similar access to the computer. The user also can receive messages on his terminal's display screen.

This all happens in the amount of time it takes to make a phone call. Since the computer can take many messages at a time, the chances of getting a busy number are slim. Moreover, the computer always is "at home." And it is this facet of electronic mail that proponents say is its greatest help for productivity.

American Telephone & Telegraph reports that about 72 percent of all business telephone calls are not completed when first placed.

Kathy Richards, an office automation specialist with Bechtel Power Corp. in San Francisco, Calif., asks: "Can you afford a two-hour delay on a multimillion-dollar construction project because the project manager can't be reached by telephone?"

Bechtel now is able to leave the "mailbox" messages from the home office to the field for any of its nationwide construction projects. A manager can check in on his terminal on a regular basis, or whenever he has the opportunity. The company plans to develop a worldwide "mail" system for its offices and projects.

Besides improving the flow of information, Bechtel's electronic mail system also solved a storage problem caused by the large volume of written correspondence. The company found that its home office was generating 100,000 pages of text a month, or two file cabinets per home office worker. It would need four floors of office space at an annual cost of $1 million to store this paper output.

But when it stored the paper work in minicomputers linked by electronic mail, it could store and retrieve 1 million pieces of mail while taking up no more office space per user than a standard TV set. A similar volume of paper mail would fill 50 file cabinets.

Robert Dickinson, Exxon's manager of office systems technology, found that the paper load before the introduction of an electronic mail system was such that one memo at corporate headquarters generated 50 more pieces within the United States and 19 internationally. Three years ago, he found, 95 percent of Exxon communication began as longhand.

Gov't work for small firms

CALGARY (CP) — The federal government will ensure that small and medium-sized Canadian businesses get a greater share of federal contracts, says Ralph Ferguson.

Ferguson, Liberal MP for Lambton-Middlesex and parliamentary secretary to the minister of small business, told a local chamber of commerce meeting that specific action will include breaking up large contracts into pieces that smaller firms can handle.

There would also be information programs to make smaller businesses aware of opportunities in such contracts and in the supply of goods that now are imported.

Noting that small businesses are overwhelmingly Canadian-owned and provide 42 per cent of the nation's jobs, Ferguson added:

"The private sector is the best force we Canadians have for the diversification of our economy. . . among Canadians you are the most dynamic, the people with ideas, the people who take risks."

Declaring that "you have a friend in the federal cabinet," Ferguson said Small Business Minister Charles Lapointe is working to reduce the red-tape burden on business and is seeking to expand his tape-cutting mandate to include general deregulation.

'79 oil exploration spending rises 24%

CALGARY (CP) — Total spending in the exploration and production sector of the petroleum industry reached $13.55 billion in 1979, up 24 per cent from the previous year, the Canadian Petroleum Association says.

Spending was $550 million more than total revenues from the sale of crude oil, natural gas and gas byproducts.

Association chairman Jack MacLeod told a news conference the industry reinvested, in capital and exploration programs, 110 per cent of the cash available from producing operations after payment of operating costs, royalties and taxes.

To finance the total 1979 undertaking, the industry increased its long-term debt, generated funds from new equity issues and used proceeds from drilling funds.

MacLeod added Canada's capacity to produce crude oil from established conventional reserves and existing oil sands projects is on an irreversible decline, "which means ever increasing dependence on crude oil imports until new indigenous supplies can be found and developed."

Machinery industry in slump

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — Canada's machinery industry is in a slump even though domestic demand is booming, says the chairman of the Machinery and Equipment Manufacturers Association of Canada.

Hugh Marshall said that while the domestic market grew by $4.2 billion in the past two years, sales by Canadian companies grew by only $600 million.

"In other words, we were only successful in getting 14 per cent of the growth in our domestic market in the last two years," Marshall said in a speech prepared for delivery at the association's annual convention.

He said Canada produces only 23 per cent of the machinery it needs, the lowest percentage of any industrialized country.

Banks move into cash management

TORONTO (CP) — Banks will be expanding into non-credit commercial services in the 1980s, says the president and chief executive officer of the Bank of Montreal.

William D. Mulholland said cash management services for corporations is a new field that will be growing rapidly.

The Bank of Montreal currently offers a cash management program to corporations. For one standby fee, corporate treasurers are given a number of options in the use of surplus funds.

Mulholland said in a recent interview that the program offers corporations an alternative to the commercial paper market and "means we don't have to abandon completely customers who want to use the money market."

Brascan purchase complete

VANCOUVER (CP) — Western Mines Ltd. reports it has completed purchase of Brascan Resources Ltd.

Western said in a news release that its shareholders approved the acquisition by 77 per cent. Brascan, which owned 50.2 per cent of the outstandings shares of Western, voluntarily abstained from voting its stock.

Western said it will issue one million Class A preferred shares to Great Lakes Power Corp. for all the shares of Brascan.

At the completion of the transfer there will be 16,837,104 common shares of Western oustanding after deducting the 2,717,593 shares of Western which will be acquired as part of the assets of Brascan.

Brascan is engaged in exploration of oil and gas in Western Canada, the Yukon, the Beaufort Sea and off the Eastern Canada coast.

It also has coal holdings in Alberta and B.C.

Molson profits jump

TORONTO (CP) — The Molson Cos. Ltd. had higher profits in 1979 than in the previous year and results for 1980 should be even better, James Black, president and chief executive officer, said.

Black said in a statement the Molson group's net income for the year ended March 31 rose to $50.9 million or $3.65 a share from $44.1 million or $3.20 a share in 1979.

Revenues increased 16.2 per cent to $1.4 billion. The company announced an increase in the quarterly dividend to 36 cents a share from 33 cents, payable July 1 to shareholders of record June 9.

"It is clear that the economies of Canada, the United States and other countries will achieve only low economic growth in the coming year," Black said.

"However, we believe that our businesses will prove to be relatively resistant to the impact of an economic slowdown."

All four major companies within the Molson group had profit gains last year, Black said.

Sales of Molson Breweries of Canada Ltd. in Montreal rose 18.8 per cent to $685.2 million. The company had the leading market share in Canada at the end of the year.

Beaver Lumber Co. Ltd. of Winnipeg had a modest increase in profits because of higher operating costs and softness in the retail market but sales revenues grew 13.6 per cent to $334.2 million.

The Diversey Corp. of Chicago, Ill., which makes cleaning and sanitizing compounds, had sales revenues of $239.7 million, an increase of 24 per cent.

Willson Office Specialty Ltd. of Toronto returned to profitability and sales gained 15.3 per cent to $93.5 million.

Broker fined

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal Stock Exchange said Wednesday it has levied a fine of $7,000 and costs against one of its members, Walwyn Stodgell Cochran Murray Ltd., after a disciplinary committee ruled the firm "did not use reasonable care" in obtaining the best price on orders placed last autumn on the Toronto Stock Exchange for five clients.

All you want to know — and more

By ESTELLE DORAIS

OTTAWA (CP) — While English-Canadians are enthusiastic buyers of books from book clubs, their French-speaking counterparts have lost interest in the scheme, says a massive marketing research handbook released by Statistics Canada.

In 1977, book club sales more than doubled to $7.6 million, 58.1 per cent higher than 1976, in English Canada, while they slumped to a negligible figure from 1976's $10,000 in French Canada.

The book club sales statistics are among thousands listed in the 798-page book designed to serve as a reference for those analyzing markets on a local, provincial and national scale.

Figures given are for the latest year for which they are available, usually 1978 or 1977.

A handy index at the back is a new feature to the annual publication and lists subjects as varied as architects' offices to separated persons, commercial failures and vital statistics.

Skimming through the wealth of data, one finds the 1978 death rate was lowest in the opposite ends of the country.

According to an index with a base year of 1976 set at 100, British Columbia's death rate is lowest at 89.6, down from 1977's 91.0.

New Brunswick had the highest death rate in 1978 at 104, up from 99.7.

The national average was 101.4 and, other than New Brunswick, only Quebec and Ontario had rates higher than that at 102.1 each.

Per capita alcohol sales in 1978 were highest in the Yukon at $410.50, of which hard liquor accounted for the highest spending at $200.40.

Lowest per capita alcohol sales were in New Brunswick where sales were equivalent to $138.10 for every man, woman and child.

The most dramatic increases occurred in British Columbia where per capita wine sales soared 28 per cent and in Prince Edward Island, where wine sales rose 24.3 per cent.

Households with one black-and-white television numbered 3.34 million, or 45.7 per cent, in 1978, a drop of four per cent from a year earlier. The number of households with no black-and-white set rose 12.5 per cent to 3.5 million.

Conversely, the number of households without a color television dropped 11.5 per cent to two million. In 1978, 4.8 million, or 65.7 per cent of all households had one color set.

In 1978, 65.9 per cent of households had one telephone, 30.6 per cent had two or more and a die-hard 3.5 per cent had none.

Per capita spending in restaurants was $115.87 in 1978, a rise of 8.6 per cent from 1977. Biggest spenders were Quebecers who spent $131.69 for every man, woman and child, while Newfoundlanders spurned the custom of eating out with per capita spending of only $35.65.

Restaurants raked in $2.72 billion in sales in 1978, up 9.5 per cent from 1977.

Finally, a look at tax revenues shows that in 1978, the federal government collected $13.56 billion in personal income taxes, a drop of 8.1 per cent from 1977, and $5.82 billion in corporation income taxes, an increase of 8.4 per cent. But private individuals accounted for 34.7 per cent of all federal tax revenues, while corporations paid 14.9 per cent.

N.S. Grits elect new party chief

HALIFAX (CP) — A.M. (Sandy) Cameron, a bland but astute rural politician who prides himself on being a farm boy, won the Nova Scotia Liberal party leadership in three ballots Sunday.

The 41-year-old member of the legislature for Guysborough led all the way, establishing a comfortable lead in the first ballot and building on it in the two following ballots.

He defeated Vince MacLean of Sydney, 558 votes to 356, in the third and final ballot. Ken MacInnis of Dartmouth was eliminated after the first ballot and Fraser Mooney of Yarmouth went down after the second.

The results were no surprise. The order of elimination was widely predicted since early in the campaign.

The official results of the three ballots were:

Cameron 340 412 558
MacLean 244 317 356
Mooney 192 187
MacInnis 138.

The convention was called to replace Gerald Regan, who resigned as opposition leader in January to return to federal politics.

N-protesters not there just to rant

By JOHN VALORZI

NEWCASTLE, Ont. (CP) — Protester — the word conjures up images of bearded hippies, misfits and malcontents, unified by a desire to bring down the established order.

But if the protesters who appeared Saturday at the Darlington nuclear power plant are any indication, that's far from the truth.

Of the 1,000 people who attended the protest at the plant 48 kilometres east of Toronto, few came just to shout. They were there to communicate an idea.

Many drew from the protest a sudden revival of hope. For others, the words, speeches and actions of the participants, which included occupying the plant site, had the opposite effect, confirming their own beliefs that the system is corrupt.

It was the second successive year in which protesters were arrested for scaling the fences and trespassing on Ontario Hydro property. Last year, 66 were arrested and some kept in jail for several days. On Saturday, 117 were arrested and given $13 citations for petty trespassing.

Why do people attend such a rally?

WHY POISON
NO

Anti-nuclear demonstrators gathering outside the Darlington plant in Newcastle

"I'm here because nuclear energy is the only thing people seem to be motivated about now," said Ron Stimson, 32, of Durham, N.C., who participated in his first demonstration in 1965. "It gets me believing in something positive again."

"To me, the nuclear issue is 100 times more important than all that anti-war stuff. If we don't put some controls on the nuclear industry a lot of people will end up dead. It sure as hell won't mean a thing then to say: 'You see, we told you so'."

Stimson said today's anti-nuclear protesters are more dedicated and more aware of what it takes to affect change than those in the anti-war movement of the 1960s.

"We learned something back then. Ranting and raving brought attention to the war but once it ended, everything was forgotten. Most of the groups disbanded because there was no more interest."

That's why it is important to carry on momentum by working through the political and educational systems, as well as demonstrating, he said.

"The problem is that despite what happened at Three Mile Island, most people still want to believe the industry is safe."

Jay Lifton, a Yale University psychiatry professor recently wrote that men and women cannot survive the immense psychic overload of anxiety caused by the existence of nuclear power.

"Most people can't cope with the fear that things aren't safe," said Dr. Rosalie Bertell, a Roman Catholic nun from the pacifist Roswell Institute of New York.

"Because you feel you can't control the reality of nuclear power, you shut it out of your mind. But it takes more energy to do that than to cope with the danger."

Kai Millyard, 22, a energy researcher for the Toronto-based environmental group Energy Probe and spokesman for the Non-Nuclear Network, which organized the protest, agreed that educating the public about nuclear energy is the key.

"We're looking at things in the long term. Right now we just see ourselves as expressing the general mood with a greater degree of determination. Eventually our ideas will become those of the majority."

But will such protests have any effect on government policy or people's attitudes?

John Bennett, an organizer of the network, said society works on symbols and it is a symbol such as the simple occupation of the Darlington site which is significant.

Lesa Thorne, 18, of Brockville, summed up the feelings of a dedicated and optimistic environmentalist.

"I wouldn't be here if I thought it didn't do any good. I don't do this just for kicks or because it's faddish. I honestly believe we can change things.

"Demonstrations by themselves won't change people's attitudes. But they don't hurt. They help you make contacts with other groups and that's the best way to make the movement international."

Only in Victoria,
you say.

It is only rarely that a residence such as pictured above becomes available for purchase.
Built at the turn of the century for the privileged gentry of the time, it is located in the luxurious Uplands district of Victoria, B.C.
Three fireplaces enhance the main floor which consists of a sun room, a planetarium, a parlour, a library, a large kitchen (with pantry), a business room, a magnificent master bedroom, and a spacious dining room with a built-in buffet.
On the second floor are five large, fully carpeted bedrooms.
The third floor, originally servant's quarters, is spacious (820 sq. ft.) and well lit. It would be an ideal studio.
The list of features is extensive. Inside: bay windows, elegant wall coverings, original brass fixtures, leaded stained glass windows, doors with hand cut glass, beamed ceilings, hardwood floors, plush imported carpeting. Outside: beautiful landscaping a heritage tree, a green house, a double garage and a gazebo.
This home must be seen to be fully appreciated. It is character luxury at its finest and is of irreplaceable value.
We, at Knowles Realty Ltd., are exclusive agents for this property.
Mr. Al Swetnam would like to hear from serious parties who will be making offers on this residence at the asking price of $675,000.

Deaf actress wins Tony

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — For veteran director Harold Prince, it was yet another Tony, his 14th. For actress Phyllis Frelich, it was her first, and she couldn't hear the applause when she got it.

She's been deaf since birth. But her shining eyes said it all Sunday night when she won Broadway's top honor as best actress for her performance in Children of a Lesser God.

Prince, who holds the record for Tonys, his last being for Sweeney Todd in 1979, accepted No. 14 for his direction of Evita, the musical about Argentina's controversial Eva Peron.

But Miss Frelich seemed near tears of joy as she accepted her Tony for Children, the drama about a deaf woman who falls in love with her teacher. John Rubinstein, who plays the teacher, also won a Tony, as best actor in a drama.

Miss Frelich made her acceptance speech in sign language with her husband, Robert Steinberg, translating for her. She began by thanking New Mexico State University, "Where we began."

The school is where Children author Mark Medoff, chairman of the drama department, brought Miss Frelich and her husband for the first work on what became a critically acclaimed Broadway play.

So it was a happy night for her, but it was a night of disappointment for Mickey Rooney, 59, nominated for a Tony for his work in Sugar Babies, an affectionate salute to old-time burlesque.

The nod for best actor in a musical went to Jim Dale of Britain, star of the musical Barnum, about the legendary showman P. T. Barnum. Dale was nominated several years ago for Scapino but didn't win.

Evita, an English import written by Jesus Christ Superstar authors Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber, was heavily favored to win after getting the most Tony nominations — 11 — last month.

And win it did, with its star, Patti LuPone honored as best actress, and the show getting Tonys for best book, best score and best lighting, in addition to best musical and best direction.

In musicals, Mandy Patinkin, Che Guevara in Evita, and Priscilla Lopez of A Day in Hollywood, A Night in the Ukraine won their first Tonys as featured players.

In drama, David Rounds won for his featured-player work in Morning's at Seven, with Dinah Manoff picked as best featured actress in Neil Simon's new comedy, I Ought To Be In Pictures.

A best-director Tony went to Vivian Matalon for Morning's at Seven, which also won as Broadway's best revival. A comedy about four sisters in a small town, it flopped its first time out on Broadway in 1939 but reopened this season to critics' cheers.

The Tonys, named after the late Antoinette Perry, executive director of the American Theatre Wing, were voted on by more than 500 New York theatre professionals and journalists in secret balloting.

Fame didn't bring happiness

WINNIPEG (CP) — Folksinger Dan Hill says the fame and success he achieved with his hit song Sometimes When We Touch didn't make him a happy man.

"It was a strange period in my life," he said in an interview before his show Sunday at the Centennial Concert Hall. "I wouldn't call it the happiest year of my life, but it certainly was the most dramatic."

After the enormous success of the song that topped the charts in just about every English-speaking country, Hill found the constant touring, television dates and media attention gruelling.

When it was over, he took a year off.

"I was working so hard doing so many concerts that I felt I was losing touch with myself and my writing."

During that year, Hill, a Toronto bachelor, taught himself to play piano and wrote a lot of new material, much of which is in his new album If Dreams Had Wings.

His Winnipeg appearance is part of his first tour since taking a rest.

The image is of a lone figure in concert, perched warily on a stark chair, playing gentle ballads on a well-travelled acoustic guitar.

In sharp contrast, he appears on this tour playing rock and roll with a four-piece band.

"I'm never going to be an out-and-out rock 'n' roller — that would be against my personality. I think you've got to follow your essences in this kind of game. But, without a doubt, I'm expanding, developing."

Hollywood haberdashery: quirky, and costly

scott's world

by vernon scott

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — One of Beverly Hills' leading haberdashery-tailor establishments specializes in the quirky business of providing wardrobes for Hollywood's leading men at exceedingly fancy prices.

The quirky aspects involve the personal idiosyncracies of actors, their sometimes horrendous physiques which must be made to look perfect and the lack of time involved.

But Dorso, named for owner-founder Richard Dorso, tackles every challenge the movies bring to the shop.

A former agent, producer, network executive and screenwriter, Dorso understands the movie business so well he has written a novel, Thicker Than Water, a genuine insider's examination of the movie business.

His exclusive shop does not rely on movie wardrobe business, but providing costumes for films certainly breaks up the monotony of day-to-day commerce.

"We can do something no one else in this business can do," said Dorso, 70, a slender man of Italian extraction. "We can outfit a star from scratch in an incredibly short time.

"For example, (producer) Blake Edwards came to me for 30 outfits — four or five duplicates of each — for George Segal to wear in the movie 10. We fitted George and ran up the suits, sports jackets, shirts and slacks.

"Then, two weeks before the picture was to begin, Blake called to say Segal was no longer going to be in the picture. He had signed Dudley Moore as a replacement.

"Blake told me to duplicate everything for Dudley that I'd tailored for George. Dudley is a great guy but he's also at least six inches shorter than Segal. That meant I had to tailor more than 100 garments in 14 days.

"It was impossible. So I got a shooting schedule and made the clothes as the picture went along. Believe me, Dudley was really well dressed.

"Another producer, Steve Shagin, called about his picture, The Formula. He wanted me to dress Marlon Brando to look as if he were the head of an enormous multi-national oil cartel.

"The catch was I had only one day to fit Brando, who insisted it be done at his house in the hills. The day after the fitting Brando left for Tahiti for two weeks and wouldn't return until the picture was ready to start.

"We made six suits in size 50. The shirts had 18-inch necks. Two days before the picture started he came in for his second fitting. I had to work two tailors all day and night over a weekend to meet the deadline."

Dorso can't begin to recall how many films he and his partner, Norman Mitchell, have worked on since opening the shop a decade ago.

Among some of the stars for whom he provided wardrobe were Al Pacino in Bobby Deerfield, for which he made 27 outfits in five days. The clothes had to be made from a model and were horrendously costly.

It was easier dressing Dustin Hoffman for Straight Time. Hoffman is a regular customer. So are Steve McQueen, Paul Newman, Bob Newhart, Don Rickles, Jack Lemmon, Walter Matthau, Sidney Poitier, Sean Connery and Richard Harris.

Dorso's clothes don't have a fixed or special look as, say, Brooks Brothers. But he did create the popular leisure jacket or safari jacket the first year he left show business for men's fashions.

"The leisure jacket isn't as popular as it was," he said, laughing. "At first they were worn by all the leading men in all kinds of roles. A few years back I knew we were in trouble when the villain was shot wearing one.

"My clothes are mostly contemporary fashion with an English hacking coat look.

"But you can't really talk about fashion these days as you could when leading actors dressed elegantly — Robert Taylor, Robert Montgomery, Cary Grant, Fred Astaire and David Niven.

"Today's lifestyles are different. Jeans, T-shirts and sweaters are big items. They're worn by Clint Eastwood, Bob DeNiro, Al Pacino and others.

"Men dress to express who they are, as women have done for years. California is way ahead of New York fashion designs in new, non-conforming styles. The style emancipation for men began right here in Hollywood.

"Clothes should be fun and give you security. But a man can feel insecure no matter what he's wearing when he's invited to a Hollywood party and the hostess says dress will be informal.

"You guess wrong at least 50 percent of the time. If you wear a suit, more than half the guys there will be in slacks and sweaters or open shirts and blue jeans. Or vice versa.

"There is no fixed style for men or women in this town. It's all self-expression. Whether it's a tailored three-piece suit or blue jeans, the clothes make a statement for the man wearing them.

EVERY IMPRESSION SAYS THEY SHOULD COST MORE.

The styling is tight and concise. And everything fits into place. That's the immediate thing you notice when you first see an Accord Hatchback or Sedan. And upon closer inspection that impression grows. The finish is refined. The detailing is impeccable. These are no run-of-the-mill imports, or mass-produced domestics, these are finely crafted automobiles in the truest sense of the word. That's your first impression, and that impression says they should cost more.

Inside, the impression continues. The detailing and finishing inside are as impeccable as they are outside. The fully reclining bucket seats are contoured and comfortable. There's a remote control to open the trunk or hatchback. The Sedan has a remote control to operate the rear door locks. There's even a coin box on the dash for parking change. From the driver's point of view, they're driver's cars. With everything falling immediately to hand. And to eye, with a tachometer, speedometer and the other necessary lights and gauges to tell you what's happening, when.

From the passenger's point of view, they're passenger cars. With cloth faced seats for winter warmth. A heating and ventilation system that distributes warm or cool air evenly throughout the car. And a standard AM/FM sound system.

Once again, those impressions say the cars should cost more. Next comes the 'raison d'etre'; driving an Accord. The 5-speed transmission (or the optional Hondamatic with overdrive), the 1.6 litre OHC engine, the front wheel drive, the rack and pinion steering and the fully independent suspension all add up to a driving experience that has to be experienced.

These are the impressions that you get from an Accord Hatchback or Sedan. But they could lead you to a false conclusion, that the cars cost more than they actually do. If you compare an Accord to an equally equipped domestic you'll find it's priced quite low. And compared to most European imports you'll find the Accords priced surprisingly low.

BABIES, BUFFOONS and bathtubs were part of the mix that made Salt Spring Island's weekend Sea Capers a warm, funny, exciting experience. The youngster (left) seemed oblivious to an evening concert in Centennial Park featuring the island's own Valdy, with Shari Ulrich and the Claire Lawrence Band. The crowd, however, couldn't get enough and yelled until there was a second encore much later on. Repeating his winning walk-on-water style despite a damp drizzle Sunday morning was Erling Jorgenson (centre), alias King Ineptitude. So far as is known, no other contestants have completed the course of about 100 feet, but the fishy caped king with the marine manure fork easily made it both ways. As for bathtubs, at least one of the dozens taking part overturned during the races, putting the water inside the tub where it belongs. The sea festival included inner tube and boat races, a parade, a women's softball tournament, dancing, a dunking tank, a tug of war tourney and a Lark in the Park for youngster. Organizers and participants agreed the weekend was a foot-stomping success, despite Sunday's drizzle.

Windmill palm can tolerate cold

On my first visit here as a tourist 14 years ago, what caught my eye more than anything else were the beautifully exotic palm trees in Beacon Hill Park. Why don't the city and provincial governments play up this singularly beautiful attraction?

Chamaerops excelsa, or the windmill palm, grows in several spots in the park and there are a number around the city as well, according to Victoria parks administrator Al Smith.

They are the most hardy of the palms and can tolerate a fair amount of below freezing weather. "They succumb only in the extremely cold weather," Smith says.

Victoria last had such a winter in 1970 when high moisture levels and very low temperatures combined in an unusual cold snap.

"We lost our big one in the park that year," recalls Smith.

As for tourist promotion, it seems Nanaimo got the drop on the capital city. He can't get bananas to grow to back up his claim that the Hub City is Canada's banana belt so Mayor Frank Ney is encouraging the cultivation of chamaerops excelsa as a symbol of the town's alleged balmy climate.

"He's doing a pretty good job of it," according to Smith.

Mall blaze damage set at $50,000

Fire destroyed the inventory of a dry goods store and caused extensive smoke damage after most shops had closed Saturday night at University Heights shopping centre.

Saanich fire department estimated total losses and damage at $50,000 following the blaze which started in bolts of cloth at Betty's Fabric Shop in the mall between K-Mart and Safeway stores.

The fabric store locked up at 5:30 and at 6:10 the fire was reported, already filling the mall and other shops with heavy smoke.

Flames spread quickly through the dry goods inventory but caused little structural damage and were put out quickly by firefighters wearing anti-smoke equipment.

K-Mart was still open but fire doors between it and other shops in the mall prevented smoke and heat from entering the department store.

While firefighters were still mopping up the shopping centre the department answered an alarm to the 2600 block Sinclair where a bulldozer was on fire.

Loss estimated at $60 was confined to upholstery of a machine being operated by Peninsula Bulldozing Ltd., 1000 Beckwith.

Pair hurt in crash

A driver and passenger received multiple injuries when a car snapped off a steel pole and smashed two fences early Sunday on Esquimalt Road near Maitland.

City police said a car driven by Ian Cook, 19, of 572 Whiteside, left the road about 1:30, wiping out the lamppost, a fence at the rear of 640 Esquimalt and another adjoining it, and demolishing the car.

He was treated for chest injuries and passenger Margaret McGough, 17, of 1020 McCaskill, for face, head and neck injuries.

David Trace of Victoria has been elected provincial president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Clean break vital to PCs: Wallace

As long as Social Credit is in power the provincial Conservative party will remain divided, former Tory leader Scott Wallace said today.

That's why he hopes the federal and provincial wings of the party will make a clean break at the party's annual meeting this weekend in Richmond.

A resolution to be voted on calls for two separate campaign committees to be formed.

Wallace, who was provincial leader from November, 1973, to October, 1977, said he has reluctantly come to the view the Tories will never have a united front provincially as long as Social Credit remains a powerful force.

"After Social Credit is defeated, and this could happen at the next election, we might see a return to a three-party system: Liberals, Conservatives and NDP.

"The Social Credit party could fade away just as it is doing in Alberta."

Wallace said while he was leader the Conservative party was hindered by internal dissention on the issue of whether the Tories should oppose Social Credit on a provincial basis.

A large number of Conservatives voted Tory federally but Social Credit provincially.

"Their motive was to keep the NDP out of power in British Columbia. But all they have done is assured the thing they fear.

"We now have a two-party system in British Columbia whichs means at some point the NDP will get back in.

"Only when the Social Credit alliance, or whatever you want to call it, breaks apart will the Conservative Party have a chance to be an effective force on a provincial basis."

Wallace said his comments about internal dissention refer only to the period when he was leader.

"I have not kept in close touch with party activities, except in Oak Bay, since I resigned as leader so I can't comment on what has taken place since that time."

Meanwhile, Vic Stephens, who succeeded Wallace as leader, indicated things went from bad to worse after 1977.

In the overlapping federal and provincial elections in 1979, Stephens publicly accused federal leader Joe Clark of making a deal with Social Credit whereby Socreds would support federal Tory candidates if the Conservatives would agree not to oppose Social Credit in the provincial election.

The dispute was never resolved.

Tories elected no members in the 1979 election and Stephens announced his resignaton in February of this year.

The party is seeking a new leader. A leadership convention will be held in October or November.

The constitutional change to be voted on this weekend calls for formation of federal and provincial committees headed by party vice-presidents.

Joan Gillanders, president of the B.C. party, said she thinks the proposed reorganization will help both wings of the party by allowing workers to get on with their jobs.

'I'll blow your head off'

A gunman threatened to blow off a motorist's head and robbed him of $10 as the driver sat with a woman friend on Dallas Road early Sunday.

John Deus Achadinha, 22, of 1811 Forest, told city police he was parked below the lookout about 1:50 with locked doors when a man in his mid-20s approached and knocked on a window.

Achadinha rolled the glass down a few inches and the man asked if he could spare some money. The driver said he couldn't.

"You could help me out if you gave me five bucks," the man was quoted as saying. He repeated this several times, according to Achadinha, then pulled out a short-barreled pistol and held it to the opening.

He demanded money and said, "or I'll blow your head off."

The driver handed over a $10 bill and the gunman walked away.

Police said they were looking for a slim, dark, bearded man about 5 feet, 10 inches tall, with short, wavy hair. He wore a black, bomber-type jacket.

Sunday rain tops month's total

The airport weather station recorded 31 millimetres in the 24-hour period.

The average for the month is 29.2 mm. In the city itself, as recorded at Gonzales observatory, there were 25.1 mm of moisture, or exactly one inch.

Total rainfall for the 48 hours during the weekend was 35.6 mm at the airport and 26.7 in the city.

The Japanese Self-Defence Force's training vessel Katori and destroyer Okigumo were to have sailed past with the Esquimalt-based destroyer-escort HMCS Restigouche.

They steamed into the dockyard of CFB Esquimalt today and will be open to the public from 1 to 4 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday.

Bamford wins Sidney seat

BAMFORD
. . . captures 225 votes

Stan Bamford, an industrial education teacher at Stelly's secondary school, won an aldermanic seat Saturday in a Sidney byelection.

His term runs until November, 1981.

Bamford, 52, won with 225 votes, edging pharmaceutical salesman Loyd Burdon, who had 204.

Amusement arcade owner Michael Lane was third with 71 votes.

The byelection was called after Daryl Ashby resigned to become a North Saanich municipal employee.

Saanich fair studies move

After 100 years at its location in Central Saanich, the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society may move its operation — including its fall fair — to a new site.

The society will meet Wednesday to discuss a relocation which may involve a property trade with Concord Development Corp. Ltd. of Victoria.

But society president Sylvia Hutt today refused comment on the society's plans, and said only that members want what's best for the fair.

The fairgrounds on East Saanich Road where the Saanich Fall Fair has been held since 1868, have gradually been surrounded by residential development.

Concord owns and is applying to subdivide the aproximately 80-acre Cumberland Farms property on Stellys Cross Road into three parcels.

But the property, previously a loganberry farm, is in the Agricultural Land Reserve and any subdivision must be approved by the ALR commission.

If the properties were swapped, Concord would develop the fairground site and the agricultural society would move to the farm property which is in a more rural area.

Notice of the society's meeting which is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the administration building says:

"In consideration of the changing nature of the muncipality, the increasing value and shortage of available land for parking, the difficulty of maintaining existing dilapidated buildings and the mounting difficulty of maintaining security, the board invites membership input in a discussion into the following proposals:

—Relocate fairgrounds.

—Remain in existing location and acquire land for parking.

—Remain in existing location and maximize use of grounds."

But Central Saanich Mayor Dave Hill, while he doesn't want to prejudice the the society, says he and the rest of council hope the fair will continue in Central Saanich.

He noted the fair, which is the oldest continuously operating fair west of Thunder Bay, means a great deal to many people and the decision will be a difficult one for the society.

"It's not just a economics — there is history in the place," Hill said.

A special public meeting will be held in the Garth Homer Achievement Centre at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday to set up a citizens' advisory committee to advise the Capital Regional District's transit planning and management committee on transit needs for the handicapped.

Committee chairman Norma Sealey says a group will be selected from those attending the meeting to advise on the establishment of a dial-a-ride custom transit service for the handicapped.

The custom transit service, known as handyDART (handy Dial-a-Ride Transit), will be available to handicapped, disabled or blind persons who are unable to use the regular transit system.

The plan is to consolidate existing transportation systems provided for the handicapped in the regional district and provide additional service as needed.

Details of the planning program will be outlined at the meeting, at which time it is hoped volunteers will offer to help in the planning.

"We believe it is extremely important that persons who will be using handyDART should have some say in the development of the program," Sealey said.

"We are therefore planning this public meeting, not only to explain the system to potential users, but to seek volunteers from their ranks to form an advisory committee."

She said any person interested in customized transit service is invited to attend the meeting and learn more about the plans.

Reunion grads only

Students and staff of North Saanich Secondary School have been invited to a reunion June 28 and 29.

Although the school still exists as an intermediate school, the reunion is planned only for those who attended while it was a secondary school — from the time it opened in the 1930s until it graduated its last senior class in 1965.

An open house will be held Saturday June 28 from 3 to 7 p.m. at the school followed by a wine and cheese reception.

The next day a family picnic will be held at Beaver Lake Park from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Anyone wishing to attend should contact Mrs. Linda Foley, 6275 Rudolph, Victoria, V8Z 5V9, telephone 652-2248.

Novelist Henry Miller dies at 80

The Washington Post

WASHNGTON — Henry Miller, an American novelist whose books were widely censored, widely read despite the censorship, and, eventually, widely praised as an iconoclastic celebration of life, died Saturday at his home in Pacific Palisades, Calif. He was 80.

The cause of death was not reported, but Miller had suffered in recent years from circulatory disorders.

For years Miller knew as much notoriety as fame. His most famous books were two autobiographical novels, Tropic of Cancer and Tropic of Capricorn. They are garrulous, sometimes surrealistic, and often funny. But they are most often remembered for sex — sex in real life, sex in fantasies, sex at all times and in all kinds of places. Sex in abrupt, shocking four-letter words.

In fact, Mr. Miller wrote more than 50 books. Besides Cancer and Capricorn several are autobiographical, and these include The Rosy Crucifixion, a triology made up of three works that originally were published separately: Sexus, Plexus and Nexus. Mr. Miller also wrote about travel, painting — he himself painted, and his watercolors appeared in many shows — his friends, and other topics.

"I'm being accepted for the wrong reasons," he once said in an interview with The Paris Review. "It's a sensational affair, it doesn't mean that I am appreciated for my true worth."

Critics and friends did not share these doubts. The writer Anais Nin characterized his work as "a wild extravagance, a mad gaiety, a verve, a gusto, at times almost a delerium." Norman Mailer once said Mr. Miller's books had "all the palpability of a huge elm uprooted in your back yard." The English writer Lawrence Durrell described Mr. Miller's novels as having an "Elizabethan quality, a rare tonic vitality which comes from the savage health of its creator." Durrell added that the autobiographical novels were "one of the great liberating confessions of our age."

On the question of sex in his books, Mr. Miller said: "I wrote about sex because it was such a big part of my life.".

He drew a distinction between his own work and what he regarded as the prurience of many more recent writers. Recent books, he said, are merely "titillating to teenagers. . . I was accused more of obscenity than pornography. I could be bruising, damaging, healing, but not titillating. Today, writers are just flirting with sex."

Henry Valentine Miller was born in New York City on Dec. 26, 1891. His parents were second-generation German-Americans, and the family spoke German at home as much as English. When Henry was a small child, the family moved to the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn, and Mr. Miller retained a Brooklyn accent for the rest of his life.

In 1917, he married the first of his five wives, Beatrice Sylvas Wickens. In 1923, he met his second wife, June Edith Smith, a Broadway taxi dancer. He divorced his first wife, married Miss Smith, and tried writing fulltime, living on his wife's earnings. The couple spent several months in Paris in 1928 and 1929.

In 1944, at the beginning of his Big Sur years, Mr. Miller married Janina Lepska. They were divorced in 1952 and the following year he married Eve McClure. That marriage ended in divorce in 1962. Shortly thereafter, he married Hoki Tokuda, a Japanese woman who played the piano in nightclubs. He and Miss Tokuda had been separated for several years at the time of Mr. Miller's death.

In what could serve as a summing up of his life and work, he once said, "I found it easier to give the truth about the ugly side of my nature than the good. I wrote all these autobiographical books not because I think myself such an important person but — this will make you laugh — because I thought when I began that I was telling the story of the most tragic suffering any man had endured. As I got on with it I realized that I was only an amateur at suffering."

Notoriety preceeded fame for Miller

Bottomless pit in backyard?

TACOMA (AP) — Glenn and Kathy Davies say they will go bankrupt before passing on the mysterious gaping hole in their backyard to another unsuspecting buyer.

They don't want any other unwary home-hunters to be endangered, Davies says.

In 1974, 162 tires were dumped into the hole in the backyard of the home, but when Davies found the hole under a deck in his newly-purchased home last month, the tires had sunk 10 metres. The hole is 1.2 metres in diametre at the surface and expands to three metres underground.

The former owners, who bought the home March 9, moved out in May and did not tell Davies about the hole.

Last month, Davies decided to take out the deck to expand the backyard.

"One of the neighbors came over and told me about the hole," Davies said. "I thought it was a joke."

He threw burning papers in the hole, but couldn't see the bottom.

The Davies have moved out, accepting a friend's offer of a rental home free for a few months.

"That hole was within 6 or 8 inches of the back wall of the house. I feared the house would collapse," Davies said.

The couple told the mortgage company and Veterans Administration, which guaranteed the loan, about the hole. The mortgage company agreed not to require payment until the matter is resolved.

The administration asked contractors for bids to fill up the hole, but wanted to add the cost to the mortgage.

The administration also could take the deed to the home, but if the home now is valued at less than the $38,500 mortgage because of the hole, the administration wants Davies to make up the difference.

A 'wicked' choice?

MOSCOW (AP) — A commentary in a Soviet newspaper said Sunday that Americans are facing an election choice between the "wicked and malicious" policies of Ronald Reagan and the "hypocritical adventurism" of Jimmy Carter.

The commentary in the newspaper Sotsialisticheskaya Industria, a publication of the Soviet Communist party central committee, is one of the sharpest attacks on Reagan since he emerged as the leading Republican candidate.

In recent months, published Soviet reports have played down Reagan's tough line toward the Soviet Union, apparently in preparation for a possible Reagan victory.

However, Sunday's commentary declared: "Reagan sees and underscores Soviet-American rivalry on almost every issue. He never grows tired of repeating that the cornerstone of his foreign policy will be 'superiority in defence potential.'"

Cardinals fire Boyer, hire Herzog

By The Canadian Press

Time finally ran out on Ken Boyer and the magic finally ran out on the New York Mets.

Boyer became the first managerial casualty of the 1980 season, getting fired between St. Louis Cardinals' 6-4 and 9-4 losses to Montreal Expos on Sunday. Whitey Herzog, fired by Kansas City after the 1979 season when he failed to guide the Royals to a fourth successive title in the American League's Western Division, takes over the reeling Cardinals tonight in Atlanta.

The Mets, trying to win back New York's hearts with the slogan, The Magic Is Back, cast their spell over Pittsburgh for the third straight time in the opener of their doubleheader, winning 6-4 on Steve Henderson's two-run, tie-breaking single in a three-run seventh inning.

It also dropped the Pirates into second place in the National League East, one game behind the Expos. But New York's four-game winning streak came to an end in the nightcap with the Pirates winning 3-0, thanks in part to Mike Easler's third home run of the twinbill.

Elsewhere in the NL, Los Angeles Dodgers shaded Atlanta Braves 3-1, Chicago Cubs silenced Philadelphia Phillies 2-0, Cincinnati Reds edged San Diego Padres 1-0 and Houston Astros defeated San Francisco Giants 5-4.

Two-run doubles by Andre Dawson in a three-run fourth inning and Rowland Office in a three-run seventh propelled the Expos to their sweep. Homers by Gary Carter and Warren Cromartie keyed the victory in the opener. The Cardinals have lost five in a row (and 22 of 27) while Montreal has won its last six.

Although known as a strict disciplinarian, Herzog said the only things he'd ask of his new players were to show up at the ball park on time and to give out 100 per cent.

"I've got a helluva speech all prepared," Herzog said. "But what it boils down to is that I'm easy to get along with if they work hard."

Most Cardinals players were not surprised.

Said pitcher Pete Vukovich: "I'm hurt more than shocked. Boyer became the victim of our lack of production. We stink, we lose, and he's gone."

"I think Ken will be a lot happier away from the game," Keith Hernandez, the Cardinals' batting star, said of Boyer, who was in only his second full season at the helm. "I think he'll go home, draw his salary for the rest of the year and he'll be happier.

"I just don't think he was cut out for managing. He liked to go out and hang around with the guys and as a manager he couldn't do that. So in that respect he wasn't cut out for managing."

The Expos, of course, are more concerned with their pennant hopes and the fact that getting into first place doesn't mean it's time to relax. Said Dawson: "No one team is going to run away with it. We just have to keep playing the kind of ball we've been playing."

Henderson, who leads the NL in batting with a .349 average and has a 13-game hitting streak going, drilled his game-winning single off Kent Tekulve in the seventh inning of the opener. Frank Taveras' single off loser Enrique Romo had tied it.

Was the magic really back? "I've told you before," Mets manager Joe Torre said, "that's all public relations.

"Any time you can win three of four against this club, you've got to feel good."

But the magic vanished in the nightcap.

In the American League, Baltimore Orioles just about walked over California Angels.

"To be able to get people out, you have to be able to throw the ball over the plate," sighed Angels manager Jim Fregosi after watching his pitchers issue 11 walks. "If you don't throw it over the plate, people play ring around the rosy and score runs."

The result of those off-target tosses helped the defending American League champs beat the Angels 13-8.

The Angel pitchers walked five batters in the fifth inning and three in both the second and sixth. The wildness led to big innings for the Orioles in the fifth, when they scored six, and in the sixth, when they added four more.

Al Bumbry drove in five runs and Kiko Garcia four.

In other AL action, Boston Red Sox whipped Oakland A's 6-1; Cleveland Indians turned back Chicago White Sox 7-2; Detroit Tigers stopped Milwaukee Brewers 9-5; Minnesota Twins beat Toronto 5-1 in the first game of a doubleheader before the Blue Jays came back to gain a split with a 6-4, 13-inning triumph in the nightcap; Kansas City Royals edged Texas Rangers 5-4 and Seattle Mariners blanked New York Yankees 5-0.

BELMONT, N.Y. — In the paddock they cheered Genuine Risk and booed Angel Cordero and Codex, the pair that had done her wrong. As they walked into the starting gate, the filly was cheered and the colt booed. Two and a half minutes later, 58,090 immortal souls at Belmont Park fell silent, mouths agape. A 53-to-1 shot called Temperence Hill — a winner of the Arkansas Derby, no less, who was named for a Methodist church — had swept home in the 112th Belmont Stakes for a mutuel payoff of $108.80 for $2.

John E. Anthony, an Arkansas lumberman, put up $20,000 to make Temperence Hill a supplementary starter and collected a purse of $176,220. If he had bet $20,000 in Las Vegas, he would have made a million.

Codex and Genuine Risk never got close enough to renew the battle of the sexes they had begun in the Preakness Stakes, but the filly dug in like the gallant lady she is and earned $64,614 for second place, with Rockhill Native, third.

Overnight rains had left the track a glistening ribbon of soup, giving Temperence Hill's New York trainer, Joe Cantey, misgivings about starting his colt.

"This sure doesn't help his chances," Cantey said at 9 a.m. "He really doesn't run well on an off track. I'll talk to the owner later and make a decision."

The decision was to shoe their horse with mud calks, little metal cleats that sometimes give an animal better traction. Temperence Hill was the only one in the 10-horse field who was so outfitted.

Temperence Hill, who was bred in Kentucky and sold to Anthony as a yearling for $80,000, didn't win a race until Feb. 26. After that he was a bearcat at Oaklawn Park in Hot Springs, Ark., but found life more difficult after he left the Ozarks.

Coming east in May, he was second in a swift mile in the Withers Stakes at Aqueduct; he couldn't get out of his way in the Pennsylvania Derby; he was third in a grass race at Belmont a week ago.

"I'm going to teach this big sucker to run," Joe Cantey said. "I'll run him every week until he learns how." The Belmont Stakes was Temperence Hill's third race in 14 days. Turf writers should work so hard and learn so well.

Anthony, 40 years old, has owned race horses for nine years. He chooses place names around his home in Fordyce, Ark. — a holy city in Alabama eyes, for Fordyce gave Bear Bryant to the coachly world of football. Temperence Hill is a church that was built in 1840. That is the proper name of the church and the horse, but the Belmont race program spelled it "Temperance," correcting it wrongly or misspelling it correctly or editing it improperly or whatever it is that copyreaders do to words.

Probably it should not be necessary to mention that Temperence Hill is the first Arkansas Derby winner ever to win a Belmont. This was also the first winner of a Triple Crown event — the others are the Kentucky Derby and Preakness — ever ridden by Eddie Maple, who didn't mount his first runner Saturday or even the day before.

"I was able to drop in behind Codex and the filly," Maple said. "I figured I was following the right two. Then my horse did everything I asked. I could smell the carnations, or whatever they are. This is the greatest day of my life."

Although the Codex-Genuine Risk rematch didn't come off, neither Angel Cordero nor Jacinto Vasquez had forgotten the Preakness, where Cordero's mount, Codex, carried Vasquez and Genuine Risk wide.

"I'd like to see the filly and my horse meet on another surface," said Cordero after Codex got lost in the mud and finished seventh. "I still think I've got the best 3-year-old in the country."

"There's still no telling," Vasquez said, "how good she would have run that day (of the Preakness) with no trouble. She was fresher then."

"We speak," Vasquez said of Cordero. "I'm not mad. Dirty ride in the Preakness, though. The filly is the only horse that's made all three races (the Triple Crown series) and never been worse than second. I don't see anybody else but her. Any kind of track, any kind of pace."

Riders in the jockeys' quarters watching the race on television shouted their applause for Genuine Risk. "She's tough," the comments went. "She never gave up." "That filly, she's something."

"She's a heluva filly, I'll tell you that," said Bill Shoemaker, who was fifth aboard Rumbo. "You can't take anything away from her."

Shoemaker is right. You shouldn't take anything away from the filly. They've already taken $366,820 away from her in two winning purses.

DAVID GREEN
. . . fails to settle

Green walks out on Alouette club

Times News Services

Saskatchewan Roughriders picked up where they left off last year. David Green and Mike McCarther packed up.

The packing overshadowed the picking up as the Canadian Football League's exhibition season got under way Sunday in Regina.

Green, the most valuable player in the CFL last season, has retired rather than play for what Montreal Alouettes want to pay him.

Green left training camp in Victoriaville, Que., Sunday, joining two other unsigned veterans — defensive back Dickie Harris and offensive tackle Dan Yochum — on the sidelines as the Als prepared for their first pre-season game Tuesday in Winnipeg.

The 26-year-old halfback, who rushed for 1,678 yards in 1979, is basing his fight on a clause in his current two-year contract which allows him to renegotiate the agreement for winning the MVP award.

But it also specifies that if the parties fail to agree on a new deal, the Edinboro, Pa., native must play for the salary provided for in the old contract, something he says he won't do.

In a case of 'You can't fire me, I quit,' McArthur, Toronto Argonauts No. 2 running back last season, walked out of the club's camp Sunday in Guelph.

Since McArthur, 24, left on his own, the Argos placed him under suspension which means he cannot pay for any other club in either the CFL or National Football League.

"He beat me to it," said Toronto head coach Willie Wood of his leaving. "Mike is not the same ball player he was last year at this time."

In Regina, an errant field goal attempt by Bob Macoritti with about two minutes left to play scuffled a comeback by Saskatchewan as the Riders fell 13-12 to Calgary Stampeders in the first exhibition game of the year.

The 51-yard attempt, set up by a long march directed by quarterback Tom Rozantz, was the second miss by Macoritti.

Stampeders built up a 12-3 halftime lead with four field goals by John Hay. He struck from the 10, 15, 46 and 26-yard lines, but missed one from 32 yards that went for a single.

Macoritti got singles on both of his missed field goals after connecting on one in the second quarter from 43 yards out. He also kicked a convert in the game's only touchdown.

In Vancouver, B.C. Lions reduced their roster to 55 players as they came back from training camp in Courtenay.

Released Sunday were Everett Little, an offensive tackle, Kevin Aver, the team's third-round draft choice in 1979, Hughie Shaw, a 190-pound running back from Texas A and I, and Paul Goiher, an offensive guard from McGill.

The team plays its first pre-season game Tuesday night against Ottawa Rough Riders at Empire Stadium.

Digna, Lynge capture derby honors in Inlet

Coleen Digna landed a 16-pound salmon to win top honors and a bicycle donated by the Victoria Times in the weekend's Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association Junior Derby.

Pat Lynge topped the women's Sweetheart Derby, which was held simultaneously, with a 20:04-pounder taken off Willis Point.

Digna, as a VSIAA member, also claimed the club's Ronnie Sadler Trophy while Lynge, another member, collected a watch, the Sweetheart Trophy, a bouquet of flowers and membership in the internal Chinook Club for catching a salmon over 20 pounds.

Julie Leong was second among juniors, aged 16 and under, with a catch weighing 13:04 and Chris Orchard was third with a 13:02 salmon.

Wandee Asau-Aree came second among the "Sweethearts" with a 20:02-pounder and Edith Smith was third at 20:02 after a tie-breaking draw.

Junior hidden-weight winners were Bobby Leach, Arne Pederson, Dana Stewart, Karl Leong, Paul Nixon, Glen Perlstrom and Derek Chow.

Sounders continue torrid soccer pace

Times News Services

Seattle Sounders are still running hot and continuing to make big and impressive waves in the North American Soccer League.

Sounders ran their record to 13-1, the best start in league history, Sunday when Jeff Stock scored with 14 seconds remaining in the second overtime period to produce a 3-2 triumph over the Sockers at San Diego.

Stock's winner came after a corner kick. San Diego goalie Volkmar Gross came out to five metres in front of the goal in an effort to grab the ball, but in a crunch of leaping players the ball bounced slowly away to the right of the goal. Stock was in position to tap home a slow-rolling shot from about eight metres with no defenders close to him.

Seattle had grabbed a 2-0 lead on goals by Ian Bridge and Mark Peterson before the Sockers came back to dominate the second half, tying the game on tallies by Julie Veee and Jose Neto.

In other games Sunday, Giorgio Chinaglia scored a three goals and added an assist as New York Comsos downed Atlanta Chiefs 6-0 at East Rutherford, N.J., Tampa Bay Rowdies nipped Fort Lauderdale Strikers 2-1 in a second overtime period, and Detroit Express defeated Tulsa Roughnecks 2-1.

At San Jose Saturday, goalie Chris Turner, making his second start of the season and his first at home, posted a shutout Saturday night as the Earthquakes defeated Vancouver Whitecaps 2-0.

Toronto Blizzard fared better in Dallas, persevering in 30-degree heat for a 2-0 win over the Tornado.

Elsewhere, Houston Hurricane edged New England Tea Men 2-1, Chicago Sting defeated Washington Diplomats 5-2 Rochester Lancers defeated Portland Timber 1-0.

IOC seeks to move meeting

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — Moves were started today to have an important International Olympic Committee meeting moved from Moscow.

Count Jean De Beaumont of France, one of the IOC's senior members, brought the proposal to a meeting of the executive.

He said that because of the controversy over the Soviet military action in Afghanistan and the boycott of the Games at least 36 countries, many IOC members might not go to Moscow.

"This is a highly important meeting and we should have full attendance."

The meeting is scheduled for the week before the Olympic Games in July.

The top priority at the session will be to elect a new president because Lord Killanin is at the end of his eight-year term and has written to all members saying he will not be a candidate for re-election.

Also on the agenda will be the 1984 Olympic Games at Los Angeles, proposals for a permanent Olympic site in Greece and plans for next year's Olympic Congress at Baden-Baden, West Germany, where the whole difficult future of the Olympic movement will be discussed.

Master ignores 'junkball' menu

PARIS (AP) — In the manner of a sly old junkball pitcher, Vitas Gerulaitis served up lobs, drop shots, top-spin volleys, sliders, fastballs, even watermelon balls, anything to "ruin the rhythm" of the clay court king, Bjorn Borg. It worked for all of about 20 minutes.

"It was kind of working — in the beginning," said Gerulaitis after Sunday's French Open finals. "I was moving him around a little in the first set."

"He was really unsure of what was happening out there. He missed a few shots."

Only a few, though. By the end of the first set, the 24-year-old Swede had neatly mastered the Gerulaitis strategy. And by the time he put away the match 6-4, 6-1, 6-2, to win his record fifth French crown, Borg looked as though he probably could even hit winners off the best knuckleballs and spitters baseball has ever known.

First, though, there were more pertinent historical comparisons. Paul Cohen, coach of U.S. clay court specialist Harold Solomon, this week called Borg "the greatest clay court player in history."

One man considered among the greatest is Henri Cochet, one of France's famous Four Musketeers and until Sunday the co-holder with Borg of the record of winning four French championships.

Cochet was at Roland Garros Stadium on Sunday for the one hour, 45-minute match that stripped him of the record he had held for 48 years.

"He didn't look too happy," Borg said afterward. "All he said was 'well played.'"

Cochet, now 78, did contribute to the historic occasion by presenting Borg with the French trophy, which Borg has now held for the past three years.

Chris Evert Lloyd also claimed a chunk of French tennis history in the two-week tournament on the slow European clay. On Saturday she defeated Romania's Virginia Ruzici to win a record fourth women's crown, this year worth $42,500.

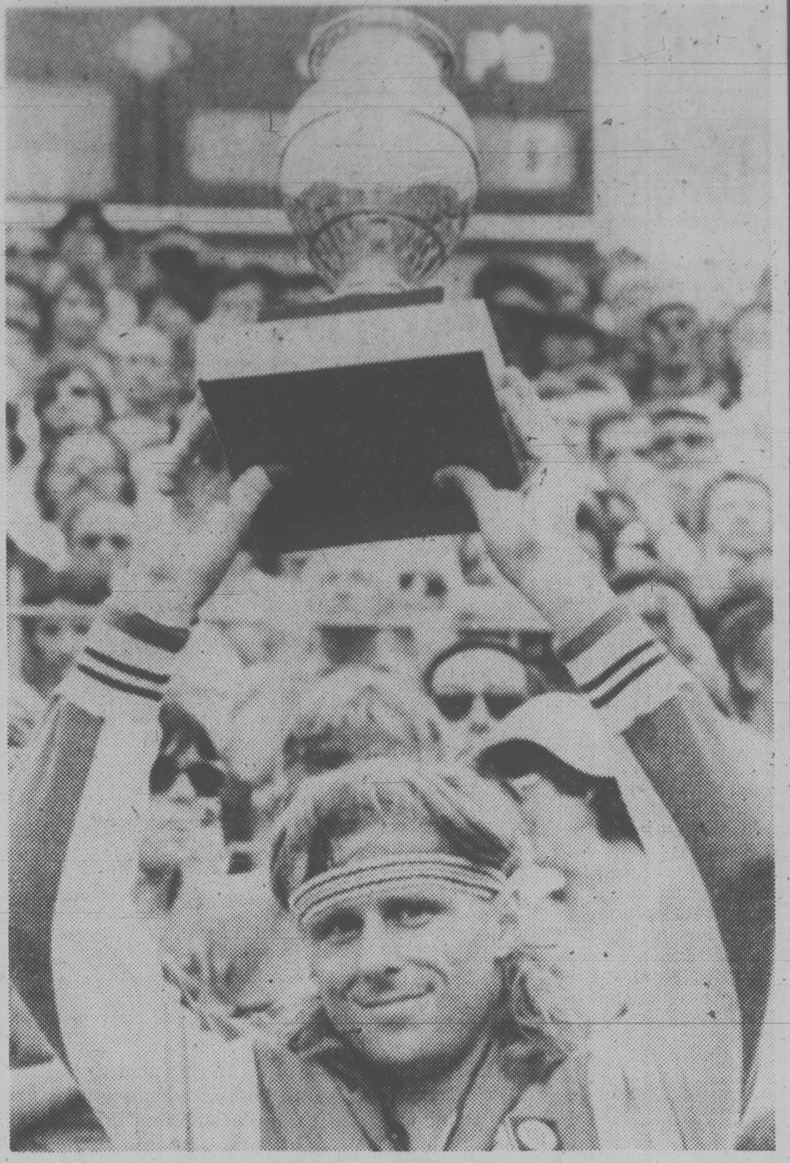
Though Gerulaitis was rebuffed in his bid to bring the U.S. its first French men's title since Tony Trabert did it in 1955, Americans swept four of the titles here this year, for the first time since 1950.

In addition to Lloyd's crown, Victor Amaya and Hank Pfister won the men's doubles, Kathy Jordan and Anne Smith won the women's doubles and Billy Martin and Anne Smith took the mixed doubles.

The tennis world now fixes its eyes on Wimbledon, and inevitably Borg was asked if this will be the year when he will win the French, Wimbledon, the U.S. Open and then the Australian, making him the first player to win the Grand Slam since Rod Laver did it in 1962 and 1969.

"If think I'm still in it, that's for sure," Borg said.

He will go to Sweden this week to play Davis Cup matches for his country against West Germany and then will go to England to practise on the grass for Wimbledon, with Gerulaitis, as he has for the last three years.



Smiling Borg enjoys record fifth trophy hoist

Power shows on Hillside

Hillside of West Vancouver, boasting eight provincially-ranked juniors on its 10-member team, thrashed Semiahmoo of White Rock 9-2 in the finals at the University of Victoria Saturday to capture the B.C. high school tennis championship.

Vancouver College was third, Winston Churchill of Vancouver was fourth and Oak Bay was fifth out of the 16 schools from all over the province taking part.

Prince of Wales of Vancouver finished sixth and Mt. Doug was seventh. The only other Lower Island school in the championship — St. Michael's University School — was tied for 15th and didn't play off its last match to decide 15th or 16th.

Provincially-ranked Ricky Hunter of Hillside won the award as best male player in the tournament and teammate Vivian McAdam was named the top female.

Judges had a tough time deciding between McAdam and Oak Bay's Kelly Davies for the best female award and gave Davies the trophy for most sportsmanlike girl player in the two-day event.

The most sportsmanlike male award went to Tony Macken of Vancouver College and the most sportsmanlike team was Prince of Wales.

Between high school matches, Davies dashed over to the Racquet Club of Victoria and beat experienced Enid Jackson 6-3, 6-0 to win the women's singles title as the club championships ended. She didn't have time to play her mixed doubles final, however, and she and partner Gerald Young had to default to Dale Willard and Jill Glowicki.

Peter Smythe, just back from studying at the University of Oklahoma, needed a third-set tiebreaker to come from behind and edge Racquet Club pro Russ Hartley 3-6, 6-3, 7-6 in a thrilling final for the men's singles title.

Hartley came back, however, with Neil Coutts to beat Willard and Young 6-4, 2-6, 6-3 for the men's doubles title. And the women's doubles crown went to Sandra Moss and Andrea Wiles, who beat Jackson and Maureen Hibberson in the final.

Roscoe's ready

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Roscoe Tanner began his final preparations for Wimbledon with a snappy, straight-set victory over American rival Stan Smith in the men's singles final at the $23,000 Manchester grass court tennis tournament Sunday.

Tanner needed only 62 minutes for a 6-3, 6-4 win.

Wimbledon starts June 23.

Tanner had one scare, however, when he turned his ankle and fell during the sixth game of the second set. Apart from a brief pain, there didn't appear to be any damage done, he said.

Also in England, Andrea Jaeger, a 15-year-old U.S. schoolgirl, won the women's final of the Beckenham championships by defeating Briton Jo Durie, 19, 6-4, 6-1.

The victory was worth $2,320 to the American teen-ager.

Draft to highlight committee-room play

MONTREAL (CP) — President John Ziegler would prefer that the June meetings, opening for real business today, be called the National Hockey League congress, but that change of name might suggest more substance than can reasonably be expected.

The league's governors are to meet June 23-24 in Los Angeles, not here this week, and it is they who would ultimately rule on any major changes, but none is expected.

It would take a unanimous vote of the governors, for example, to institute divisional realignment and an unbalanced schedule for the 1980-81 season. The completely interlocking 80-game format of last season was adopted for a two-year period, and unanimity on change appears unlikely.

Highlights of the three-day meetings here are expected to be the NHL awards luncheon Tuesday and the entry draft Wednesday.

In addition, the official 1979-80 all-star teams are to be announced Tuesday. The names of persons to be inducted into the Hockey Hall of Fame later this year also will be announced.

The Canadiens have first choice in the entry draft, having acquired Colorado Rockies' first-round selection in a trade. Teams will draft in the reverse order of finish in the 1979-80 overall standings, and Colorado finished 21st and last. Winnipeg Jets were 20th and have the second selection.

Among the likeliest choices by the Canadiens as the No. 1 selection are defenceman Dave Babych of Portland Winter Hawks of the Western Hockey League, centre Doug Wickenheiser of Regina Pats of the same league and centre Denis Savard of Montreal Juniors of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League.

Any player 18 years old before next Sept. 15 is eligible for the draft, which will last 10 rounds, meaning a maximum of 210 players can be selected.

An eligible player who is not drafted may be signed to a contract or invited to training camp for a tryout.

An unclaimed and unsigned player who is eligible to play junior hockey next season will be subject to the 1981 draft as a "re-entry." If ineligible for junior hockey next season, a player becomes a free agent if unclaimed and unsigned.

Porter snaps school records

Top athlete in Glenlyon School's annual track and field championships Saturday was Derek Porter, who set school records in the 400 metres, 1,500 metres and the high jump.

Porter captured the elementary open individual title while Tim Bolton took the 10-and-under title, Chris Gill the under-14 and Andrew Molloy the open award.

Douglas finished as the top house with 258½ points. McKenzie House was second with 255½.

Windy ride to title for South African

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Sally Little fired a wind-blown, one-over-par 73 Sunday to score a three-shot victory in the Ladies Professional Golf Association championship and provide the attractive South African with her first major American title.

Her $22,500 payday was built on a 72-hole total of 285, three under par over the Nicklaus Golf Centre Grizzly course.

Three straight days of the swirling, tricky winds took their toll. Little was the only player in the original field of 118 to break par for four rounds over the course.

Jane Blalock, who had been tied for the 36-hole lead, closed with a two-over-par 74 and was the lone player to match par of 288.

The second-place finish earned Blalock $14,700.

Sandra Palmer, who had led Little by one shot going into the final round, collapsed with an 81 that included one double bogey and seven bogeys.

Palmer finished with a total of 292, six shots back of Little.

Little collapsed a week ago in an LPGA tournament at New Rochelle, N.Y. She had led last week's tournament with 16 holes to play, but hit a fat 80 and finished in 13th place.

"I've been in position before, close or near the lead," Little said. "But I didn't do much with it today."

Little took the lead with a birdie two on the fifth hole that put her four under par for the tournament. She stayed in first place the rest of the way.

Defending champion Donna Caponi Young, the leading money-winner in 1980, was among those who tied for third place at 289.

UVic girls row into a milepost

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — The University of Victoria women's elite eight crew managed a milepost victory Sunday at the British Columbia open rowing championships.

UVic beat Vancouver Rowing Club for the first time this year. At the meet distance of 1,000 metres, UVic posted a fast time of three minutes, 27.4 seconds while Vancouver RC came across the line in 3:31.2.

Members of the UVic team were cox Janet Lavallee, Janet Bertoia, Angela Peden, Monica Furdal, Lisa Robertson, Sheelagh Serup, Joanie Gillingham, Marilyn Brain and Kelly Wallace.

Bill Haggerty of Victoria City Rowing Club led a strong showing by other Lower Island rowers by winning two events. He captured the elite singles title and shared the elite doubles crown with Wynn Wright.

Other Lower Island winners:

Men

Lightweight elite singles: Mike Terppening (VCRC).

Women

Elite singles: Kathleen Alexander (VCRC).

Elite quad: VCRC.

Lightweight elite four: Brentwood College.

Akai clips Merchants

RICHMOND — Victoria Merchants, who still hold down first place in the Pacific Junior Baseball League with a 12-6-1 record, dropped a 4-3 decision to Richmond Akai Saturday.

Record-matching romp for U.S. women's team

CHEPSTOW, Wales (AP) — The United States maintained its iron grip on the Curtis Cup women's amateur golf title Saturday, defeating Britain and Ireland by a record-equalling 13-5 margin at the St. Pierre course.

Although they were held to 3-3 in the final singles matches, the Americans romped to their biggest-ever victory on British soil and matched the previous wins at Hot Springs, Va., and San Francisco in 1966 and 1974.

The outcome was decided after the United States had swept the morning foursomes 3-0 to build an insurmountable 10-2 lead going into the afternoon round.

The victory was the 11th straight in Curtis Cup play for the United States and 17th in 21 meetings.

Gowan sweeps pair of tee prizes

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Observers of the district golf scene felt it would be only a matter of time before Don Gowan made his mark outside his own club.

The club champion at Glen Meadows, Gowan has been a consistent force on his club's inter-club team and has been a threat in the district's major tournaments during the past few years.

Marking time was Sunday. The 24-year-old catering manager for the Sidney Hotel swept both the City Amateur and Intermediate championships.

With solid putting supplying the steadiness, Gowan opened the 36-hole tournament with a two-under-par 70 Saturday at Gorge Vale and then followed up with a two-over 72 Sunday at Uplands to score the biggest golf victories of his career.

He finished three shots ahead of defending champion Dave Mick in the Amateur competition and a whopping eight strokes ahead of his nearest challengers in the Intermediate, for players 25 years and under.

Dave Rands of Uplands and Ron Forbes of Cedar Hill both finished at 150 but the former earned runner-up honors in the Intermediate through a countback.

Steve Ray of Colwood won low net honors among intermediates while Ray Saxon of Glen Meadows, defeating Gorge Vale's Dave Donaldson on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff, won the Matson Trophy and the City handicap championship.

Donaldson, third overall with a 147 total, and Saxon both scored net 137s.

The weekend, however, belonged to Gowan.

Mick, playing in the same group with Gowan both days, lauded his successor's overall steadiness and Gowan's "great putting."

"He just wouldn't make a mistake on the greens," said Mick.

Gowan never three-putted Saturday in his sub-par round at the Gorge and was charged with two three-putt jobs Sunday, including one on the eighth green when he "started over 90 feet away." He also three-putted the 12th.

Gowan's longest putt was "about a 35-foot snake" on the 10th hole Sunday, and that was where he shook off all his challengers. He had bogied both the eighth and ninth holes when he came back with a birdie three on the 10th after sinking the long putt.

Mick, Donaldson and the other challengers, two or three shots within striking distance, found themselves no closer than four shots and Gowan raced home without any pressure.

Nelson's romp no fun for TV

ATLANTA (AP) — Larry Nelson fired a five-under-par 67 to post a seven-stroke victory Sunday in the Atlanta Golf Classic.

Nelson, from nearby Acworth, Ga., claimed the third title of his Professional Golfers' Association tour career with a 270 total, a distant 18 strokes under par over the 6,945-yard Atlanta Country Club course.

Nelson, 32, who didn't even start playing golf until he was 21, won this one with relative ease. His margin of victory was the largest on the pro tour this year. Even the U.S. national television cameras ended their coverage for the day before he holed out on the 18th, so the viewing audience failed to see him complete the triumph with a two-putt birdie.

Andy Bean, who won the event a year ago with a record 23-under-par total, was the only man with a real chance to overtake Nelson. But Nelson picked up four strokes on Bean in a five-hole stretch, beginning on the third hole.

He led by a comfortable margin of five or six strokes most of the way and nailed it down with a short-iron shot that set up a three-foot birdie putt on the 13th hole.

That put him six in front with five holes to play and, from then on, it was just a fight for second place.

Dan Halldorson of Shilo, Man., had a 76 in the final round for a 286 total, earning $1,483. Dave Barr of Kelowna, B.C., had a 79 for 297 and won $564.

One Budget decision delayed

YAKIMA — Victoria Budgets earned one victory but will have to wait until July 11 to determine the outcome of other game during a Northwest Fastball League doubleheader against Yakima Pepsis on Sunday.

Budgets posted a 6-4 victory over Yakima in the opening game and the two teams battled to a 4-4 deadlock through eight innings in the second game before the Victoria club had to leave to catch the final ferry home.

The game will be finished prior to the doubleheader against Yakima in Victoria on July 11.

On Saturday, Budgets split with Woodinville in Seattle, losing the first tussle 2-1 but taking the second 6-2 in eight innings.

Budgets broke a 4-4 deadlock with two runs in the seventh inning. Dennis Eckert got things started by beating out an infield hit, Bob Burrows followed with a double and Johnny Green hit a sacrifice fly to score Eckert. Bob Wilson then singled in Burrows, who finished up with two hits in three trips to the plate to drive in the one run and score twice.

Wilson had three RBIs and Green had two RBIs.

In the unfinished game, Carl Walker was three-for-five while Green and Norm Goudie were both two-for-three for Budgets.

In the Saturday victory, Green hit a two-run double and Pete Songhurst blasted a two-run triple to give Victoria the extra-inning punch.

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Roaring past Neil Bonnett on the final turn of the last lap, Darrell Waltrip of Franklin, Tenn., won the NASCAR 400 Winston Cup stock car race Sunday at Riverside International Raceway.

The margin over Bonnett of Hueytown, Ala., was three-tenths of a second, closest finish at Riverside since NASCAR stock car racing began in 1963.

Waltrip averaged 101.811 mph on the twisting road course in his 1977 Chevrolet Monte Carlo. Bonnett drove a 1976 Cougar.

The victory was worth $22,100 to Waltrip, who also won the Western 500 in January.

In the final eight laps, Waltrip made up nearly four seconds on Bonnett as the other challenger, Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., dropped out with engine failure in his 1979 Thunderbird.

Waltrip's passing maneuver — a tricky and potentially dangerous one on the high side of the turn nine banking — brought the crowd estimated at25,000 to its feet.

Earlier in the race, NASCAR point leader Dale Earnhardt of Kannapolis, N.C., passed Waltrip to take the lead in the same spot on the race track.

Earnhardt, running third on the final lap, slowed to a crawl at the finish and was passed by third-place finisher Benny Parsons of Elerbe, N.C., and pole-sitter Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C., who finished fourth. Earnhardt was fifth.

There were 17 lead changes during the two-hour and 26-minute race over Riverside's 2.62-mile road course, and there were 20 of the 35 starters running at the finish.

Leaders were Yarborough, Waltrip, Earnhardt, Allison, Dave Marcis of Skyland, N.C., Roy Smith of Victoria (who finished 28th after completing 39 laps) and Harry Gant of Taylorsville, Ga.

Despite Waltrip's exciting finish, the highlight of the race was the performance by Bonnett, who had never finished better than fourth in 11 previous races at Riverside, and had never been a frontrunner.

Bonnett's sudden success on the road course, he said, was credited to a two-day session at the Bob Bondurant race driving school in Northern California earlier in the week.

Waltrip jumped both Yarborough and Allison in the early laps to take the lead on the fourth circuit, but Earnhardt executed his pass on the 10th lap.

Unser nips Rutherford

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Bobby Unser vaulted into the lead with 28 laps remaining Sunday and pulled away to win the Rex Mays 150 championship auto race by 5.8 seconds over favored Johnny Rutherford.

Unser, 46, who started fifth in the 24-car field, ran well behind Rutherford in the early part of the race and later trailed Gordon Johncock.

Johncock finished third, followed by Pancho Carter and Rick Mears.

"It's nice to be back in the winner's circle," said Unser, who last won a race here in 1973.

Vantreight second at Yakima

Vantreight won the trophy dash, set fourth fast time during time trials and placed third in the fast heat.

ENSENADA, Mexico (AP) — A rugged off-road race to the Mexican coastal town of Ensenada ended Sunday with one person dead, several injured and less than half the vehicles finishing the punishing 775-kilometre course.

Neil Taylor of Artesia, Calif., a volunteer driver for an official medical team, was killed when his car flipped while he was carrying personnel to a checkpoint Saturday.

The accident occurred about five miles east of the town of Ojos Negros. Another individual, who was not identified, was injured in same crash.

In the Class One four-wheel-drive vehicles, first place was captured by Bob Gordon of Los Alamitos, Calif., finishing in 10:27:45.55.

Numerous accidents and injuries were reported throughout the race.

Weather wins

After two attempts to run the Washington Midget Racing Association, old-timer and jalopy program at Western Speedway, officials had to concede defeat by the weatherman Sunday.

Before the rains hit Saturday, Gary Lynch of Tacoma set a new midget track record. The WMRA points leader burned around the oval in 16.51 seconds, erasing the old mark of 16.78.

Rick Hogg wss the fastest jalopy qualifier and Bruce Aldridge won the jalopy trophy dash — the only event held before the rain began to fall.

The remainder of the program, which was postponed until Sunday, was rained out for a second time and Speedway officials said they would try and reschedule the WMRA event later this season.

Mt. Douglas settles for third place again

BURNABY — It was close all day but when it was all over Saturday afternoon, defending champion Burnaby Central had retained its B.C. high school track and field title, Handsworth of North Vancouver had finished second and Mt. Douglas of Victoria had placed third for the third year in a row.

Burnaby Central chalked up 85 points in the two-day meet while Handsworth had 79 and Mt. Doug, coached by Stan Gill, scored 71.

With a very strong showing by its girl athletes (who finished second among the girls' teams), Dunsmuir of Metchosin scored 53 points to place fourth.

Dunsmuir won both the girls' 4x100 relay (in 49.10) and the 4x400 relay (in 3:56.8) and the school's Laura Mahoney and Kari Higginbottom both raced to sprint victories. Mahoney won the 200 metres in 25.41 while Higginbottom took the 400 metres in 57.3.

Mt. Doug got most of its points from the boys' events where Keith Butler won the 1,500 metres in 4:02.19 and Terry Bateman took the 1,500-metre steeplechase in 4:23.0.

Oak Bay's Peter Skillings won the long jump title with a leap of 6.84 metres and Mark Williamson of Brentwood College won the 400 metres in 49.3 seconds.

The talented duo of Connie Polman Tuin and Scott Ross from the tiny Max Cameron School in Powell River both won provincial titles. Polman Tuin, who finished second in the 100 metres, won the shot put with a throw of 11.85 metres and Ross won the discus. The Powell River pair were the outstanding athletes at the Island high school meet.

The other Island athlete to capture a B.C. title was Phil Lum of Gold River who won the triple jump.

Winner of the girls' high jump and 100-metre hurdles, Linda Spense of the Mennonite Educational Institute, was named the meet's most inspirational athlete.

Yvonne Coehlo of Vancouver's Little Flower Academy, who set a Canadian high school record of 6.10 metres in the girls' long jump, was named the meet's outstanding female athlete while the outstanding male athlete was Pat Palmer of St. George's School in Vancouver, who won the boys' 100 metres in 11.6 seconds and the 200 metres in 22.25.

JAYS BUY PITCHER

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Blue Jays have purchased the contract of relief pitcher Mike Barlow, 32, from their Syracuse farm club. Barlow has played for St. Louis Cardinals, Houston Astros and California.

Sallis trio clicks

It was an all-Victoria Lawn Bowling Club final in the recent windup of the Art Mitchell triples competition at Lakehill Lawn Bowling Club.

The competition was won by Fred Sallis Sr. and Bert and Jennie Bennett who defeated clubmates Anne and Rod Hammond and Eddie Smith 22-4.

Sallis reached the final with a 21-13 win over Grant Clegg, Marg Atherton and Nancy Baker of Burnside and the Hammond trio made it to the championship game with a 19-9 decision over Jack and Florence Carpenter and Shelly Knowles of Victoria.

Next competition for mixed triples is the Findlay Trophy event, running Monday through Saturday at the Victoria West Bowling Club.

Goodwill benefits Bottlers

SURREY — Victoria's Goodwill Bottlers found themselves shorthanded Saturday night but picked up some help from the farm system and downed Surrey Rebels 12-9 to lift their won-lost record to 5-1 in the B.C. Intermediate "A" Lacrosse League.

Work committments and school graduation ceremonies left the Bottlers without five regulars but they borrowed Rob Banister (who scored a goal) and Andy Bates (who had three asists) to help carry the load.

Alton Davis led the Bottlers, scoring four goals and adding three assists. Paul Cullen and Shawn Dheensaw scored two goals each while Glen Jay and Wayne and Gord Christiaens each scored one.

Surrey got five goals from Roger Lynch.

Next game for the Bottlers is at 8 p.m. Tuesday when they have an interlocking fixture with Saanich Junior "B" at George Pearkes Arena.

Falcons overpowering

NANAIMO — Competitors from the Falcon Artistic Gymnastic Club of Victoria took most of the awards Saturday in the Vancouver Island Regional Stream Gymnastics Championships.

The Falcon gymnasts took all the medals in four of five events in the 10 and-under division and grabbed the gold and silver medals in the fifth event.

Jane Baird, with victories in the vault and floor exercise and second-place finishes in the bars and the beam, took all-round honors with an aggregate of 28.35 points.

Second all-round with 27.45 was her Falcon clubmate Rhonda Callangham, who won the bars and placed second in the floor exercise and beam and was fifth in the vault.

Third all-round was Monique Helbig, who placed second in the vault, third on the bars, seventh on the beam and fourth in the floor exercise for 24.95.

Maria Fenske of the Falcon Club was first in the beam and third in floor exercise.

Courtenay's Dawn Johnston and Nanaimo's Tami Steele tied for second in the vault and were the only non-Falcons to get medals in the 10-and-under division.

The Falcon Club also took all the all-round medals in the Argo division for 11 and 12-year-olds when Dianna Moore won the gold with 27.70, Gina Samuels grabbed the silver with 27.15 and Sonja Myllymaki got the bronze with 26.70.

The beam and floor exercise went to Moore, who also placed third on the bars. Samuels won the bars and was third in floor exercise while Myllymaki placed second in both the bars and floor exercise and third on the beam.

Nanaimo's Rhonda Steel won the vault with Leslie Jason of Campbell River second and Kariann Haynes of Falcons third.

The silver medal on the beam went to Bobbi-Sue Kitchen of Juan de Fuca.

Hosting the meet was Nanaimo Gymnastics and Acrobatic School which fared well in the open class for 12 to 14-year-olds where Tara Rhoden won the vault, beam and floor exercise and took all-round honors with 29.20.

Falcons' Debbie Park won the bars and placed second in the vault to finish second all-round with 28.45 while clubmate Tiffany Lowe finished third on the bars and the beam to place third over-all with 26.75.

Lisa Fjernstand of Falcons placed second in both the beam and the floor exercises and was third in the vault but and eighth on the bars left her fourth over-all with 26.60.

Boxer cleared

LONDON (AP) — Doctors have given Maurice Hope of Britain, World Boxing Council light middleweight champion, the go-ahead to continue boxing.

Hope underwent an eye operation in January and there were fears that he might not fight again.

An amazingly simple surgical hair replacement procedure that is 100% tissue compatible, and is guaranteed.

Closed system. No foreign material, sutures, plastic wires, retainers or synthetic hair are embedded and left in the scalp, with risk of infection.

Plastic surgeons. Two internationally known surgeons helped to develop this advanced technique of anchoring hair to the scalp by using skin grafts that will last a lifetime.

Your own scalp. Part the hair and see your own scalp.

Undetectable. Hair that looks so natural it appears to be growing from your scalp. It's not, but you'll be the only one that knows.

More and more professional people, politicians, doctors, etc., are discovering this unique foolproof method that overcomes the disadvantages of all previous hair replacement methods, both medical and non-medical.

SERVICE AT FIRESTONE MEANS MORE THAN JUST REPLACING OLD PARTS.

When you come to Firestone for automotive service, we make sure you know what parts were replaced and why they needed replacing.

But service at Firestone means more. It means expert car care by qualified mechanics. It means national brand name parts like Champion and Moog. And it means sound advice on how you can reduce costly repairs by following regular preventive maintenance plans.

So you see, Firestone service means more than just replacing old parts.

TUNE-UP SHOULD BE CHECKED EVERY 18,000 km
WE USE ECHLIN CHAMPION

At Firestone a tune-up means we install new points*, new condenser* and new rotor. We also adjust timing and carburetor and lubricate the heat riser valve. We check the distributor cap, cooling system hoses, spark plug wires, coil, PCV valve, air filter and gas line filter.

Our licensed mechanics take great care in making sure the job is done correctly the first time so that you get miles and miles of trouble free driving.

Oh yes, we also install new Champion spark plugs.

Highly favored Amortizer's Beauty, driven by Keith Quinlan, held a comfortable lead coming into the turn before the final stretch but then Loulabelle Choice, owned, trained and driven by Leonard Hill of Portage La Prairie, Man., charged from the back of the field to win in a photo finish from Winsome Adios and Call N Raise as the favorite faded.

It was the second win in a row at Sandown for Loulabelle Choice, which paid $20.60.

The meet's top driver, Joe Hudon, increased his total of wins to 20 with victories behind Holridge Emily in the seventh race and Irish Dawn in the eighth.

In the 10th race, Mitch's Butch was the winner, Mark Doc was second and Kentucky Rain third and the triactor paid $429.60.

A crowd of 1,823 wagered a total of $141,544. The next meet is Tuesday with first post at 5:30 p.m.

Cablevision clips Legion

BURNABY — Burnaby Cablevision was first off the mark and stayed that way, beating Esquimalt Legion 15-12 in a Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League game Sunday.

Cables grabbed a 4-1 lead in the first five minutes of play and Esquimalt was unable to erase the margin during an even game the rest of the way. The home club held period leads of 5-4 and 10-8 and scored the final goal into an empty net.

Legion also failed to capitalize on odd-man plays. Burnaby took 24 minutes in penalties to Legion's 15.

Doug Deschner scored three goals to lead the Burnaby attack while double tallies were added by Guy Prentice, Larry Crema and Dan McLenaghen and singles came from Lyle Robinson, Steve Lalune, Gary Purdon, Paulo Brunoro, Barry Mawhinney and Wayne Hinada.

Sean Doyle set the pace for Legion with three goals and two assists while John Crowther and Terry Jay added two goals each. Ed Van Dyk, Mike Thomas, Jim Lightbody, Lyle Gurney and Bruce Alexander contributed singles.

On Saturday, in Richmond, Ross Angelucci scored four goals, including three in a row during the second period, to lead Salmonbellies to a 15-12 win over Richmond Roadrunners.

Davis now coaching

VERACRUZ, Mexico (AP) — Willie Davis, former outfielder with Los Angeles Dodgers and Montreal Expos, has been named player-manager of Veracruz Eagles of the Mexican Baseball League.

Cox repeats as champion

Defending champion Randy Cox took the over-all title and finished first in the open men's event with a time of 31 minutes, 52 seconds in the third annual Sri Chinmoy 10-kilometre run Sunday.

Roger Wheat was second in the open class, for men 20 to 35, in 33:34 and Doug Goodwin third in 34:26.

Ann Webster won the women's event in 36:47, followed by Anita Sobone (40:20) and Dianne Pendlay (42:54).

Garth Ball won the open masters' category (35 and over) with a time of 34:55. John Crouch was second in 35:41 and Mike Ellis third in 36:01. Jim Barwise topped the junior men in 36:09 and was followed by Jim Gardener (36:50) and Steve Bachop (38:00) while Jenn Bryce collected junior women's laurels with a 59:49 clocking and Shena Lestock-Kay was second in 62:00.

Approximately 150 runners entered the event.

The next Sri Chinmoy event will be a "triathelon" on Aug. 3. Competitors will swim one mile, bicycle 20 miles and run six miles with winners determined on total time. Entry forms are available by telephoning 592-6942.

Timbermen help Shamrock cause

NANAIMO — Fourth-place Nanaimo Timbermen won their first home game Saturday, upsetting first-place Coquitlam Adanacs 13-12 in Western Lacrosse Association action before 500 fans.

Nanaimo had period leads of 3-2 and 9-6.

Nanaimo goalie Mac Maude turned in a brilliant display, stopping 51 shots, while the Adanacs' Greg Thomas made 32 saves.

The setback kept Coquitlam within striking distance of second-place Victoria Shamrocks. The Rocks trail Adanacs by four points but enjoy a game in hand. The two teams meet tonight in Coquitlam.

Plan for bubble provokes battle

Cleveland Browns of the National Football League want to place a clear vinyl bubble roof over their practice field at Baldwin-Wallace College so the team can work out in all kinds of weather.

But residents of the area say they are worried the air-supported, heavy-duty structure will be an eyesore.

Stockers take third

VANCOUVER — Stockers North Americans of Victoria swept a doubleheader against Lehr Construction Saturday to move into third place in the Inter-City Senior "A" Women's Softball League.

Debbie Derksen gave up seven hits and had three strikeouts as Stockers won the first game 4-3 with Sandy Ferguson singling in Norma Wood in the top of the seventh inning for the winning run.

Stockers had a total of 11 hits, including a two-run triple by Donna Blackstock that tied the game after Stockers fell behind 2-0 in the bottom of the fifth.

The Victoria women were held to only three hits in the second game but Stockers made the most of them to triumph 3-1.

Winning pitcher Lisa Hayton also hurled a seven-hitter and struck out three batters.

The wins improved Stockers' record to four wins and six losses and moved them out of a tie with both North Vancouver (2-4) and Nanaimo (2-10). Vancouver Labatts trail with a 1-5 mark.

Lehr Construction (formerly Vancouver Eldorados) are in second spot with an 8-7 record while the league leaders are Alpha Sports (formerly Doc's Blues) with 15-0.

This weekend, Stockers are at home to North Vancouver in doubleheaders at 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. Saturday at Heywood Avenue Park and to Vancouver Labatts at 2 and 4 p.m. Sunday at Hyacinth Park.

Spitters to wind up sitting

BELFAST (Reuter) — Soccer players who spit at opponents henceforth will be ordered off the field, the International Football Federation's (FIFA) rule-making body decided Saturday. If a player spits at an opponent in the penalty area he will be sent off and a penalty awarded. If the offence is committed outside the penalty area, the player will be ordered off and a free kick awarded.

Albion, Alcos triumph

Rain washed out Castaways' Victoria and District Cricket Association match with Cowichan at Beacon Hill Park Sunday even before it got going.

That was the only game scheduled for Sunday but on Saturday, Albion made short work of Nanaimo, Alcos polished off Metchosin and Oak Bay defeated Saanich.

Albion got Nanaimo all out for only 46 runs and then lost just one wicket while scoring 47 for the 10-wicket victory. Alvin Carter scored 27 not out while bowler Don Hughes did the damage for Albion, taking eight wickets at a cost of only 17 runs.

Alcos raced to a total of 198 runs in Metchosin with Mike Nation scoring 103 not out. Mark Hillis was 22 not out. Metchosin was all out for 78 with Phil Buchanan scoring 24 runs.

Bowling for Alcos, John Moss took three wickets for 10 runs and Bob McKay got three for 23.

Oak Bay declared at 150 for seven wickets, with Jan Aten scoring 26, and then got Saanich all out for 97. Dick Wilson hit a fine 31 runs for Saanich.

Dolphins bow again

Victoria Dolphins played a little better Sunday than they had Saturday — but they still couldn't snap their winless streak in the Inter-City Women's Lacrosse League.

Richmond, which beat the Dolphins 7-2 Saturday, won 6-4 Sunday at George Pearkes Arena, despite being behind at one stage in the second period, and took its record for the season to 8-0.

Dolphins, now with a 0-8 record, got two goals from captain Jacque Morrow and one goal each from Ruth Saunders and Kim Morgan on Sunday.

A lesson in finesse

SARANAK LAKE, N.Y. — Finesse overcame size Saturday when Canada blanked the United States 16-0 in their annual rugby test match here.

Mark Schiffler of Alberta, brought into the Canadian side as a kicker and making his first appearance as an international, was a huge success, booting a 45-yard drop goal and converting a try by Preston Wiley of Vancouver.

Winger Chuck Shergold of Victoria, who went on at half time to replace the injured Vancouver speedster Spence McTavish, had a very impressive game.

The Americans were much bigger and more physical than their opponents but they were outplayed by the more skillful Canadians.

Clark urges an apology

PARIS (AP) — Former U.S. attorney-general Ramsey Clark urged the United States to apologize for past actions in Iran and said he is not bothered by criticism or possible prosecution for travelling to Iran in defiance of a presidential ban.

"I love my country too much not to confess" alleged U.S. crimes in Iran, Clark said Sunday in a television interview. "We owe the Iranian people a lot. We owe them an apology. We have supported the (deposed) shah and he has brutalized them and he has caused the deaths of many of them."

Clark recommended the United States "let things cool off" instead of pushing economic sanctions aimed at pressing Iran into releasing the 53 U.S. hostages, now in their 219th day of captivity. He predicted sanctions would drive Iran closer to the Soviet Union.

Clark arrived in Paris Sunday from Tehran where he and nine other Americans attended a "Crimes of America" conference last week. All 10 face possible 10-year prison terms and fines of $50,000 each for violating Carter's ban on travel to Iran.

WALD
. . . arrives in Boston

Asked about the possible prosecution, Clark said: "The fine doesn't bother me, I don't have it, and I hope a jail term wouldn't bother either.

"My defence will be that America is founded on freedoms," Clark told interviewers on the ABC-News program Issues and Answers.

Asked how he felt about being called a "traitor" in the United States, Clark said he was just trying "to make my country just."

In Chicago, Former president Gerald Ford Sunday termed Clark's visit to Iran "despicable."

Ford said Clark's appearance and statements at a conference last week on alleged American crimes in Iran "undercut" President Carter's effort to gain release of the 53 American hostages.

But State Secretary Edmund Muskie told television interviewers he would be willing to meet with the 10 Americans "if any of them think they have useful information to impart."

Clark acknowledged that the presence of the Americans at the anti-U.S. conference in Tehran did not produce any concrete moves toward the immediate release of the hostages.

"I wasn't expecting any miracles," he said. "We went there believing it was impossible to do anything immediately on the hostages."

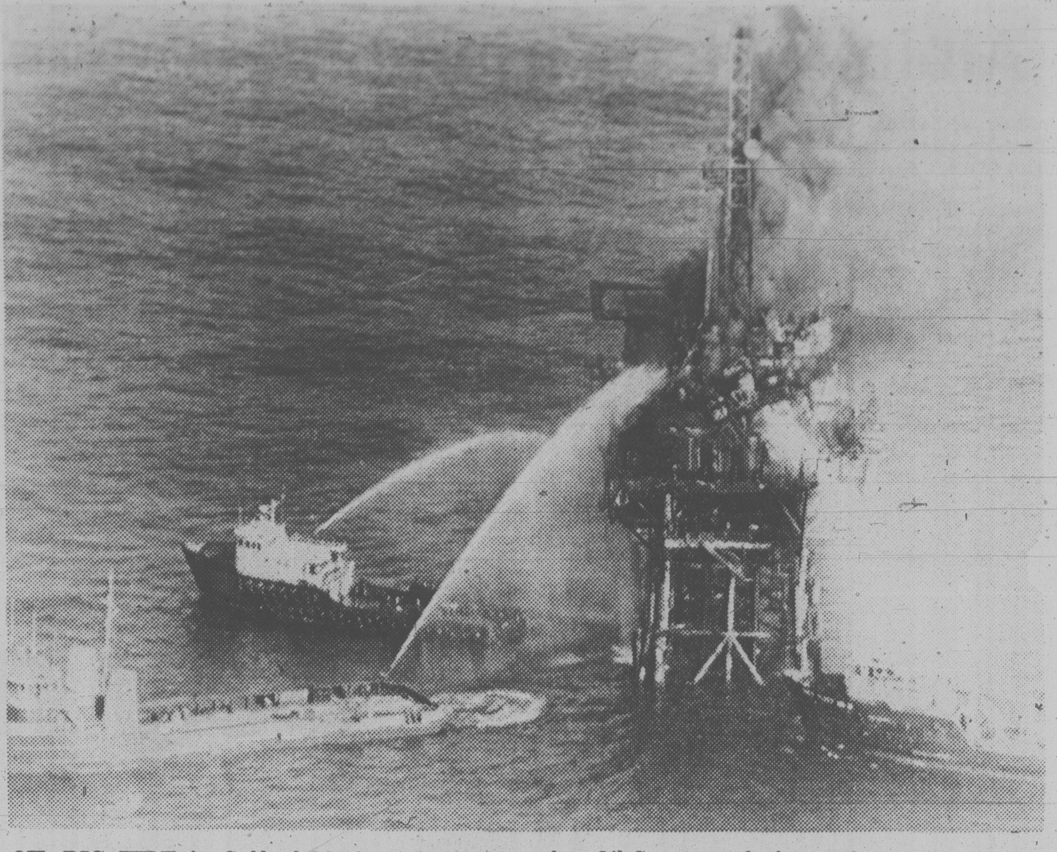
Nobel Peace Prize winneer George Wald, a Harvard professor, a member of the delegation to Tehran, was among those arriving home Sunday night.

In Iran, meanwhile, Tehran Radio broadcast a foreign ministry denial of a report in a Pakistani newspaper that the three Americans held at the ministry would be released in the next few days.

U.S. Customs officials in New York Sunday night questioned for one hour two more members of a delegation which defied a presidential ban on American travel to Iran.

The two arrived at Kennedy International Airport after attending a conference in Tehran on alleged U.S. crimes in Iran.

Cay Camp, international president of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, and John Walsh, Protestant chaplain of Princeton University, told a news conference their papers and passports were not confiscated.



OIL RIG FIRE in Gulf of Mexico injured five persons Sunday after an explosion rocked the Marathon Oil Company platform. The rig is located 120 kilometres off the Louisiana-Texas coast.

Summit planned on Palestinians

CAIRO (Reuter) — Egyptian, Israeli and U.S. negotiators are to meet in Washington to discuss resuming the stalled talks on Palestinian autonomy, Egypt's foreign minister said toeay.

The minister, Kamal Hassan Ali, told reporters no date has been fixed but the meeting is expected to take place shortly.

Israeli explosives experts, meanwhile, exploded a parcel-bomb left in the bus station in Ramle, 16 kilometres southeast of Tel Aviv. No injuries or damage were reported, and no other details were immediately available.

"The terrorists have continuously tried to turn Jordan into a passage to Israel," Eytan told the Yediot Aharonot newspaper. "Now it's definitely possible they will make more attempts."

Eytan said that there have been five attempted infiltrations from Jordan since January, 1979, including one Saturday in which an Israeli patrol chased a three-man squad back into Jordanian territory and killed two guerrillas.

"The fact is that it's possible to cross from Jordan into Israel with or without the permission of Jordanian authorities," he was quoted as saying.

Eytan also said that Jordan, Syria, Iraq and Saudi Arabi are rapidly extending their military arsenals.

"In Saudi Arabia they're building this monstrous thing in Tabuk, whose size we didn't imagine," he said, speaking of a new Saudi air base only 240 km from Eilat in southern Israel.

Nuke jitters strike again

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A Pentagon computer sent a "false signal" for the second time in a matter of days, indicating ground- and submarine-launched Soviet missiles were headed for the U.S., defence department officials say.

Within three minutes, however, it was clear that no real attack was under way, the officials said.

The official Soviet news agency Tass responded to the electronic troubles with a verbal attack Sunday, warning of the danger of such errors and suggesting they may be deliberate.

"Such 'electronic faults' of the Pentagon . . . may result in too heavy a toll for the peoples of the world," Tass said in a report from Washington.

"The American military dangerously plays with the destiny of the whole world," Tass said. "It is noteworthy that sham nuclear alarms take place in the heat of malicious anti-Soviet hysteria being kindled in the United States."

A Pentagon spokesman acknowledged the computer malfunction late Saturday, saying that as a result of the error "the engines of some planes of the Strategic Air Command were turned on, since SAC responds automatically to any warning signal."

Marie Thibault of Fenelon Falls, Ont., has a room filled with 200,000 empty cigarette packages and doesn't know what to do with them. She is one of several people and groups in the Peterborough area duped by a rumor that they could exchange the packs for wheelchairs for the disabled. The empty packs have been arriving by the thousands at Mrs. Thibault's house since November, delivered by friends and relatives who wanted to help her buy a $21,000 electric wheelchair for her daughter Linda, 21, who has cerebral palsy.

Mintoff

Malta's Prime Minister Dom Mintoff received a public apology and substantial damages in the London High Court on Thursday as a result of a report in the London Daily Mail that he amassed a fortune under dubious circumstances. In an August, 1977, report, the newspaper alleged that Mintoff got one of his friends to buy more than $575,000 worth of stocks and shares for him, Mintoff's lawyer said.

The City of Toronto has found 12 babies who meet the requirements for a $35 gift from the Dutch city of Amsterdam — being born in Toronto on May 8 of parents who are Toronto residents. Amsterdam Burgomaster Wim Polak offered the gift in honor of the 35th anniversary of Liberation Day, when Canadians took the city from the German army.

Nobody knows yet if Zonker Harris and his iconoclastic crew will be invited to the wedding, but they should be. After all, the groom created them. An NBC spokesman says Pulitzer Prize-winning cartoonist Garry Trudeau and the network's Today show co-host, Jane Pauley, will tie the knot June 14 in a simple ceremony not far from Trudeau's New Haven, Conn., home. It's a first marriage both for the 29-year-old Pauley and the 32-year-old Trudeau who keeps Washington flinching under the goad of his satiric comic strip Doonesbury.

The new heir to the Ford Motor Co. fortune is an Aussie. Henry Ford III was born in a Melbourne hospital to 29-year-old Cynthia Ford — wife of 31-year old Edsel Ford who's assistant managing director of Ford Australia. The 8-pound-13-ounce baby is the first of Henry Ford II's grandsons to receive the founder's name. By birth, he's an Australian.

Dear Abby:

As the director of Emergency Nursing Services at St. Joseph Hospital in Orange, Calif., I have seen it all, so if you aren't already sick to death of the controversy over whether children should be present in the delivery room when Mama gives birth, I submit the results of such an experiment:

"A team of doctors observed the behavior of 28 girls and 12 boys who witnessed delivery in an alternative birth center. The children ranged in age from 3 to 14; 18 children were aged 4 to 6 years, and 10 were aged 7 to 9. All youngsters were prepared in advance through books, films and childbirth education classes. Children were accompanied by a support person (other than the parents) who answered questions and provided comfort if needed.

"Two children slept through the entire process, and two others slept during their mother's labor but awakened for the delivery. During the early labor, three children played with the support person, eight watched from a distance and 25 interacted with the mother, asking questions and timing contractions.

"In the late stages of labor, eight children wandered in and out of the delivery room and three were asked to leave because they were distracting the mother, who appeared to be overly upset by their behavior.

"Of the 33 children who were in the room during delivery of the infant, 29 watched, whereas the other four showed no interest whatsoever.

"Only five children watched the delivery of the placenta. The other youngsters were preoccupied with the infant, who usually was near the mother's breast.

"Children were more conscious of the sounds and sights of labor and delivery, although most were not upset by the mother's cries. Despite curiosity about the birth process, youngsters appeared bored during labor. "Their excitement after birth was short, and they usually resumed their normal routine as soon as the baby was born.

"The osbservers concluded that childbirth is an adult event and the presence of children meets the parents' rather than the siblings' needs and wishes."

Kate Reeves, RN

Dear Abby:

I see so many letters in your column from women who are in love with married men and are waiting for them to get a divorce. Take it from a woman who wasted nine years on a married man. No matter how much he loves you and how little feeling he has for his wife, one thing will always hold them together: Money!

My married lover begged me to be patient until he could work it out so we could marry. Of course, he was never able to work it out.

Married men will stall because their children "need" them, or because their wives are "emotionally unstable" or "physically ill."

But if they told the truth, they would admit that they stayed married because divorce is too expensive.

Nine Years Wasted

To the cave of the wonderful animals

As he had promised to do, Chief Peter Smith of Gwayas-dums turned up in a herring skiff to guide us to the Cave of the Wonderful Animals. Chief Smith is a big, dark, solid Kwakiutl. He struck me as being withdrawn and even sad.

We boarded the big aluminum skiff. It foamed away from Kona Winds, our Campbell River Museum-chartered vessel, to the drive of a heavy outboard. Smith picked up landmarks invisible to our eyes. Presently he veered in to a rock slide that plunged steeply into the saltchuck.

We landed. The cave, we'd been warned by Peter MacNair of British Comimbia Provincial Museum, was about 400 yards up the near-precipitous slope. Those who couldn't take height would do well to stay behind.

We hauled our way from tree to tree up the slope to a murky slit in the limestone. Into this mouth, the members of our party vanished one by one. Height doesn't bother me, but caves do. While Win plunged boldly into the bowels of the earth, this chicken-hearted claustrophobe found himself a seat on a down-log and settled in to wait.

The place we had come to is one of the most sacred in Kwakiutl myth. For it was here, the story goes, that a wood-gatherer saw Mouse appear from the cave, look cautiously about, then dive underground again. This act was repeated four times . . . four is the Kwakiutl lucky number. On the fourth appearance, the wood-gatherer intercepted Mouse, who told him this was the Cave of the Animals, and that he had been sent up to make sure no humans were about before the Animal Dance began.

They struck a bargain. Mouse would turn the wood-gatherer invisible so that he might watch the dance, if the human would let him go. So into the cave they went, and there the wood-gatherer found all the creatures of Creation . . . Bear, Wolf, Owl, Kingfisher and the rest . . . preparing for their dance. But at this point, the cloak of invisibility wore off. The wood-gatherer stood revealed to the Animals. Since he had seen them, they agreed to let him witness their dance, from which he was to return as an emissary of goodwill to humankind.

A lovely tale! I was reviewing it whe something reached out of the earth behind me and grabbed my ankles. I whipped around and saw a head and shoulders wiggling out of the rock. I had managed to position myself in front of the cave's screened exit.

Back at the slide we found, inexplicably, a cache of beer bottles tucked into a niche in the tumbled rocks. Washed ashore or planted there? We could only guess. But the bottles were capped, and even though some were overgrown with limpets and barnacles, the beer inside was good. Those of us who indulge refreshed ourselves with this gift of the sea. Then we boarded the herring skiff, transferred to Kona Winds, and cruised on to the village of Gwayas-duma on Gilford Island's ironically-named Health Bay.

Arrived, we discovered the reason for Chief Peter's sadness.

The workhorse fisheries vessel, Chilco Post of Vancouver, lay alongside the village float-string. Fisheries men were loading sacks of clams on board. The clams would be taken down coast for a fast laboratory check.

The previous evening, some of the villagers had eaten butter clams, one of their food staples. But unknown to them, the treacherous and deadly 'red tide' had struck in, loading the clams with poison of a sort that paralyzes the nervous system.

Before the evening was far advanced, three of those who ate the clams were striken. One young man died before on his way to hospital.

The bands are small. Each member is precious. We had arrived at a community plunged into deepest sorrow.

Perhaps, we suggested, it would be better if we left the people of Gwayas-dums to their grief. But no, Chief Peter insisted: we must come ashore to inspect the masks and other band treasures in the band office.

We would understand, though if his people kept to their own houses. It was not seemly that we as guests should see their tears.

So we went ashore to a village almost as silent as those pathetically-abandoned communities which we had found rotting away in the sun and wind of the remote islands. In the band office, Chief Peters wife lifted one gorgeously-worked ceremonial garment after another from a chest. We saw the familiar masks: Sanoqwa, the Wild Woman of the Woods, Crooked Beak of Heaven, the Cannibal Bird that shares the house of the North Wind.

Then we took our leave of the subdued and shadowed village.

One thought was inescapable. We had feasted on clams only an afternoon earlier, at a bay no more than a few miles removed from the red tide-infested flat.

But the paralytic poison strikes swiftly. Since no pangs had manifested themseles, we were home free . . . and able to think with a slight chill that it might just as easily have been us!

Fishing, for photos, for fun

By ELIZABETH FORBES

First you chose the area in which you wish to work.

Next you put on your diving suit. Then, if you intend to take pictures you carefully check your camera to make sure it is clean, well sealed and with flash securely attached.

Now you are ready to go under the water, search for sea creatures and wander through sea gardens.

When you come out, the worries and frets of everyday life are forgotten and you feel cleansed in spirit and in mind.

She describes herself as a scuba diver and an amateur underwater photographer. And she shows you a neatly printed certificate dated 1973 that establishes those facts.

That certificate allows her to dive and take pictures under the sea anywhere in North America and, in fact, around the world.

She has gone down in Tahiti, the Canary Islands, at San Salvador in the Bahamas and in California.

Nearer home she has explored the sea beds around Race Rocks, Saanich Inlet, Barkley Sound, Port McNeill and Pender Island.

Up here the water is very cold, she explains. It makes it difficult for an underwater photographer who must stay in one position, sometimes minutes at a time.

That's why she wears a dry suit. It gives room to use warm underwear.

"In a wet suit I would freeze if I stayed still very long."

How did she get started on this fascinating hobby that now fills many of her leisure hours?

Through a friend who was a keen underwater diver and persuaded her to give it a try.

Her first move was to take a course in scuba diving at the Frank White school here. That included a series of lessons on the theory of diving, practise periods in the Crystal Pool, written examinations in order to obtain that 1973 certificate and finally going down under the sea.

A decision, at this point, to up-grade her professional career by taking a two-year course in respiratory technology at the North Alberta Institute of Technology in Edmonton, whittled down her diving, for a time, to a few experiences during short vacations here.

In there somewhere she also bought her Nikonos camera and flash.

That camera is checked carefully before every diving experience.

Most vulnerable spot is where the flash is attached. If water or silt gets in there, it must immediately be flushed out.

"I keep a bottle of ethyl alcohol in my kit at all times for that purpose," Isobel Hambley says.

Before you take your camera underwater you must know your area, decide what you are going to look for and what lens to use, she adds.

"Even then it can be frustrating. Many a time I've got down below and discovered something that demanded a close-up lens when I've chosen a wide-angle for that day.

Isobel Hambley ready for underwater photography session

At first, she confesses, you take pictures of everything you see. Then, as your expertise increases, you become more selective.

"Now, if I get two good pictures out of a role of 36, I'm happy. Occasionally I come up with an excellent shot. When that happens I'm on top of the world."

Like many other underwater photographers, Isobel is constantly going through her slides, up-dating, up-grading and re-evaluating.

In her apartment you find all the paraphernalia needed for this work — screen, projector, piles of slide containers and work sheets on which quality of the slides are rated.

On the walls there are a few blow-ups of those "excellent" shots she speaks of getting on rare occasions. And she gives you the names of the sea creatures portrayed without hesitation.

At the same time she tells you she has reached a point where she feels limited by the type of camera she is using.

Postscript — In these waters there is an unwritten law that a person should never go down under alone.

"The best way is with one other diver," Isobel says. "And if that person is a friend and interested in the same things you are, it's ideal."

Her partner for some time now has been Helen Vieser, a local scuba diver who is also enthusiastic about underwater photography.

"We've been working together under the sea ever since we met."

She also gets guidance and help with her photographic technique from Warran Buck, a professional underwater diver and photographer, with whom she also works.

Cortisone eases hurt of tennis elbow

By DR. BOB YOUNG

Would-be athletes are sometimes disappointed to find that they can not play their sport because of pain when they move their arm. Two common causes of this problem are tennis elbow and tendinitis.

When you stand with your arm at your side, palm forward and thumb facing away from your body, your arm is in anatomical position.

In this position the lateral side of the elbow joint is on the same side as the thumb. The bulge at the lower end of the upper arm bone is called an epicondyle, and the outside one, with the arm in the above position, is called the lateral epicondyle.

When this area becomes inflamed the condition is called lateral epicondylitis or, or commonly, tennis elbow.

The extensor muscles of the forearm originate here, and they can be irritated by actions such as driving in screws or by extending the wrist violently when the hand is in certain position — a common occurrence in tennis games.

Passage of time an avoiding pain-producing activity will result in a cure in most cases. Wearing a tight strap just below the elbow takes the strain off the sore area and may speed the cure.

Tendons are the ropes that join the winches (muscles) of the body to the parts that are to be moved. There are many of them paticularly about the wrist and ankle. Each tendon is enclosed in a tube or sheath, and the sheath, and often the tendon it contains, may become inflamed. Several diseases including rheumatoid arthritis and gout may damage the sheath, but in younger people the irritation is usually due to injury, strain, or excessive or unusual exercise.

Symptoms include pain and visible tender swelling along the path of the tendon. A grating sensation may be felt (and even heard if a stethoscope is used) and movement may be painful enough to be disabling.

Rest, heat or cold, and relieving drugs are used in treating tendinitis. Physiotherapy is often needed, especialy if the shoulder is involved. Cortisone is also used in this condition, and persistent cases may require surgery.

Info/Health is a service of the British Columbia Medical Association and the Victoria Times.

Dr. Young welcomes letters c/o the Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, V8W 2N4. Unpublished queries, however, cannot be answered personally.

AFTER YOU'VE been woken up more than 100 times to celebrate your birthday, Alice McFarlane doesn't appear too thrilled about reaching her 105th on last week in Toronto. It's another story for Alice Lyness, however, who seems concerned her friend would miss the birthday festivities. But then Mrs. Lyness hasn't been around quite as long. She's five years younger, a mere 100.

Pilot's sights set high

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — The pediatrics wing at Greenwich Hospital reverberates with the noise of riveting, hammering and drilling. Cancer patient Gregory Schwartz is building an airplane in his room.

And he plans to fly the four-metre-long, 135-kilogram airplane — if he lives long enough to finish it.

The plane is the latest in a series of projects the 23-year-old Greenwich man has undertaken since he learned in 1977 that he was suffering from acute lymphacytic leukemia.

He has learned to ski so well he worked in Colorado as a ski instructor. This year he began writing freelance science articles, getting bylines in newspapers.

Now there's the airplane, named Cloud Cap. It is a modified version of a $4,000 kit for an aluminum craft that will be powered by a modified Volkswagen automobile engine and is supposed to have a cruising speed of 200 kilometres an hour.

Because of his medical condition, Schwartz was stripped of the pilot's license he earned as a teenager.

"No matter what, though, I'm flying this plane when I finish it."

Son's suicide lesson for all

EDMONTON (CP) — On a quiet Sunday morning last month, Bill Diachuk, Alberta workers' health minister, forced open the bathroom door in his home and found himself staring at the body of his 17-year-old son.

Douglas Michael Diachuk, the youngest son in the minister's family, had hanged himself.

In many cases it would be merely another statistic. Last year there were 105 suicides reported in Edmonton.

But the Diachuks have resolved not to hide their personal tragedy as so many families do out of embarrassment, guilt or fear of gossip.

The Diachuks have revealed the suicide of their son — they have five other children — in hopes of reaching out to other young people thinking of taking their own lives.

"We have to take a positive attitude if we are to help, at least save one person," says Ollie Diachuk, the dead boy's mother. "The loss of someone we love is too great to express. Young people should know how much it hurts others."

The Diachuks admit Douglas must have been facing some problem, but say "he didn't communicate."

"I guess there was something within," said Bill. "Sometimes kids don't want to burden their parents."

Rosemarie Solomon, acting director of Aid Services in Edmonton, says one possible solution to the communication problem could be distress centres. The anonymity of the telephone allows persons to open up and talk about problems.

She says people often tell others of their feelings but "society is not trained to pick up on clues."

"If someone threatens suicide, friends often slough it off."

There are clues to identify possible suicides, she says, including personality shifts, sleep disorders, changes in appetite, tension headaches or stomach upsets.

But for the Diachuk family, the clues and theories haven't provided any answers. The unexpected suicide of their son has left them numb with pain.

Slippery way to get rich

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Bob Davidovic, owner of the Fish and Worm Co., let two million worms slip through his fingers last year. Davidovic supplies thousands of fishermen in Michigan and Ohio with the slimy bait, receiving about $16 per thousand worms harvested. His crew begins work at 11 p.m. and usually can pick about 1,000 worms in a night. Experienced pickers, however, often collect more than 6,000.

Astrological Forecast for Tuesday, June 10, 1980
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Money, production, evaluation of relationship — these figure prominently. Accent on experience, lessons, investments, locating what had been lost, missing or stolen. Capricorn, Cancer natives figure prominently — so does the number 8.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Cycle high — you gain real and psychic income. You profit by doing what comes naturally. Circumstances favor your efforts — timing, judgment are on target. A "weight" is lifted — you are relieved of burden. Long-range assignment is completed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Check sources. Maintain independent stance. Shake off fears, doubts, lethargy. You may be "spotlighted" before the media. You meet someone who could play an important role in your life. Hold line on principles. You are going places!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emotions dominate — strive to give logic "equal time." One who taught you in past will be back in picture. Family member makes concession — and your position is strengthened. Capricorn, Aquarius persons play key roles.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You'll have reason to celebrate! Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius natives figure prominently. Emphasis on social activity, career boost, honor protterred by peers. What had been an obstacle will now represent a stepping-stone to progress.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Good Moon aspect coincides with good news from afar. Clear lines of communication. Keep source material available for quick reference. Publishing project is favored. Key is information that is relayed to key people.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Count change — someone may be attempting to get something for nothing — and you could be prime target. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius — and the number 5 — figure prominently. Contract contains "hidden clause." Know it and protect self in clinches.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Spotlight on public response to your efforts, getting out among the people, making amends to family member for real or imagined slight. Taurus, Libra and another Scorpio figure in scenario. A "surprise package" is on the way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): See clearly where priorities are concerned. Don't deceive yourself. Emphasize routine which results in getting job done. Pisces, Virgo natives play key roles. A very romantic individual flatters you. No need to be cynical, nor should you be gullible. Discern fine line!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Money, involvement, power, intensified relationship — these command spotlight. You rebound from apparent setback — what seemed a sure loss will boomerang in your favor. Accent production, responsibility and reward.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emphasis on property, completion of transaction. Aries, Libra natives play significant roles. Keep books, records up-to-date. Obtain appraisal. Be meticulous concerning facts, figures. You will be on more solid footing.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Highlight versatility, independence — make inquiries, give full rein to intellectual curiosity. An individual who is bright, creative and sensual comes into your life. Activity replaces doldrums or lethargy. Trip is on agenda and so is a special visit.

IF JUNE 10th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are dynamic, stubborn, creative and should avoid lifting heavy objects. Means your back is a vulnerable part of your body. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. Recent domestic adjustment, change of residence or marital status, had a "shaking up" effect. Now, you go through a period of rediscovering yourself and values. October could be your most memorable month of this year. Some experiences are painful, but necessary. You are obtaining second wind — you are going to emerge richer, more productive and much less lonely. Romance and an outlet for creative efforts will be highlighted in July.

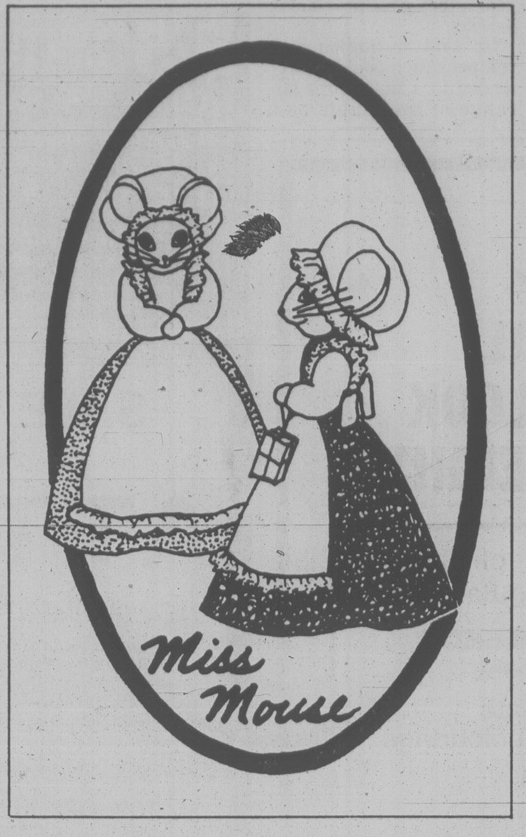
3-D Miss Mouse, a must



You've heard of Sunbonnet Sue & Sally — but Miss Mouse? Why not? Surely a proper Miss Mouse wouldn't be seen walking about without her pretty sunbonnet on and a crisp, white apron tied in a neat bow!

Actually, the idea for this charming creature came from a flea market "find" many years ago. It was a papier mache figure with a hole cut in the top of the nose, and another smaller hole in the top of her package.

The first opening was to hold scissors while the other opening was for string.

The idea was to place a ball of string inside the mouse skirt, thread the string through the package opening with scissors handy whenever string was required.

We've designed Miss Mouse to enable you to make small wall plaques in three dimensional applique.

Using bits of lace and trim and scraps of pretty calico or other fabrics, you can dress her as you wish.

A soft pink for inside the ears, a browny shade (or grey) for face and paws, and embroidery floss complete the things you need.

By adding stuffing behind the pieces of fabric you can make dear Miss Mouse almost lifelike.

These little plaques would be ideally suited for birthday presents for little girls (or big ones), little hostess gifts, bazaar items, or Christmas gifts.

A new baby's room, bathroom, or kitchen, utility room or laundry would be room ideas where Miss Mouse might be hung.

If you'd like to use the design for quilting, try Miss Mouse in frontal or side view on a quilt block — try a 12" (30.5 cm) oval.

Alternate the views for interest, and use similar prints (or eyelets) for the alternating plain blocks.

Since the motif is in outline form, it is ideal for a quilting stitch design as well.

If grey fur is your color choice, try grey thread for the quilting stitches.

Some printed eyelets do not have holes, but rather are printed with greyish ovals and circles which make the material look like authentic eyelet.

This type would be very pretty with your grey color scheme. Try pretty yellow and orange prints, or bright reds or pinks for dress skirt and sleeves.

Miss Mouse can be placed in settings according to your whim — put her in front of a schoolhouse and she's the teacher; walking along a garden path — add a parasol, or a spray of balloons; holding a summer bouquet — perhaps sprinkling some flowers. Use your imagination to create a charming quilt full of interesting scenes.

Full instructions and patterns are included for all pieces plus directions for simple applique.

How to order: send your name, address and postal code, along with a cheque or m.o. to Hearthside Patterns, c/o Victoria Times, P.O. Box 9120, Stn. E., Edmonton, Alta. T5P 4K2.

Patterns, etc. available:

*KF-119: Miss Mouse, applique pattern in both front and side views. $3.50.

*Book-Quilting — a revived art, a complete handbook for the beginner, experienced quilter, and instructor. By Donna Renshaw, the book is 95 pages, soft cover, and full of easy to follow lessons, patterns, techniques, and ideas for making full size comforters, quilts, baby quilts, dust ruffles, quilted pictures, and trapunto (Italian quilting). $7.46 ppd.

*Book-Modern Quilting, quilt patterns for contemporary quiltmakers. Published by Quilter's Newsletter, these 16 patterns are design winners from on-going pattern contests. Sunbonnet Sue (1975), Fishin' Freddy, Jonathan Livingstone Seagull, Star Trek, Tic-tac-toe, Scrap Bag Squares, and the Eternal Triangle are ones you'll want to try. Full size patterns, instructions and yardage estimates included. $3.25.

*GTP-29: The Patchwork Pattern Converter Pak. Contains template plastic (see-through, durable, reusable) for making any favorite patchwork template pattern into a plastic template; plus graph paper for enlarging or reducing designs, plus full instructions. $2.75.

Price tag fight waged

leslie holbrook

the fourth quarter

"No retail seller shall offer for sale a product that is marked with a computer code unless the individual purchase price of such product is clearly expressed on the product, its wrapper or container."

That is the text of a simple amendment to Ontario's Consumer Protection Act, proposed by Bernard Newman, MPP, which answers satisfactorily the many complaints from shoppers (particularly older shoppers) concerning elimination of individual prices from supermarket merchandise.

With commendable clarity and surprising brevity Mr. Newman has proposed all that is needed in the way of legislation to nip this nonsense in the bud — as has already been done in some U.S. States and individual U.S. municipalities.

The above clear-cut amendment has been introduced in the provincial Legislature on five different occasions between April 1977 and March 1980, on one occsion (June 22, 1978) being debated with all speakers supporting it.

[In British Columbia, Consumer Affairs Minister Jim Nielsen has said stores won't be forced to retain price tags if scanners are used — it would not be fair to the corporations.]

Response to my recent column on this subject resulted in a heavy mail — all of it demanding retention of individual price stickers.

Fifty-three members of the Royal Women's Institute, Guelph, sent me a signed resolution requesting retention of readable prices and urging Ontario Consumer Minister Frank Drea to keep his promise to retain price stickers on items.

From other letters: "We must fight for retention of readable prices; I wrote Mr. Drea" (B.S., Mississauga). "If we only had a government willing to help the people who elected them rather than responding to pressures from big business." (J.T., Kitchener).

"Old age pensioners have to shop by individual prices if they are to eat reasonably well; we compare prices and sizes when making selections. Please don't make it any harder for us. We need to pick up and clearly compare before we spend our limited funds." (Mrs. M.S., Owen Sound).

Last December, Mr. Drea said his ministry would conduct a survey of 900 consumers already using computerized shopping "to determine their attitudes towards the system in general and item price removal in particular."

Well, if such a survey will hasten a solution I am for it. But with the Consumers Association of Canada already on the record as opposed to readable price elimination, countless groups demanding action and beleaguered individuals everywhere pleading for protection surveys seem superfluous.

Private members' bills, such as Mr. Newman's, have little hope of enactment; it is up to the Government to support legislation; Mr. Newman has given them simple and sufficient words to use.

On the only occasion when his bill was debated Mr. Newman recorded support from such large groups as United Church Women and labor unions. He went as far back as 1977 when the then Minister of Consumer and Commercial Relations (Sidney Handleman) was quoted as saying: "Over the last year and a half my colleagues and I have received literally thousands of communications ranging from expressions of mild concern to outright alarm over any suggestion to remove individual pricing."

But no action was taken. Three years later the matter grows increasingly urgent. The solution seems simple. What are they waiting for?

No cause to quit

MONTREAL (CP) — Too many people needlessly give up work after open-heart surgery, says a study by the Montreal Heart Institute.

And the institute is trying to do something about it by stressing the need for emotional as well as physical recuperation for its patients.

A sampling of people who underwent bypass surgery for coronary artery disease at the institute since 1975 showed that more than 40 per cent had not returned to work, even though many said they felt fine.

Nicole Tobin, head of the institute's research foundation, said that despite assurances from their doctors, some former patients "feel that they're still really sick people."

They usually aren't, said Ms. Tobin, and for those who had desk jobs before their surgery, there is little excuse for not going back to work.

The study also showed that if people don't immediately get back in the mainstream after their operations, chances are they never will.

"We found that if they don't go back to work wihin the first six months after surgery, then they will probably never go back," Ms. Tobin said.

To remedy this situation, the institute will embark on a second phase of the study, taking 60 prospective bypass patients and preparing them physically and psychologically to resume normal lives after surgery.

Before going under the knife, they will be interviewed by a team including a physician, a physical therapist, a psychologist and a social worker.

Where necessary, Ms. Tobin said, members of the team will intervene on behalf of the patient. The social worker, for example, could explain the patient's particular needs and limitations to his employer.

"After surgery, they will attend exercise sessions three times a week, so that they will feel more confident and better physically and psychologically," she continued.

HAMBLETON
. . . first leader

City man heads architects

David Hambleton of Victoria has been elected the first president of the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada under a revised constitution giving the group full national status.

Hambleton, of Wagg & Hambleton, assumed office May 22.

He had been provincial president in 1975 and has been working at the national board level since that time.

Until this year the RAIC operated as a federation of provincial groups, with a national board formed by provincial presidents and past presidents.

This year, for the first time, architects are joining the national organization directly.

Hambleton said 3,400 of Canada's 5,000 registered architects have already applied for direct membership in the national body.

This includes 450 members from Quebec which had maintained a separate organization during most of the 1970s.

Also joining are a number of students, associate members and affiliated members, Hambleton said.

A prison pass for graduation

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Jim Lewis watched his son graduate from high school this weekend, but instead of going home to celebrate after the ceremony, Lewis went back to prison.

Lewis didn't look any different from the other proud fathers jostling through the crowd at New Westminster Secondary School — he was wearing a three-piece suit and tie and was happily watching his son Bill while his devoted wife Laury and two younger children gathered round him.

Chances are though, he was the only convicted contract-killer in the crowd, the only one serving life for a double murder, the only one out of prison on a seven-hour pass — the first pass he's had.

And he was probably the only father there with an application before the federal justice minister for a new trial and a plea to the National Parole Board to implement the Royal Prerogative of Mercy, claiming a wrongful conviction.

The murders he was convicted of took place in 1972, not far from his son's high school. A young couple was blasted to death in what became known as the Kettle Bomb Killings.

Dam crews back

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 900 construction workers at the Revelstoke Dam project have been ordered back to work by the B.C. Labor Relations Board following a two-day walkout prompted by feuding unions.

Members of the Operating Engineers International Union walked out Thursday in a disagreement with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers over who had responsibility for hoisting a transformer.

The walkout idled about 1,200 workers at the site.

Board vice-chairman Gabriel Somjen ordered the men to be back at work by Monday but directed the LRB to consider alternative ways of resolving the dispute.

An earlier jurisdictional argument between the electrical workers and the Teamsters over transporting men and materials to and from the project caused a two-day stoppage in May.

Four fliers rescued

ATLIN — Four persons who spent two days in the bush after their light plane crashed in a valley near this northeastern village were rescued Sunday.

Three search and rescue specialists parachuted into hilly terrain from a CFB Comox-based Buffalo aircraft to rescue pilot Barry Watson of Whitehorse and passengers Tom Cherrier of Whitehorse, and Marina and Jim Wallis, believed to be from the Atlin area.

Pedestrian hit

RCMP said he was in collision with a truck driven by Arthur Kayes, of Duncan, on St. Julien Street.

Alternatives to prison studied

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government is considering changes to the Criminal Code of Canada to reduce the prison population by replacing many sentences with fines, discharges, community service orders, probation and restitution.

Solicitor-General Robert Kaplan said Sunday the government is also studying changes in sentencing procedures, including a requirement that judges state their reasons when they sentence people to more than the minimum specified by law.

Kaplan told about 900 people at a conference on alternatives to imprisonment the government wants a more humane, more effective and less costly prison system.

There are about 10,000 federal prisoners in Canada and it costs about $29,000 to keep a prisoner in maximum-security for a year. Prisoners serving more than two years are sent to federal prisons; for sentences of less than two years, they go to provincial prisons.

He said restitution and compensation could be extended to a much broader range of indictable and summary conviction offences. And some obstacles to restitution and compensation now in the Criminal Code should be removed.

"For example, the question of such an (compensation or restitution) order should be able to be raised by any participant in the trial, not merely the victim and not merely at the time of sentencing."

Shield to foil starlings

City hall maintenance staff appear to have licked the bird dung problem.

Starlings for years have roosted at night in the decorative screens which shade the floor-to-ceiling windows on the south side.

Bird droppings were blown against the windows and because of their unsightly appearance, the curtains were always drawn in the two council committee rooms on this side of the building.

The windows were steam cleaned earlier this year and now council's public works committee has approved a test of a solid plastic shield inside the window screens.

The shield would have sharp points projecting through each opening in the screen to make it impossible for birds to roost in the pigeonholes.

To do all the windows would cost about $6,000, according to building superintendent John Marshall.

An alderman had suggested removing the offending screens altogether and putting a sun shade on the inside of the glass but Marshall said this would cost $35,000 to $40,000.

SACK HOPPING is hard but fun, officials discovered at Operation Trackshoes 10th annual meet for mentally handicapped at the University of Victoria on the weekend. More than 750 competitors and 300 officials took part in track and field events staged with the help of provincial and private funds.

Music festival firsts, seconds taken by Victoria competitors

Ten Victoria entries were among first- and second-place winners in the B.C. Music Festival which ended Saturday in Terrace.

Even garbage to cost more

The city plans to raise the fee for bringing rubbish to the Herald Street garbage transfer station to $1.50 per cubic yard as of July 1.

If council approves on Thursday, the new charge will replace the existing fee of 85 cents per yard, the cheapest in the region.

The station was intended to serve Victoria residents but because it is so cheap, it has become a regional dumping station, Sansom says.

Hearing slated on Doman's site

DUNCAN — A contentious bylaw introducing a new policy for the industrial restricted zone covering Doman Industries' 40-acre site on Cowichan Bay goes to public hearings June 16 and 17.

The new policy places a minimum parcel size at 25 acres, a major change from the four-acre parcels proposed in the original bylaw.

Other restrictions to the industrial zone:

—Before being issued a building permit, an applicant must submit an environmental impact study whose recommendations are acceptable to the municipal council, along with comments on the study from the environment ministry and Environment Canada;

—The new bylaw would restrict the zoning to sawmills, planer mills, dry kilns, accessory buildings and agriculture and includes a rider stating all other uses are prohibited.

Duncan Mayor Graham Bruce does not expect excessive opposition to the bylaw, the first major review of zoning since 1966. Four previous public information meetings on the matter had gone well, Bruce said.

Bruce said the blyaw will put Doman's Cowichan Bay site in a holding pattern until the provincial government releases the Cowichan Estuary task force report.

Krishnas stockpiling arms

New York Times

SAN FRANCISCO — Hare Krishna groups are coming under increasing scrutiny by the police in California amid disclosures that the group has been stockpiling large stores of weapons and ammunition.

Lt. Jeff Markham, an investigator for the Lake County Sheriff's Department, whose jurisdiction includes a Krishna ranch near Ukiah, where officers discovered a cache of weapons and ammunition last March, said, "They have pretended for years to be a peace-loving group that was only concerned about their religion but events of the last six months have shown me personally that they are not what they pretend to be."

Members and leaders of the Krishna sect maintain that the gathering of weapons is not sinister and stems from a need for self-defence.

The authorities were trying to trace a stolen credit card when they visited a seemingly placid farmhouse on 480 acres of rolling, newly planted land in the Maycamas Mountains on March 4. There they uncovered several thousand rounds of ammunition, a grenade launcher, three rifles and four short-barrel shotguns, which are normally used by the police as riot guns. None were illegal to own, the police said,

Later that month, the Berkeley police discovered a Krishna-owned warehouse in El Cerrito containing casings, powder and slugs for making 50,000 rounds of ammunition. The cache was legal because the warehouse was owned by a licensed gun dealer, Sgt. Pepper's Guns.

In Moundsville, W.Va., property owners near a Krishna retreat have complained about members stockpiling a large arsenal of weapons and conducting target practice in the woods.

China building accelerator

PEKING (AP) — China soon will begin construction of a 50-billion electron volt proton accelerator and step decisively into the age of high-energy physics, John Toll, president of the University of Maryland, reported today.

Toll, a professor of physics, said final approval was given June 4 to build China's biggest accelerator near the ming tombs. He said he was visiting the Peking Institute for High Energy Physics when scientists got the official word a few days ago.

Last June U.S. physicists visited China to discuss the project but since then scientists have reported that China still had not given the go-ahead to a project that might cost $100 million. China currently has much smaller and less-modern accelerators.

Slowest day yet: just 139 Cubans

KEY WEST, Fla (AP) — Many Cuban and U.S. officials took the day off Sunday as the waning refugee sealift accounted for 139 arrivals in Key West and a handful of departures from the Cuban port of Mariel.

"I guess this is the slowest day yet," said a U.S. immigration officer at Key West docks, the initial processing point for the 112,078 men, women and children seeking new lives in the United States.

Three small boats with 139 passengers had straggled into Key West through late afternonon Sunday. A U.S. Coast Guard spokesman in Miami reported "three or four boats leaving Mariel" earlier in the day with an estimated total of about 200 passengers.

Only skeleton staffs from U.S. Customs, Immigration and the Border Patrol were on duty.

Jody, with a sample of his wares

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Ten weeks into trout fishing season, the legislature still hasn't managed to get 13-year-old worm salesman Jody Gerard off the hook in his sales-tax troubles.

An energetic youngster, Jody became a celebrity last summer when the state department of taxation and finance collected 64 cents in back sales taxes from his worm business.

The subsequent publicity attracted politicians, and on March 3 they invited Jody to Albany to tell his story. There were speeches and picture-taking and promises of fast action to make sure he wouldn't have tax problems this year.

Enter politics.

The two legislators from Jody's Ulster County — state Senator Richard Schermerhorn, a Republican, and Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, a Democrat — each promised to introduce bills exempting "young entepreneurs" from sales tax.

But they didn't agree on identical bills.

Assembly Republicans introduced Schermerhorn's version, and it passed the Republican-controlled senate on May 6. But since then, it has languished in the Democrat-controlled assembly ways and means committee, which would rather see Hinchey get the credit.

But there may yet be a happy ending. The state senate eventually also passed a version of Hinchey's bill.

I send God to kill them: rebel chief

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN

Associated Press correspondent Peter O'Loughlin travelled by plane, ship and dug-out canoe to get this interview with the leader of a revolt on Espiritu Santo, the island in the South Pacific.

SANTO TOWN, Espiritu Santo (AP) — Jimmy Stevens, leader of the bow-and-arrow takeover of this lush South Pacific island, says he gets his orders from God and that if the colonial powers attack, "I send God to kill them before they eat me."

"God is my force; I feel God tells me," said Stevens, the 57-year-old chief of 15 tribes, husband to 25 wives, and father of 23 children.

He started the revolution two weeks ago, leading 500 Melanesian natives and 50 French-speaking islanders in the takeover of Espiritu Santo, largest island in the New Hebrides chain.

"We want peace," Stevens said in an exclusive interview Sunday with The Associated Press. He said his followers want to rule themselves and have set up their own government to do it. The jovial Stevens, an ex-bulldozer driver known throughout the islands as Jimmy, declared himself the leader of the fledgling state of Vemarana.

His revolt is a matter of concern to the governments of Britain and France, which have jointly governed the New Hebrides for the last 74 years.

Walter Lini, the elected chief minister of the New Hebrides islands, 1,365 kilometres east of Australia, has called on Britain and France to send soldiers to put down the rebellion. The islands are to get their independence July 30.

Neither nation has responded to his call and both are reported divided over what they can, or should do to counter Stevens's revolution.

"I ask God if force has the right to come," he said speaking in a mixture of broken English and Bislama, the local dialect. "God tell me no."

Stevens said there was no point in trying to negotiate a settlement with Lini.

"Vila is Vila, Santo is Santo — different language, different custom," he said, referring to the New Hebrides' capital of Port Vila.

Stevens has been a force in New Hebrides politics for 20 years, but he was an also-ran in the race to govern the islands after independence.

He counts among his friends Michael Oliver, a passionately anti-Communist real estate millionaire from Carson City, Nev.

Oliver, who helped Stevens draft a constitution for his breakaway state, is a leading member of the Phoenix Foundation, a group of wealthy U.s. businessman who want to see Vemarana become a haven for for free enterprise unhindered by government regulations or taxes.

Stevens and the other "officials" in his government, including several French planters, a teacher and a doctor, stressed that there was no violence in their revolution and that the island is calm.

Refugees again fleeing Vietnam

HONG KONG (UPI) — More than 700 Vietnamese refugees have arrived in Asian ports since Saturday, some of them telling of rape and death on the high seas.

The latest arrivals indicate that a renewed exodus from Vietnam is under way, but nothing like last year when a 1,000 boat people arrived in Hong Kong alone.

Hong Kong officials said seven tattered boats carrying 501 Vietnamese arrived in the British Colony between Saturday and this morning.

The Danish ship Pepsun plucked 103 Vietnamese out of the South China sea and brought them to Singapore Saturday.

Officials said the refugees appear to be genuine escapees and that there is no evidence that Hanoi has once again started "exporting" unwanted ethnic Chinese from Vietnam.

One refugee said five children died, apparently of starvation, during the trip on the group's 40-foot boat.

"We had to throw their bodies overboard," he said.

"There were also pirates," said another, a former school teacher in Ho Chi Minh City, formerly Saigon.

"We no sooner got food and water (from passing fishermen) than pirates boarded our boat and took everything," he said, adding that some girls were raped and that two of them were kidnapped.

The number of latest arrivals indicates June will be the heaviest month of 1980. Nearly 600 have arrived in Hong Kong in the first nine days of June compared with 635 in all of May.

Bloodshed erupts in San Salvador

SAN SALVADOR (Reuter) — A wave of bombings shook the capital and at least 34 people were murdered in another weekend of political bloodshed across El Salvador, police said today.

Rightists and leftists claimed their victims in San Salvador and three other cities of the Central American country.

Five kidnap victims, including a pregnant woman, were found dead in San Miguel. Seven bodies were found in Santa Ana, one with the initials EM (death squad) carved in his chest. A student was shot to death in San Vicente, and 21 people were killed in the capital.

EM is a rightist group that has declared war on left wingers. The left is fighting to overthrow a military junta installed last October. Human-rights officials say more than 3,000 people have died in shootings and bombings.

In the weekend bombings in the capital, blasts ripped through a newspaper office, a university campus and a financial institution.

Police said damage was heavy but nobody was hurt.

Bomb expert wounded

DUNGANNON, Northern Ireland (AP) — A bomb exploded and badly wounded a British army bomb expert who was trying to defuse it early Sunday, military headquarters reported.

In Londonderry, a car bomb exploded and damaged the local BBC studios, telephone headquarters, two banks and a score of shops and offices, police said. Details were not available, but there were no reports of injuries.

Soviet spacemen back

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Soviet cosmonauts Yuri Malyshev and Vladimir Aksyonov returned to earth safely today after a five-day space trip aboard the experimental Soyuz T-2 craft, the news agency Tass reported.

Malyshev, 38, and Aksyonov, 45, were launched June 5 to make the first manned test flight in the new version of the Soyuz craft.

The Soyuz T version, designed to replace the old Soyuz completely in due course, has for the first time an on-board computer and solar batteries to make it more independent of ground control.

Opening lead — queen of clubs.

This remarkable deal was played many years ago by Helen Sobel. She was in seven spades and West led the queen of clubs. It can be seen that if South plays the A-K-Q of hearts after drawing trumps, the contract fails because of the 4-1 heart division. However, Mrs. Sobel made the grand slam — without seeing the East-West cards — and in a perfectly reasonable manner.

She won the club lead with the king, cashed the A-Q of trumps and ace of diamonds, then ruffed a diamond. After playing a club to dummy's ace, she ruffed another diamond. She then cashed the ace of hearts before ruffing her last club in dummy, and led the four of hearts. When East followed with the five, Mrs. Sobel played the six! When the six won, she had the rest of the tricks.

Of course, anyone seeing the adverse cards would have done just as well. But Mrs. Sobel performed the feat without that advantage and, furthermore, her accomplishment was not just a shot in the dark. On the contrary, she was 100 per cent certain the heart finesse would succeed. It was a matter of simple arithmetic.

Mrs. Sobel realized that West had started with seven clubs, since East had shown out on the second club lead. She also was aware that West had started with two trumps. Furthermore, she had seen West follow to three rounds of diamonds and one round of hearts.

All 13 or West's cards were thus accounted for at the point when Mrs. Sobel played the four of hearts from dummy. Finessing the six was no hazard at all — the six was sure to win all the marbles.

It was hot and humid in the office and Susan longed to go home. "My watch is on the blink," she told Sam. "What's the time?"

The old man smiled. "You can figure it out yourself if you want something to do," he replied "Just two hours ago it was three times as many minutes after noon today as the number of minutes still to go now before five o'clock."

Well?

Thanks for idea to Ken Rogers, Calgary, Alberta.

Watchdog Richards Report #173. Congratulations to Gorde Hunter who gave credit to Jim Gorst in his June 5th column regarding the Reid property. Seen in passing: "No Smoking" signs in Saanich Council Chamber yet Mayor Couvelier smoking his pipe, Sandy Noel smoking a cigar and Alderman Irene Block smoking a cigarette. If spectators to council meetings cannot smoke then members of Saanich Council should refrain also. For further information regarding Municipal matters please continue to phone 383-6259 or write to Your City's Watchdog, C. Joe Richards, PO Box 154. Postscript: Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway trip on behalf of the Native Sons of British Columbia to Nanaimo and return on June 14th. Tickets will be $14 with buffet lunch or $10 without and will include some souvenirs of the trip. Phone 383-6259 for further information regarding this trip before Wednesday June 11th.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

308 CARDS OF THANKS

WE WISH TO EXPRESS OUR sincere appreciation to all our friends for their kindness, assistance and moral support during the illness of a beloved Husband and father and the many expressions of sympathy during our bereavement. A special thanks to Dr. G.B. McLean and nursing staff of 4 West and 3 South, Royal Jubilee Hospital. Margaret, Kathie and Rod Munro.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness, messages of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings received from our many friends and relatives in the loss of our beloved husband and father Ido Corletto who passed away suddenly on May 21, 1980. Thanks to Dr. J.M. Bell and Dr. Bennett and staff at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Heartfelt thanks are extended to relatives and friends for their kind condolences in the loss of a dear wife, mother and grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Collier. Sincere thanks to Dr. J. McCracken, staff of Glengarry Hospital and Rev. F.W. Hayes. Allan Collier and family.

309 IN MEMORIAM

CURTIS — Accidentally on June 9, 1975. In loving memory of my son Richard.

Sadly missed and forever remembered. Mom.

LARSON - In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Laura, passed away June 9th, 1978.

Loving and kind in her ways,
Upright and just, to the end of her days;
Sincere and true, in her heart and mind,
Beautiful memories, she left behind.
Laurie and family.

McLean - In loving memory of Dunc, who passed away June 9, 1979.

Dunc, We do not forget you, nor do we intend,
We think of you often, and will to the end;
Gone and forgotten by some you may be,
But Dunc to our memory you ever will be.
Sadly missed by his 3 sisters, Nan, Jean and Iz.

Spot of greenery without digging

Starting today, Patrick and Helen Denton, a couple who bring with them a wealth of experience in both home and indoor gardening, take over the Times gardening column.

They succeed Jack and Hilda Beastall who are giving up their columns after more than 30 years.

Helen Denton is the daughter of the late M.V. Chesnut whose garden columns were featured for many years in newspapers and Patrick Denton is a former newspaperman turned horticulturist who has another column, The Backyard Gardener, syndicated in 2,000 newspapers.

The Dentons, who live in Qualicum Beach, collaborate on their column for Times readers under the name Helen Chesnut. Letters from readers are welcomed.

Formerly active gardeners who, for one reason or another, are no longer able to have an outdoor garden of their own are always looking for new ways of setting up spots of greenery in their rooms or apartments. For many such peole — and, indeed, for those of us who are as enthusiastic about our indoor gardening activities as the outdoors — the simplest and most charming way of establishing indoor plantings is often through the use of a terrarium.

A terrarium establishes a miniature landscape within a glass or plastic container and there's nothing mysterious or difficult about this method. A closed container maintains its own self-sustaining ecosystem which continually recycles the water for the plants. It's the obvious answer to the problem of keeping healthy many of those humidity-loving plants in our often dry, overheated homes. Unusual tropical plants also requiring high humidity do well in these enclosed terrariums.

A glass container can also have a small opening and still a higher humidity would be maintained than would be the case in a regular pot. I have had great success with large peanut butter jars, with the lids off, for smaller plants. I like to use something that is relatively easy to plant up, like an aquarium. Even the smaller, oval aquariums have an opening large enough to reach into.

But any clear glass or plastic container large enough to hold a few inches of soil above a layer of drainage material such as gravel or broken-up clay flowerpots will do. Even a large glass jug can be easily handled laid on its side with an opening cut out of the upper side.

Once you have chosen your container, a layer of drainage material must be laid down and, if possible, a layer of sphagnum moss should be laid over the drainage material to help prevent the soil from sifting down and clogging the drainage.

The soil itself should be fibrous and humusy; it must drain quickly. A most important point to make is that the soil for a terrarium absolutely must be sterilized as any fungus, disease or insects left living in the soil would flourish wonderfully in the enclosed, humid atmosphere of a terrarium.

In chosing your plantings, aim at a variety of shapes. Perhaps select one taller plant, maybe a young palm or a dracaena, for the center of the container or for the back of the plantings.

Next, position two or three or more, depending on the size of the container, smaller, bushy plantings around or in front of the large centrepiece plant. There are many such plants to choose from but try to include one with colored foliage, perhaps a variegated one. Strive for a constant in color, size and leaf shape for the most pleasing effect.

For instance, you might decide to combine the jagged and glossy-leaved holly fern with the soft table fern and a fat-leaved variegated pothos. Ferns were the original terrarium subjects. The table fern is beautifully soft and frilly and a lovely delicate light green. It remains small and so does not outgrow its confines for a long time, an important consideration with terrariums.

Moss fern, pileas and aluminum plant are other good terrarium subjects. The most difficult fern of all, the maidenhair fern, will not survive most home conditions but should do quite well in the humid atmosphere of a terrarium. To my taste, it is the most beautiful of all ferns.

It's a good idea to finish off with a ground cover or two. Small-leaved ivies are ideal and my favorite is the needlepoint ivy. Another lovely groundcover that thrives is creeping fig.

Once your plantings are complete, you can add the finishing touches — a green frog sitting on a piece of bark, small rocks, shells or whatever strikes your fancy. Water slowly and carefully, wipe down the inside of the container and leave the lid off for a day. Once the lid goes on, watch for light condensation on the lid and walls. If there is none, add just a bit more water. Once the terrarium is established, you should only need to mist-water about four times a year.

Major row expected in U.K. if government buys Trident

BEARSKINNED PRINCE grins to crowd Saturday as he practises for Welsh Guards' Trooping of the Color Saturday in honor of the Queen's official birthday. Prince Charles is Colonel-in-Chief of the famed regiment.

By DREW MIDDLETON
New York Times

LONDON — The British government is moving toward one of the most important military decisions in the country's post-war history: whether it remains a nuclear power through the purchase of Trident I submarine-launched missiles from the United States and the construction of four or possibly five new submarines to carry them.

The U.S. secretary of defence, Harold Brown, in talks last Monday with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, left the impression that the deal for the missiles could be completed within months.

A government decision to buy the missiles is expected to provoke a dispute. The left wing of the Labor Party has already urged that Britain discard its nuclear weapons, and retired officers and academic specialists on nuclear arms have bombarded the correspondence columns of The Times of London with letters arguing for and against their purchase.

The decision could have international repercussions. The submarines and warheads, which would be made in Britain, are estimated to cost about $5 billion over the next 10 years; NATO sources question whether Britain can spend this sum and at the same time procure the conventional weapons it needs if it is to help close the gap in such arms between the Warsaw Pact and NATO.

Yet there can be no doubt that acquisition of the Tridents would transform Britain's nuclear stance. Currently the country's strategic nuclear force consists of four submarines, each armed with 16 Polaris A-3 missiles. The missiles have a range of 2,880 nautical miles and carry three warheads, each with a maximum yield of 200 kilotons. The weapons are older and less effective than those of France or the United States, and there are doubts in the defence community as to the ability of the Polaris missiles to penetrate the antiballistic-missile defences around Moscow.

The Trident missile, on the other hand, has a range of over 4,000 nautical miles and carries eight 100-kiloton independently targeted warheads. They are designed with a guidance system that permits corrections in flight and is accurate to within 500 yards.

Mrs. Thatcher and her cabinet are intent on restoring Britain's position as an important military power, and the renewal of the independent nuclear force appears to Conservatives to be a step in that direction. But critics argue that possession of the Tridents would not make Britain a truly independent nuclear power.

For it is the government's intention to contribute the new submarines and missiles to NATO where they would be under the command in war of the supreme allied commander in Europe, who has invariably been an American. In any case, the decision to use nuclear weapons in war must be taken by all the NATO governments.

Britain, the critics argue, could only become a truly independent nuclear power through the withdrawal of its forces from the alliance, a step taken by France under President de Gaulle in 1966.

The intricate NATO system of consultation in time of war might not survive the strains of conflict. In that case, supporters of the Trident program argue, the Soviet Union will have to assess the intentions of three different governments: America, Britain and France.

However, Field Marshal Lord Carver, a former chief of the defence staff, can envisage no situation in which Britain would use its nuclear weapons independently. He told the House of Commons's expenditure committee on defence that "the contribution of such a weapons system is of secondary importance and would not itself justify the expenditure involved in the provision of the new system."

Only four nations have nuclear-missile submarine fleets: The Soviet Union has 90 boats, the United States 41, France 5 and Britain 4. The strategic value of submarines is that they are considered hard to locate; defence specialists in the United States and Western Europe estimate that research and development of new means to detect submarines is one of the largest items in the Soviet defence research budget, as it is in the United States.

Some who support an increase in British nuclear strength say that land-based Cruise missiles would be a cheaper and equally effective alternative to building new submarines. The missiles would be bought from the United States and the warheads made in Britain, and the cost would be less than the Trident program.

Decisive Afghan battle starting?

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Afghan guerrillas fought raging battles with Soviet troops in a wide arc around Kabul today, suffering heavy casualties — up to 1,000 killed and 2,000 wounded, reports reaching India said.

But hundreds of rebels slipped past a cordon of Soviet tanks into the city in a prelude to what could be the decisive battle for the capital, Aghan reports said.

Up to 1,000 guerrillas were killed and 2,000 were wounded in fighting around the capital, estimates coming from the Afghan capital said.

Soviet casualties were also reported heavy, but there were no exact figures available.

Weapons boomed in at least 12 sites around the capital with the sound of the gun fire reaching the capital, reports from the Afghan capital said.

In weekend reports on Tehran Radio, Afghan rebel groups claimed more than 1,000 Soviet soldiers were killed in Herat province during recent fighting.

The claims could not be independently confirmed.

"The bombing raids have caused widespread devastation around Kabul," villagers told one traveler today.

"Lots of rebels have died (and) the rebels have been forced to give up their Moslem custom of burying their dead, it is so bad," the villagers said. The Press Trust of India news agency reported from New Delhi an Afghan police officer killed four Soviet soldiers who ordered him to turn over a group of girls who had protested the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan. He then killed himself.

The Afghan Islamic Society said 120 Russian soldiers were killed and 100 others were wounded in a 16-hour battle in which the Russians used 250 tanks. It said 60 more were killed in a separate attack in the province. Sunday, the Islamic Revolution Movement announced that 874 Russian soldiers were killed in a recent attack in Herat.

At the same time, four divisions of Soviet troops backed by more than 2,000 tanks were "bombing hell" out of villages in the hills in front of the Paghman mountains that stretch north from about 12 miles west of Kabul, Afghan sources said.

But the sheer number of rebels, about 20,000 who gathered last week in the Paghman mountains for the all-out campaign to oust Soviet troops from Kabul, made it impossible for the heavy cordon of Soviet armament to keep them from reaching the city, the reports said.

The fighting is heavy in Bagram and Char-i-Kar to the north of Kabul, Kalangar to the South, Pagman to the west and Sohirastan to the southeast, the sources said.

Fighting also is heavy in Jalalabad, the major city east of Kabul, where rebels claim to have destroyed a police station.

The rebels have said they are counting on support from dissident students who have closed down schools and universities in Kabul for nearly two months and residents who have been helpless against the Soviet forces until now.

The rebels have taken heavy casualties in the fighting, with estimates of up to 1,000 killed and twice that number wounded. Although no figures for Soviet casualties were reported, several sources said the campaign was costly in Soviet lives as well.

Indian merchants who have run shops in the bazaars for decades have closed up and returned to India because of the rumors in recent weeks of the rebel assault.

But the Moscow-backed government of Babrak Karmal chose the moment of the rebel offensive to clean house of opponents, executing, according to Radio Kabul, a top guerrilla leader and 10 former officials associated with a rival faction, including a brother and nephew of late President Hafizullah Amin. Amin himself was killed in the Soviet-backed coup in December.

Flynn plotted to kill King, says paper

LONDON (AP) — A British newspaper said today that the late film star Errol Flynn financed an unsuccessful plot to assassinate King George VI and his Queen during a visit by the royal couple to Canada before the start of the Second World War.

The News of the World said Russell and a Nazi agent discussed a plan to plant a bomb to kill the King and Queen as they crossed the Canadian border into the United States on their way from Windsor, Ont., to Detroit.

But the Federal Bureau of Investigation had placed listening devices in the room in which the two men were meeting and Russell was arrested when he arrived in Detroit, the newspaper claimed.

"Because of pressure from influential Americans, Russell was only charged with breaking immigration laws and was allowed bail," The News said. It claimed British intelligence files show Flynn's contacts smuggled Russell onto a liner bound for Italy.

The News of The World said the link between Flynn and the plot is "spelt out" in British intelligence files and is confirmed by author Charles Higham, whose book Errol Flynn: The Untold Story alleges that the actor was a Nazi German spy during the war.The newspaper claims that Flynn had many contacts with Irish Republican Army chief-of-staff Sean Russell, who allegedly was behind the assassination plot against the royal couple.

Russell collected more than $200,000 from supporters in Hollywood and San Francisco for a large-scale IRA terrorist bombing campaign against Britain, the newspaper alleged, and that "most of the money came directly from Flynn."

Higham was quoted by The News of The World as saying: "I've verified that Flynn had IRA connections through Sean Russell."

Volcano-itis cutting into jetfoil loads

By AL FORREST

Victoria's jetfoil service is being hampered by a serious new ailment called volcano anxiety.

"Seattle people tell us they are afraid to leave their children alone for fear the volcano will erupt again," says Flying Princess Transportation Co. president Pat Crofton.

"They don't want to come to Victoria while their children are in school. They want to be close to home when the volcano erupts again."

Crofton said this fear, accompanied by a misguided notion Victoria may have a volcanic ash problem, has been cutting into passenger traffic on the new service.

"We have been averaging less than 100 passengers per trip," he said. "We are counting on an average of about 185."

It can carry a maximum of 250.

Now that the jetfoil service is well into June, which should be a good month, it will be difficult to meet the six-month target unless passenger totals pick up soon. Some slack weeks are expected in the autumn portion of the schedule.

Crofton said there appears little that Victoria can do about family anxieties. When schools get out and children can travel with their parents, thatproblem might ease.

Tourism Minister Pat Jordan is going to Seattle and Portland this week to participate in as many talks shows as can be arranged.

"This is a delicate mission," says John Plul, her assistant deputy minister.

"We can't just go down there and say 'we're the lucky ones who escaped the ash.'

"We have to be discreet and just bring this information into the conversation as casually as we can. It's not the sort of thing you can advertize in a formal way."

In addition, the ministry is spreading the word to automobile clubs and travel agents in California that Victoria is free of ash and the route to B.C. is safe.

The rumors are troublesome and have to be dealt with, he said.

Victoria transportation consultant Ken Stratford said the rumors have been heard as far away as San Diego.

He received a phone call from the Chamber of Commerce there wanting to know how bad the ash is in Victoria.

Stratford said the caller assumed there was ash in the streets here.

"I reassured him there was no problem in Victoria — but this points out the need to get the message out."

At some point, Stratford said, the volcano may become a major tourist attraction — people may pay large sums to take copter rides over it — but right now it is creating serious problems for the tourist industry.

Meanwhile, the jetfoil continues to ply between Victoria and Seattle less than half full.

Crofton doesn't put the blame on other factors like the schedule but he concedes the cool weather isn't helping.

The first jetfoil trip leaves Seattle at 6 a.m., he says, meaning people have to get up at 5 in the morning to catch it, but the loads on the early morning run are just as large (or just as small) as the one at midday.

"People just aren't travelling at this time. It seems to be mainly a concern about the volcano."

Mexico quake razes village

MEXICALI (AP) — A powerful earthquake destroyed 50 homes in a rural farm community, killed at least two persons and cause rumblings in an old volcano long believed extinct, Mexican police said today.

The quake, which also was felt in Southern California and southern Arizona, measured between 6.2 and 6.7 on the Richter scale and struck at 8:28 p.m. Sunday, lasting almost a full minute, officials said.

The epicentre was 80 kilometres southeast of this Mexico border city.

Police said a girl was killed when the roof of her home collapsed in the farming area known as Oaxaca, about 40 kilometres south of the border. A man also died there when a railway bridge fell on his car.

By early today, at least 60 people had been treated for injuries by the Mexican Red Cross in Mexicali.

Details on the rumblings at the volcano, Sierro Prieto, were sketchy, but the mountain is in the Mexicali area and is the site of an experimental geothermal power plant.

Officials said it would be several days before they knew the extent of damage or injuries throughout the Mexicali Valley, into which the Colorado River flows.

The rolling motion of the earth lasted between 60 and 90 seconds near the epicentre. Buildings swayed and water splashed out of swimming pools in the Los Angeles and San Diego areas.

Lesser quake jiggles Victoria

If you felt a little shaky Sunday afternoon it had nothing to do with Saturday night celebrating — or the Mount St. Helens volcano.

A minor earthquake centred on Port Townsend, Wash., was felt in Victoria at 3:40 p.m.

There were no reports of damage.

Local seismologists said there was nothing unusual about the quake, which registered about 3.5 on the Richter scale.

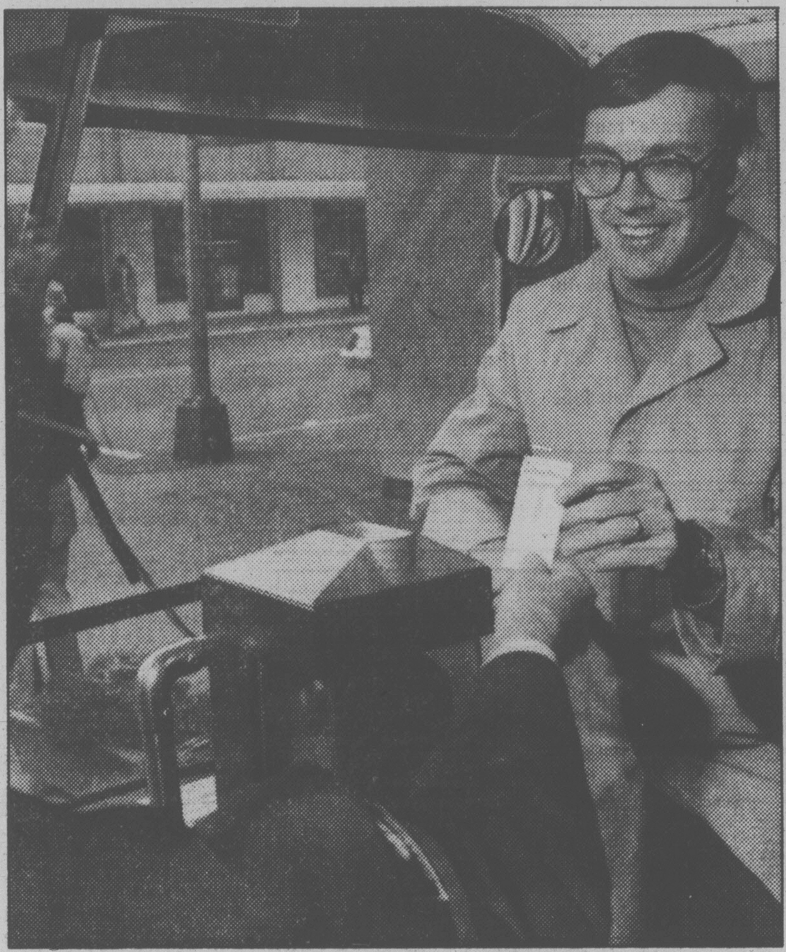
Quakes are frequent at Port Townsend, which is on the Olympic Peninsula, east of Port Angeles.

There was a minor tremble registering about one on the Richter scale one hour before the quake and another tremble registering one shortly after midnight this morning.

Only the jolt at 3:40 p.m. Sunday was strong enough to be felt in Victoria.

The University of Washington Geophysics Department also monitored the tremor and said it measured about 3.9. Other sources put it about 3.6. Variable readings are common because the soundings are taken from different directions.

The epicentre was 21 kilometres southwest of Port Townsend and 45 kilometres beneath the surface, UW officials said.



ONE OF FIRST to buy new daily bus pass this morning was Bill O'Brien, chief transit planner for the Capital Regional District which recently approved the scheme. For $1.25 bus rider is permitted unlimited use of the system. Monthly commuter bus passes are next priority of the CRD and the Urban Transit Authority. Daily bus passes for students cost 60 cents while senior citizens and children between five and 11 years of age can get passes for 35 cents. The CRD took over public transit on April 1 and will finance any deficit through a surcharge on electricity bills. (Alex Barta photo)

Retail clerks picket major depot

Woodward's spokesman Bill Brown said today it is anybody's guess how long the Victoria food store will remain open with its main supply centre choked off.

The 60 employees at the Richmond food centre, members of the Canadian Allied Manufacturers Wholesale and Retail Union, refused to cross the picket line, closing the operation.

There are about 50 members of the retail clerks union working in the wholesale section of the Furniture Fair and they too honored the picket line. However, business continues in the retail section.

Talks open with PM optimistic

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau began talks with the 10 premiers today, saying he expected they would be able to agree on the basic principles of federalism and set a timetable for constitutional change.

As the premiers filed into Trudeau's 24 Sussex Drive home, the prime minister said he hopes officials from both the federal and provincial governments will meet in the next few weeks to begin more in-depth study of constitutional issues for a possible conference this fall.

Trudeau tried to sound optimistic about the possibility of ending the 53-year stalemate which has thwarted 12 other attempts to renew the 113-year-old constitution.

"You heard them (the premiers) during the referendum, saying how anxious they were to renew federalism," Trudeau told reporters on his front lawn.

"I don't think any of them will go back on that pledge."

The premiers were more tight-lipped as they strolled into Trudeau's home, restricting their remarks to light banter.

Inside the mansion, the 11 leaders sat in a circle,

Gold price still throbbing

LONDON (AP) — Gold broke the $600 barrier again and soared to $623.75 U.S. an ounce in Europe today as the U.S. dollar came under heavy selling pressure.

After closing at just under $600 in London on Friday, the metal was fixed at $623.75 U.S. an ounce today — about $719.50 Canadian.

That was down slightly from the morning fixing price of $724 Canadian.

Salmon war talks off to fiery start

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Angry fishermen urged federal fisheries officers to lift an eight-week emergency ban on commercial fishing for chinook salmon in the Fraser River Sunday while talks designed to bring about a new West Coast salmon fishing agreement with the U.S. began today in Vancouver.

About 100 fishermen gathered at a public meeting Sunday sponsored by the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union to protest the closure.

The fishermen asked that they be allowed to fish by gillnet one day a week, or that sports and other forms of commercial fishing not affected by the closure be restricted.

They also alleged American interference, saying pressure was put on federal fisheries to impose the restriction on Canadian fishermen.

The fishery was closed May 29 to preserve dwindling chinook stock.

The protest marked the kick-off of negotiations today which could end the annual fish wars on the West Coast between the U.S. and Canada.

A Vancouver newspaper says the United States is amenable to three vital principles Canadian negotiators say must form the basis of a new agreement.

The morning Province says the main Canadian proposal is that each country's harvest must equal its own production.

Top-level Canadian negotiators say they will formally present two other proposals:

— stabilization of interception which would set catch levels on salmon spawned in one country and caught by fishermen in the other. Based on past years' catches, it is designed to settle areas of traditional dispute, and;

— maximizing salmon, in which both countries would enlarge their salmon stocks for the benefit of both.

Meanwhile, it was reported today the Aluminum Co. of Canada will be charged under the federal Fisheries Act if it does not double the amount of water flowing over the Kemano I dam in northeastern B.C.

The amount of water now flowing over the dam is only half what is needed to sustain fish stocks in the area, especially the Nechako River, district fisheries spokesman Wayne Shinners said Sunday.

Burton's present wife, Susan Hunt, was reported to have demanded that the picture — part of O'Keefe Centre's souvenir 20th anniversary program — be removed.

Burton starred in Camelot when it originally opened at the O'Keefe in the 1960s and was married to Miss Taylor then.

Gardener's new friend: the pill!

By IKE FLORES

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — Birth control pills for plants?

When Bob Kundtz said he wanted some for a horticultural experiment, both his doctor and druggist were taken aback.

But Kundtz, known as the "wizard" at Florida's Cypress Gardens, wanted the pills, not to prevent conception but to get his plants to reproduce.

Soaked in a solution of one birth control pill to one quart of water, the plants soon sprout new offshoots complete with root systems. The offshoots are then separated and repotted as new plants.

"I first heard of it in Australia about three years ago," said Kundtz, vice-president of the famous flower-and-water-ski attraction in central Florida.

"I couldn't get a variegated pineapple to put out new growth quick enough. And this friend of mine said 'No problem, old chap. Do thus and so.'

"I thought he was pulling my leg, but I kept it in the back of my mind," Kundtz says. "It sort of bugged me.

"About a year later I couldn't get a pandanus (member of the lily family) to throw any keiki (new growth). So I went to the drugstore and asked for some birth control pills.

"There was a lot of whispering in the back of the store, and then I found out I needed a prescription for them. So I go over to my doctor. He said 'Bob, does your wife know?' "

"It really does work," he said. "Little plants come out thicker than hairs on a dog's back."

Kundtz said a gynecologist friend of his believes it's the estrogen growth hormone in the pills that causes new plant growth quickly.

So far, he knows the pills work on the lily family, bromeliads and ferns.

Now, Kundtz is trying to find out whether he can get other plants to do the same. He is treating tomatoes and pepper plants in his home garden and intends to try the pills on shrubs.

"It's really too early to tell, but the peppers seem to be branching. I'm going to keep playing around with it and see what else I can do."

He's also interested in seeing whether the birth control pill solution would increase root systems in trees and stimulate flowering, which in fruit trees would mean more fruit or berries.

He said a home gardener can probably get results as well as anyone.

BABIES, BUFFOONS and bathtubs were part of the mix that made Salt Spring Island's weekend Sea Capers a warm, funny, exciting experience. The youngster (left) seemed oblivious to an evening concert in Centennial Park featuring the island's own Valdy, with Shari Ulrich and the Claire Lawrence Band. The crowd, however, couldn't get enough and yelled until there was a second encore much later on. Repeating his winning walk-on-water style despite a damp drizzle Sunday morning was Erling Jorgenson (centre), alias King Ineptitude. So far as is known, no other contestants have completed the course of about 100 feet, but the fishy caped king with the marine manure fork easily made it both ways. As for bathtubs, at least one of the dozens taking part overturned during the races, putting the water inside the tub where it belongs. The sea festival included inner tube and boat races, a parade, a women's softball tournament, dancing, a dunking tank, a tug of war tourney and a Lark in the Park for youngster. Organizers and participants agreed the weekend was a foot-stomping success, despite Sunday's drizzle.

Windmill palm can tolerate cold

On my first visit here as a tourist 14 years ago, what caught my eye more than anything else were the beautifully exotic palm trees in Beacon Hill Park. Why don't the city and provincial governments play up this singularly beautiful attraction?

Chamaerops excelsa, or the windmill palm, grows in several spots in the park and there are a number around the city as well, according to Victoria parks administrator Al Smith.

They are the most hardy of the palms and can tolerate a fair amount of below freezing weather. "They succumb only in the extremely cold weather," Smith says.

Victoria last had such a winter in 1970 when high moisture levels and very low temperatures combined in an unusual cold snap.

"We lost our big one in the park that year," recalls Smith.

As for tourist promotion, it seems Nanaimo got the drop on the capital city. He can't get bananas to grow to back up his claim that the Hub City is Canada's banana belt so Mayor Frank Ney is encouraging the cultivation of chamaerops excelsa as a symbol of the town's alleged balmy climate.

"He's doing a pretty good job of it," according to Smith.

Mall blaze damage set at $50,000

Fire destroyed the inventory of a dry goods store and caused extensive smoke damage after most shops had closed Saturday night at University Heights shopping centre.

Saanich fire department estimated total losses and damage at $50,000 following the blaze which started in bolts of cloth at Betty's Fabric Shop in the mall between K-Mart and Safeway stores.

The fabric store locked up at 5:30 and at 6:10 the fire was reported, already filling the mall and other shops with heavy smoke.

Flames spread quickly through the dry goods inventory but caused little structural damage and were put out quickly by firefighters wearing anti-smoke equipment.

K-Mart was still open but fire doors between it and other shops in the mall prevented smoke and heat from entering the department store.

While firefighters were still mopping up the shopping centre the department answered an alarm to the 2600 block Sinclair where a bulldozer was on fire.

Loss estimated at $60 was confined to upholstery of a machine being operated by Peninsula Bulldozing Ltd., 1000 Beckwith.

Pair hurt in crash

A driver and passenger received multiple injuries when a car snapped off a steel pole and smashed two fences early Sunday on Esquimalt Road near Maitland.

City police said a car driven by Ian Cook, 19, of 572 Whiteside, left the road about 1:30, wiping out the lamppost, a fence at the rear of 640 Esquimalt and another adjoining it, and demolishing the car.

He was treated for chest injuries and passenger Margaret McGough, 17, of 1020 McCaskill, for face, head and neck injuries.

Clean break vital to PCs: Wallace

As long as Social Credit is in power the provincial Conservative party will remain divided, former Tory leader Scott Wallace said today.

That's why he hopes the federal and provincial wings of the party will make a clean break at the party's annual meeting this weekend in Richmond.

A resolution to be voted on calls for two separate campaign committees to be formed.

Wallace, who was provincial leader from November, 1973, to October, 1977, said he has reluctantly come to the view the Tories will never have a united front provincially as long as Social Credit remains a powerful force.

"After Social Credit is defeated, and this could happen at the next election, we might see a return to a three-party system: Liberals, Conservatives and NDP.

"The Social Credit party could fade away just as it is doing in Alberta."

Wallace said while he was leader the Conservative party was hindered by internal dissention on the issue of whether the Tories should oppose Social Credit on a provincial basis.

A large number of Conservatives voted Tory federally but Social Credit provincially.

"Their motive was to keep the NDP out of power in British Columbia. But all they have done is assured the thing they fear.

"We now have a two-party system in British Columbia whichs means at some point the NDP will get back in.

"Only when the Social Credit alliance, or whatever you want to call it, breaks apart will the Conservative Party have a chance to be an effective force on a provincial basis."

Wallace said his comments about internal dissention refer only to the period when he was leader.

"I have not kept in close touch with party activities, except in Oak Bay, since I resigned as leader so I can't comment on what has taken place since that time."

Meanwhile, Vic Stephens, who succeeded Wallace as leader, indicated things went from bad to worse after 1977.

In the overlapping federal and provincial elections in 1979, Stephens publicly accused federal leader Joe Clark of making a deal with Social Credit whereby Socreds would support federal Tory candidates if the Conservatives would agree not to oppose Social Credit in the provincial election.

The dispute was never resolved.

Tories elected no members in the 1979 election and Stephens announced his resignaton in February of this year.

The party is seeking a new leader. A leadership convention will be held in October or November.

The constitutional change to be voted on this weekend calls for formation of federal and provincial committees headed by party vice-presidents.

Joan Gillanders, president of the B.C. party, said she thinks the proposed reorganization will help both wings of the party by allowing workers to get on with their jobs.

'I'll blow your head off'

A gunman threatened to blow off a motorist's head and robbed him of $10 as the driver sat with a woman friend on Dallas Road early Sunday.

John Deus Achadinha, 22, of 1811 Forest, told city police he was parked below the lookout about 1:50 with locked doors when a man in his mid-20s approached and knocked on a window.

Achadinha rolled the glass down a few inches and the man asked if he could spare some money. The driver said he couldn't.

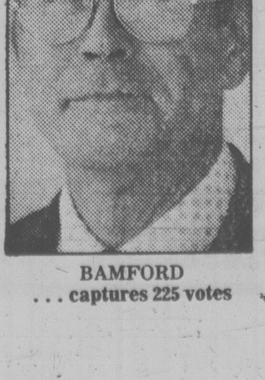
"You could help me out if you gave me five bucks," the man was quoted as saying. He repeated this several times, according to Achadinha, then pulled out a short-barreled pistol and held it to the opening.

He demanded money and said, "or I'll blow your head off."

The driver handed over a $10 bill and the gunman walked away.

Police said they were looking for a slim, dark, bearded man about 5 feet, 10 inches tall, with short, wavy hair. He wore a black, bomber-type jacket.

Bamford wins Sidney seat



BAMFORD
. . . captures 225 votes

Stan Bamford, an industrial education teacher at Stelly's secondary school, won an aldermanic seat Saturday in a Sidney byelection.

His term runs until November, 1981.

Bamford, 52, won with 225 votes, edging pharmaceutical salesman Loyd Burdon, who had 204.

Amusement arcade owner Michael Lane was third with 71 votes.

The byelection was called after Daryl Ashby resigned to become a North Saanich municipal employee.

Sunday rain tops month's total

Victoria had more rain on Sunday than it usually gets in the entire month of June.

The airport weather station recorded 31 millimetres in the 24-hour period.

The average for the month is 29.2 mm. In the city itself, as recorded at Gonzales observatory, there were 25.1 mm of moisture, or exactly one inch.

Total rainfall for the 48 hours during the weekend was 35.6 mm at the airport and 26.7 in the city.

The Japanese Self-Defence Force's training vessel Katori and destroyer Okigumo were to have sailed past with the Esquimalt-based destroyer-escort HMCS Restigouche.

They steamed into the dockyard of CFB Esquimalt today and will be open to the public from 1 to 4 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday.

Toronto

The Toronto stock market was sharply higher in active mid-afternooon trading today.

Trading in shares of Bonanza Oil and Gas Ltd., which was halted at the opening, resumed at 1 p.m. and by 2 p.m. the stock was unchanged at $11¼.

Bonanza said it has reached an agreement in principle with Chilco Resources Ltd. to acquire all of that company's outstanding shares. Chilco shareholders would receive $3.40 a share or one Bonanza share in exchange for three and one-third Chilco shares.

Trading in shares of IU International Ltd., which was also halted at the opening, resumed at 12:45 p.m. and by 2 p.m. the stock was down ⅝ at $18⅛.

Vancouver

Prices were up in heavy trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. Volume at 11 a.m. PDT was 2,782,032 shares.

Of the stocks that traded, 188 advanced, 102 declined and 166 remained unchanged.

B.C. Resources Investment Corp. led trading in the industrials, dropping .02 to $6.10 on 37,855 shares and Daon Development Corp. was unchanged at $7½ on 2,300. Keg Restaurants gained .10 to $2.85 on 1,400 and Balco Industries dropped ⅛ to $7⅜ on 1,150. Renn Industries was steady at $1.40 and Proflex Ltd. was unchanged at .24.

On the resource and development board, International Brenmac Development gained .10 to $1.83 on 107,000 shares and International Brenmac Warrants rose .05 to .55 on 65,100. New York Stock prices were mixed today, as a rally that had pushed the market to a three-month high was halted.

A small St. Louis bank, Southwest Bank, cut its prime lending rate to 12 per cent from the 13 per cent charged by most banks, and there were predictions that interest rates in general will continue to fall.

With gold prices rising above $620 an ounce and the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meeting in Algiers to try to reach agreement on an oil price increase, both precious metals and oil stocks were strong.

Hecla Mining was up 3⅜ to $35⅝, ASA 1¾ to $47⅜ and Dome Mines 2 to $79¾. Among the oils, Standard of California was up ¼ to $74⅝, Atlantic Richfield ⅞ to $95¾ and Mobil 1¾ to $75½.

Gulf and Western, which last week announced plans to market a new battery system for electric cars, was the early volume leader on the NYSE. It was down ⅛ to $17⅝.

London

The Financial Times index was up 5.3 at 433.8.

Golds and industrials were higher while oils were mixed.

Canadian stocks were mixed.
